DAYTON.

Jan. 22, 1884.
The roller-skating rink in Capt. Powell's warehouse is the attraction at present.

The serenade by the string band last Sunday night was a musical treat to those who heard it.

Miss Sarah Warters, of Portland, is here visiting relatives.

Rev. J. Hoberg, of Lafayette, was in town one day last week.

J. J. Shipley and wife have been visiting friends here during the past week.

Albert Cook, who has been in the employ of A. L. Saylor for some time past, resigned his position last Wednesday. He is succeeded by a young gentleman from Portland whose name we did not learn.

Dr. Howell, Lafayette's popular dentist, has been in town during the past few days.

Andrew Smith, Esq., a former resident of this place but now of Pine City, W. T., was here last Thursday visiting friends.

Minor Swick, an old and respected resident of this section, passed from this earth into that unknown land from which no traveler returns, last Sunday morning a few minutes after twelve o'clock. He arose Saturday morning in apparent good health but in a few minutes complained of being dizzy and told his son, Lyman, that he would have to go to town; in a few minutes he became unconscious and remained in that condition until death. Sunday evening at two o'clock he was laid in his last resting place in the cemetery here. He was born in Seneca county, N. Y., November 3rd, 1811, and came to this state in 1853, where he has since resided. He leaves several children to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted father. Mr. Swick, by an honorable and straight forward life, won the respect and confidence of all and many friends mourn his loss. His death was caused by congestion of the brain.

The cry of fire brought our citizens to the street last Thursday night when it was discovered that the grist mill owned by the Dayton Flouring Mills Co., was in flames. The fire had gained such headway that nothing could be done to check it and the large warehouse owned by the same company was also burned, together with a large quantity of wheat. The estimated losses are as follows:

D. F. M. Co.—mill, warehouse and about 100 cords of wood, $15,000; insured for $8,500; Duncan loss, 270 bushels of wheat, no insurance; M. Bannister, about 500 bushels of wheat, no insurance; A. Callan, 173 bushels of wheat, no insurance; B. E. Harris, $100 worth of tools and several minor losses. It was first reported that Mr. Callan had lost 1,000 bushels of wheat but it was soon found to be a mistake. The insurance on Mr. Ross' wheat expired on the 16th—just one day before the fire. The fire was first discovered in the engine house by Mr. A. Rossner at 11:30, p. m., and by 3:20 both buildings were entirely consumed. Opinions as to the cause differ, but if the report that the boiler was wrapped in sacks be true, the sacks burning probably caused it; but this theory is a trifle inconsistent, says Mr. Shephard, the agent for the company, as the fire started in the engine house till 8:20 Thursday night and when he left there was no indication that the sacks were burning, and as the fire was not noticed till after 11, it looks as though something else might have caused it. This is a severe loss to our town and one that we will not recover from soon.

LOUIS.

NORTH YAMHILL.

Jan. 22, 1884.
Hon. W. J. McConnell is home, from Moscow.

Mrs. H. C. Morgan has been quite sick for a week or two with a severe cold on her lungs.

I hear Mr. Delap intends building a new hotel near the Delap house in this place.

Miss Anna Hammersmith, of Moore's Valley, will visit friends in town for a week or two.

We were glad to see George Robison of McMinnville at Church, Sunday.

Rev. James Matthews, of your city, preached here yesterday. We believe the conference have decided for him not to preach here, hereafter.

Rev. H. C. Morgan left here this morning for Oregon City. He will remain a week or so, to help Rev. T. J. Jones in a protracted meeting, which he is engaged in.

Your informant regarding those coal mines must have been turned around, for the paper stated "Mr. Mayhew's farm, east of North Yamhill," when it is almost directly east.

Miss Mary Davis has gone to visit her sister, Mrs. Belle Baird, in the Hutchcroft neighborhood.

We notice a new sidewalk has been made from the Royal hotel to join the one at Dr. Haines'. If the rest of the people would do likewise it would be more pleasant getting around.

The hunt came off as expected: also the ball on Friday night. The points made by Jered Morris' side, were: Roe Tallman, 105; Jonas Howell, 118; Jap McKern, 96; Jered Morris, 284; L. L. Stillwell, 225; Hass Stott, 70; John Platt, 293; George Wright, 38; Goodie Morris, 115; Sappington's side: H. W. Sinton, 93; Dick Haines, 130; G. W. Sappington, 65; Geo. Haines, 150; Jen Long, 257; Ham McCoy, 188; John Dempsey, 236; Geo. Laughlin, 100; Frank Hoberg, 312; Thos Anderson, 213.

OSSEA.

NEWBERG.

Jan. 14, 1884.
It seems like spring time these warm days. The farmers on the rolling grounds are still plowing.

Grain, so far as I have seen, is looking splendid.

Fruit trees are already beginning to put forth their buds.

John Edwards is having a fine lot of grubbing done.

Born, Jan. 10th, to the wife of Lee Winters, a fine daughter.

Miss Lizzie Woodward has returned to Portland, where she is receiving medical treatment.

The steam saw mill has been stopped the last week, as the engine was out of order; but it is all right again, and the old iron horse now sports as big as ever.

Dr. Jessup is badly missed, this winter in this section, as we have to go to Lafayette or Middleton for a physician.

Miss Alma Hadley, who has been confined to the house and part of the time to the bed for the last four or five months, took a basket-ride last Saturday, but is some better at present.

Mrs. Garland was confined to the house with quincy last week, but is improving some at present. Her three children are down with scarlet fever, and the youngest one is quite low, but the other two are doing finely.

Frank Persey, who has been painting in this section for some time, made a boat two feet long for a lawyer in Portland, and received $25 for it. He has agreed to make another one four feet long for another man for $50.—The one he has made is a fine piece of work, being made entirely of cedar.

The Agricultural meeting, last Saturday, was good, although there were only a few present. The subject of "The Horse," was pretty well discussed. The subject for the next meeting, Feb. 9th, "Cattle, their treatment and breeding for profit," to be opened by E. H. Woodward.

Sammel and Jesse Hobson and Misses May Robertson, Carrie DeKam and Ella Hadley went to Lafayette last week to attend the County Lodge. They report a good time.

TETOTALER.

SHERIDAN.

Jan. 21, 1884.
Fine weather for this time of year.

The farmers in this vicinity are starting a few plows.

Miss Ollie Cane has been quite sick for the past two weeks.

Solomon Mathison, of East Portland, was in town on business, during the week.

W. L. Bradshaw and Sheriff Collard, of Lafayette, were in town one day last week.

We noticed on our streets, one day last week a "what is it," in human form, and wore a man's hat.

A small fire in town the 14th, was discovered and extinguished before much harm was done.

The citizens of Sheridan met at Anderson's hall on the 16th, and took the preliminary steps toward organizing a fire company.

Uncle Ab Faulconer and daughter, who started for California a few weeks ago, returned on the 14th. He hadn't lost any salt "chuck," and returned to Sheridan for safety. "There's no place like home," Uncle Ab.

The blacksmiths have become dissatisfied with their locations, for some cause not known to us, and changed positions, J. W. James moving into the building occupied by H. H. Grindle, and vice versa.

PAT LANSER.

LAFAYETTE.

Jan. 25, 1884.
James McCain has just recovered from a severe attack of asthma.

The Dayton mill and warehouse burned down last week, but I suppose you know all about it before this.

There was something suspicious about the Register office, the other night. A couple of men passing heard a terrible clattering of feet and banging of doors, and the Judge was seen to hastily put out the lights. Our two observers ran to the door, intending to go in and see what was the matter, but there was no need of going inside, for there hanging on the door knob, was a set of woman's hoops, as if some female, in a hasty retreat had caught her crinoline and had to leave it for want of time to take it along. Oh, Judge, Judge! don't do it any more.

A. M. Waddle, of Broadmead farm, was in town Saturday, looking as stalwart as ever.

The Woman's Rights Association for Yamhill county had their meeting here last week. I was not able to attend, but learn that the meeting was very entertaining and social.—The only complaint heard comes from some of the young temperance gentlemen, who claim that the "whisky element" got away with all the girls, and that they, the cold water element, had to stomp home alone.

"Junius" and the "Liquor Question."

EN. REPORTER:—In your issue of Jan. 16th one "Junius" takes it upon himself to advise people to consider before they commit themselves to prohibition. It is evident that he has not considered the question, or he would not so free with his advice, for, let me say to him that the prohibitionists have considered the subject in all its bearings. Prohibition is not a new idea; it has been under consideration for many years. "Junius" says "I hold there is no law that will prohibit the sale of liquor." Admitted. Neither is there any law which prohibits theft, murder, &c.; therefore we should petition the legislature to repeal all laws against these things? What is the use of having laws which are constantly violated? Any one can see the result of such a proceeding. But perhaps "Junius" will say people who violate the laws are punished. So would the violators of prohibitory laws be punished. "Junius" certainly must be ignorant of the facts when he says of prohibition "in every instance it has proved a failure." Now let me give him the facts in the case: In the Oregonian of the 11th of Jan. we find the following: "Violating the liquor law in Kansas is rather a costly kind of business. In Pottawatomie county recently a saloon keeper, having been committed on twenty counts was fined $100 on each count and on the 21st count the court committed him to jail until the fine was paid." The same paper goes on to say that another saloon keeper was convicted on 13 counts and fined $100 and costs on each and sent to jail. Another saloon keeper got $1,100 in fines and a month in jail. "Upon twenty dealers the court imposed fines aggregating $7,500 and $3,000 costs and ninety days in jail." I imagine these dealers did not consider the law a "failure." I would advise before he makes such sweeping declarations, "but he says further that prohibition causes "depression in business and a depreciation in property value," and cites Forest Grove as an example. Now, I do not know anything about Forest Grove, but if there is any business depression there it is safe to say it is not caused by the absence of saloons, and next week, by your permission, I will give some facts to disprove the theory that saloons are necessary to the prosperity of any community. By the way, what a slur that is in "Junius'" article on the drug store at Forest Grove, and the farmer. He advises people who wish to reclaim men from vice to throw open their doors to strangers and give them a cordial welcome.

Now, Mr. "Junius," again proves that he has not considered the question. These men of whom he speaks prefer the saloon, its company and surroundings to anything nobler and better, and though some of them may not be drunkards they may be on the high road to that state. Many a man who has a good home and pleasant surroundings, spends his evenings at the saloons.
