SHERIDAN. Dec. 3, 1883.
The school is prospering finely.

Are we going to have any Christmas festivities?
We had a nice mess of radishes on Thanksgiving day.

James Morrison has sold his property in Junction City.
C. L. Worthington, of Portland, has started a grocery store here.

The river was not so high last week as at the same time last year by 8 feet.
The good and religious people of Sheridan feel very thankful to Rev. F. J. Barker, for the able sermons he preached here last week.

A great many persons have been present from this section to attend the Shepard-Dishmunt suit.
"The able exponent of Blakstone, C. L.," feels very thankful to his friend, F. J. Barker, for the unsolicited advertisement in the last Reporter, of his legal talent as a criminal lawyer. Thanks.

James Morrison has sold his farm of 173 acres, near Dalles, for $20 per acre.
Wm. and Byron Lafollett, while digging a ditch Saturday, dug up 15 snakes.

Churchman Bros. lost no saw logs, as was reported.
J. P. McKerney is now confined to the house with it, it is supposed, the consumption. He and his wife have the full sympathy of the entire community.

In justice to Judge Potter we wish to say in reply to a card published in the last Reporter, signed F. J. Barkley: The Court met at nine o'clock, as per adjournment. The first business was the drawing of a jury, which could not be proceeded with on account of the absence of the private prosecutor, who represents the State in the absence of the District Attorney. (see statute, sec. 48, 50, 88 and 89, Jus. Cod.) The Judge waited patiently until after 10 o'clock, when it was believed that the prosecuting witness had abandoned the case and 15 minutes after the attorney for the Indians resigned its name in this case. Many years ago Hon. J. W. Nesmith and a number of friends were camped on the coast at the mouth of the river, and a number of Indians came around the camp fire; among them several squaws, one of whom was better dressed and better looking than the rest. Nesmith wisely left the care of the camp while the others went out to see the Indians spear salmon by torch light. Late at night the men returned and after playing "draw poker, seven up and old aloge, whatever those men, one of the men asked of an Indian boy, who had been with the whites and learned to talk "Boston" a little, what had become of the handsome squaw, and he answered—"Nestoker," and the river is known by that name to this day.

THE HIGHLANDS. Nov. 30, 1883.
Last week's rain put a stop to seeding.
Hog-killing is the order of the day. Everybody is nonplussed by the decline in the price of pork.
Marks is doing a good deal of work for Fristoe.

We happened to meet lately one of the proprietors of the cinnamon mine that is supposed by some to exist near the Nestoker falls, but said proprietor said he could not explain to us or any other party unacquainted with cinnamon mining, what the prospects were—I guess he told the truth that time.

Uncle Jimmy Brown, of Williams, has bought a logging team and has taken a contract to cut and deliver timber for the Williams saw mill. Billy and Hank Brown with Is. and Chris Marks, all wily young woodmen, furnish most of the man power.

Both a singing school and a literary society are being talked up a little in upper valley. Here in our 27 neighbors; may you succeed in all such efforts.

We just noticed in a copy of the Reporter several weeks old, a squib from Nat at the temperance workers, or "talkers" as he would have it. It has not been our lot to meet with the "periodical prohibition petition" but are glad to learn that a prohibition is "again out," and if it is "periodical" it is certainly better than none at all, but we would like to see it constant, until voters enough indite their names to cause it to be granted. Sorry it is as our friend says that some temperance workers are "sporadic" in their efforts, but work once in a while is better than no work at all. We still hope that our neighbor Nat will have these spasms yet. We think he is wrong about it not "entering the heads of the petitioners that they have any thing else to do but petition and talk"—they expect to vote. Come, my friend, vote with us, if you never did talk? "people" not being willing to "part with their money to enforce laws," we think investigation will show that they put as many dollars into the public coffers as the whiskey supporters do, and as a class, do not assess near so much to be taken out. Perhaps that "moral force" you speak of being lacking among the temperance people is none too abundant among the other class, but whatever there may exist of that commodity in the whiskey element we hope to see enlisted in the temperance cause. If your item of the 5th inst falls under your notice again we think you will conclude that it was a little premature, friend Nat. We know many good men who are apt to slip the temperance movement because some may be fanatical on the subject, or because they are opposed to innovations on old laws and customs, but this movement is certainly moving onward. The idea of the great political parties grappling with the temperance question would have been laughed at a few years ago. The hand-writing on the wall appears in unmistakable characters.

HIG. H. LANDER.

LAFAYETTE. Dec. 4, 1883.
Just at present we are living a kind of a humdrum sort of a life. A late daylight gets us out of bed to eat a late breakfast, so late that it leaves no room for an appetite for dinner. Then comes a dreary, patient waiting for supper and bed. But the shortest day of the year is close at hand, and with it comes the holidays to stir us up and draw the cash for fun and presents. Already the boys are looking over the cheap jewelry and the girls are taking the dimensions of the boys' neckstashes, with a view, no doubt, of presenting some of those lovely monstrosities caps as a suitable gift in appreciation of that masculine appendage and lady-licker. I observed one taking very close observation of mine, but his huge proportions caused her to leave a sigh and turn in despair. However she, with that spirit of perseverance peculiar to the female sex, traveled all over town in search of a cool snuff.

Our old townsman, Jess Dixon, started off for the States, yesterday morning, to be gone a month or two.
Ben Harris, of Dayton, was here, Thursday, bidding on the Webfoot bridge. John Watson, Dayton's hardware merchant, visited us last week, on business.

Cooper, the irrepressible Cal., of McMinnville, was seen perambulating our streets on Friday.
And about that time came one "Snyder the Printer," known throughout the land of Yamhill as the "boss type fixer" for many years; and he tarried awhile and took notes—not bank notes.

You will remember that our genial old friend, Hull Johnson, consented to run for the office of county treasurer, last election, and was elected. Well, since then Hull went into another enterprise—matrimony. He now finds that a wife and an office are a little more than he cares to have on his hands at one and the same time; one had to be sacrificed. So he concluded to sacrifice the office and save the wife. Therefore he settled up all his county business up to the present time and tendered his resignation.

We are to have a Christmas tree the coming 24th, and a grand ball after the presents are distributed.
Lafayette now boasts on having an organization of the W. C. T. U. They had a meeting Saturday night and another Sunday night. The programme consisted of some good speaking, reading, music and declamations. The meetings will continue at stated intervals through the winter.

A couple of enterprising citizens, for want of something better to do these dull times, started a shooting gallery, and now the sharp crack of the rifle can be heard from early morn till dewy eve runs into midnight.

The Judge says that "Nat" has discovered that Protection reduces the price of commodities. No so, Judge; "Nat" made no such discovery. All our most able protection statesmen predicted that home competition would reduce prices more than foreign competition could. That their promise was true is fully shown to-day by the fact that protected American self goods in free trade England. Now, Judge!

DAYTON. Dec. 4, 1883.
Thanksgiving passed off quietly.
A large quantity of hay was shipped from here to Portland last week.
Dr. Mills continues to improve slowly.
Messrs. Burnell and Durham, of Portland, were in town last week.
Chas. Powell came down from Salem last Wednesday and spent Thanksgiving with his parents here, returning yesterday.

Born, at this place last Saturday night, to the wife of Wm. Sweeney, twins, both boys.
Our young friend, A. C. Gowdy, came up from Portland last Wednesday and spent Thanksgiving with his parents near here.
Rev. F. H. Asperhart and wife are the guests of J. T. Watson. They will leave for California soon.
Several of our young people indulged in a hop at Barker's Hall, last Saturday night.
The shooting match here last Wednesday under the management of Luth Fleiter, passed off quietly and pleasantly. A gentleman from St. Paul, whose name we did not learn, was the "boss" shot; he succeeded in winning 4 turkeys.

NORTH YAMHILL. Dec. 3, 1883.
Wm. Hodge is down from the Palouse country.
George Edwards has moved into Mrs. Morris' house in town.
Ball & Daniels are getting in some fine logs for next summer's run.
Jos. Griffin is down on a visit from the upper country.
James Roberts has sold out his interest in Laughlin & Co.'s store and will move back to Primeville soon.
E. G. Scheythe and wife left for their home in Kalama, last Saturday.
Laughlin & Co. have had their store overhauled and fixed up inside, which improves the looks of it very much.
Chas. Salfsky is having an addition built to his shoe shop, where he will open out a shoe store soon.
G. W. Sappington has had a fine post office case made and put into his store; the case contains 20 lock boxes—a great improvement over the old one.
The Thanksgiving hunt, at this place was a decided success. The participants came pouring in with their game until 9:30 p. m. They had a splendid supper and the best Bull ever given in North Yamhill. The talk of having the hunt over again between this and the 22nd of February.

T. S. Poindexter, of Eugene City, was in town several days last week, visiting his sister, Mrs. Wm. Morgan.

TRAVELER.

CARLTON. Dec. 3, 1883.
Hay, $16 per ton.
Wheat, 92 1/2 cts. clear.
Mrs. Whitmer, of Sheridan, is visiting relatives here.
We have some third street licks in our city; but the most enterprising thing in our town is our depot building. We think our place is entitled to a better building.

James Hendrix has rented his farm to Mr. Hargrove and has moved to Lafayette.
William Merchant gave a party to the young folks of this neighborhood, last Friday night, and it was a success, too. William knows how to make home pleasant for his children.

There is talk of an exhibition at this place soon.
Mrs. John W. McCullough is very sick.
Eber didn't catch the mink, but he knows how to ornament a gate post.
Yoursnowwho.

NEWBERG. Dec. 3, 1883.
The ground was white with a coat of snow a week ago yesterday morning, the first of the season.
Julius Hodson returned home on the 24th from the Normal school at Monmouth, and commenced a term of school a week ago today at the Stafford school house in Clackamas county.
Miss Samantha Winters has gone to Monmouth to attend the Normal school.

Rev. Mary Edwards went to Lafayette on Saturday to help in the temperance work.—She is one that is always willing and ready to give a helping hand for the spread of the Gospel or the advancement of the temperance work.
N. L. Wiley has rented the old home place for three years.
Wm. Jones is fixing up a grist mill in his old saw mill.

While two of Luke McKern's little boys, about 7 and 9 years old, were chopping wood a few days ago, the former accidentally cut the latter in the leg pretty badly.
Jesse Hobson has got a new wood shed, and is putting a new picket fence around his neat little cottage.

Albert Heaster has sold his interest in the steam saw mill to Hobson & Edwards.
The members of the different denominations had a Thanksgiving meeting last Thursday at the Friends' Church. It proved to be a glorious meeting; many souls that were cold were made warm, and almost every body praised Him, who made all things.—There is nothing like unity in a neighborhood.
Last Monday was the most disagreeable day of the season.

There was an animal seen a week or two ago that is supposed to be an elk. There has been several parties in search of the monster but we have not heard of its capture.—This is the first elk seen in this vicinity for years.
