McMinnville to the Front.

For years a man has been working in one of the southern counties of Oregon upon a ship which shall float in air, and now he is confident that he has attained the desired end. His name is A. C. Speer and he lives at Woodville, Jackson county, a town set in twain by that branch of the Southern-Pacific railroad known as the Shasta route. Mr. Speer believes that his new craft should be exhibited during the midwinter fair in this city, and he is endeavoring to make arrangements to have it shown.

He had hoped that it might float around over the White City at Chicago, but when the Columbian exposition opened there were still several details that needed attention, and he did not like to place before the public an article upon which he had expended so much care and attention, to say nothing of money, with even a remote possibility of failure.

But now the builder says that his airship is complete, that it can be made to mount or descend at the will of the navigator, and that it can be propelled in any direction either with or against the wind. Mr. Speer says that it is also adapted to passenger traffic and can carry a certain number of persons from place to place with as much comfort and at a greater speed than the trains that roll along upon the earth's surface.

Like most inventors Mr. Speer is reluctant to go into details as to the method of the working of the machinery which propels the ship, but he has given sufficient information to the Call to enable its readers to form a fair idea of what he expects his novel vessel to do. In selecting a material with which to construct the airship the Oregon builder has taken a step in advance of those who have tried to construct craft which would travel above the earth. He at once discarded all ideas of gutta percha or silk, out of which balloons are made, because of the danger to these coverings by flame and by being punctured. So he looked around for a metal that would answer his purpose, and finally decided upon aluminum.

Out of this light substance he constructed a cigar-shaped spheroid 65 feet long and 18 feet in diameter. Although aluminum is very strong yet he believed that it should be reinforced, and as metal ribs would add too much weight he decided to cover the surface with bamboo rods. This network proved just what he needed. It added great strength without increasing the weight to any great extent.

The motors are of a design upon which Mr. Speer has bestowed great care. One is placed at each end of the airship, and they resemble as much as anything the fans which are placed in the walls of buildings and operated by electricity, force air currents through the edifice. These propellers work upon movable shafts—that is they can be turned so as to force the vessel up, down, to the right or to the left, ahead or astern. The motive power is electricity, carried in storage batteries.

Attached to the bottom of this craft is a light car made of bamboo. In one compartment is the battery and the machinery which directs the moving of the propellers, in the other room for passengers.

Mr. Speer finds that with his aluminum vessel of the size described he can carry a burden of 1000 pounds in addition to the weight of the machinery. In the compartment in which passengers are to travel he proposes to store a number of weights equal to 1000 pounds in all. When passengers enter the car certain weights will be placed on terra firma and the ship will then be in equipoise. It will not be necessary to throw out ballast to ascend above obstacles, such as trees and hills, for a deflection of the shaft of one of the propellers will cause the ship to rise. And so in descending it will not be necessary to allow gas to escape, the upward bend of the propeller shaft doing the work.

Stations will be arranged at different points at which the airship will stop and at the places weights will be kept. As the passengers leave the car these will be placed on board, so that at all times a perfect equipoise will be maintained.

The inventor claims that the aluminum vessel is perfectly airtight and that it is impossible for any gas to escape.

He is so confident of the success of his invention that he courts investigation by those who are interested in the question of aerial navigation and says that any queries sent to him at his home, in Woodville, will be promptly answered.—S. F. Call.

FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Dayton Herald.
Dr. E. M. Smith, of Indiana, will arrive here about the 10th of January, and locate here for the practice of medicine.

L. Getz who just came down from Eastern Oregon, had some fine potatoes shipped to him from there, called "Umatilla." He brought a specimen along with him, which he left at the Herald office. The potatoes measured 14 inches in length and weighed five pounds. Who can beat this?

The Herald has moved to new quarters on Alder street, just back of where the office was formerly located.

Improvement is the order of the day. Notwithstanding the cry of "hard times" there is, and has been considerable building and improvements made in and about Dayton this season.

E. Petty who was kicked by one of Wm. Cain's horses last week, and his arm broken, has taken the splints off his arm, and the fracture is rapidly knitting together.

Last week a young man in this vicinity went to bring a young lady who lives about two miles in the country, to the Friday night dance. On his way back to Dayton with the young lady, she informed him that she would dance with him, but that she would return home with another young man, who the gentleman with whom she was riding, did not consider a proper person with whom to associate, or a young lady to keep company. The young man, to make sure that he heard aright, asked the young lady if she really meant to go home with the person mentioned. She replied that she did. The gentleman immediately turned his horse in the road, and invited the young woman to alight from the buggy, which she did, being then about half way to Dayton. The young man drove on to town, leaving the young woman to follow on foot.

Wm. Bowley has a petition in circulation for the organization of a fire company. Over 40 persons have signed the call.

Uncle Billy Chapman is deepening the waste race of the milling company's ditch in order to drain his land above town on the bottom.

Mr. Gosser of the Sims ranch received two savage German boar dogs last Wednesday. As there are no wild hogs here to hunt, the dogs will probably be used to chase China pheasant hunters off the ranch.

One day last week, F. B. Churchman, Geo. Evans and R. L. Bewley went down the Yamhill river on a hunting trip. Three honkers, nine ducks, thirteen teal, a kingfisher, seven wild pigeons and two muskrats were bagged by our crack shots. Roswell's fine water spaniel chased one of the wounded rats nearly two hundred yards down the stream, and got it and crawled out on the bank and waited until the boat came up, when it laid the rodent at its master's feet.

The confectionery and cigar store has again changed hands. This time Harry Edmiston is the happy owner and the Olds Bros. step down and out.

Bessie, the little daughter of J. L. Vickrey, while playing on the south porch of their residence last Tuesday evening, accidentally fell to ground a distance of about two feet, and broke both bones of the right arm near the wrist. The child did not seem to be in much pain as the injury was not noticed for an hour after the accident. When, on being undressed for bed, Mr. Vickrey noticed the arm was broken. Dr. Mi-

CHATELAIN VALLEY FRUIT IN '93.
Some figures relative to the fruit crop of 1893 in Chatelain valley, or that part of it tributary to Newberg, will no doubt be interesting to our readers. We have been able to gather the following facts concerning the fruit crop which we believe are reliable, and which, in view of a short crop in some varieties, makes an excellent showing for the year. Owing to the low price for small fruits last spring, the amount shipped was not as great as it would otherwise have been, but probably not fewer than a thousand crates were shipped from Dundee, Newberg and Springbrook. Springbrook alone sent about five hundred crates. Add to this another thousand crates put up for home consumption, and the showing in the small fruit line is very good.

Owing to the fact that the cherry crop was quite short, and most of the trees just coming into bearing, not much of this fruit was shipped, but there was raised sufficient for home use.

Of apples and pears, which are not generally considered a very important crop, there have been shipped from this section this fall, at least 8,000 boxes, M. J. Hampton having shipped more than 3,500 boxes alone. It would be impossible to estimate very accurately the number of boxes of winter apples held for a later market or for home use, but probably 2,000 boxes would be sufficiently low to make it absolutely safe. This gives us 10,000 boxes of apples, which will average at least 50 cents per box, or $5,000. When we consider that very few, comparatively, are raising apples, and a majority of those in old orchards, moss grown and worm eaten, it makes a pretty favorable showing in the apple line.

Probably 2,000 boxes of peach plums, gross pounds, etc., were shipped during the season adding quite materially to the amount of money received for fruit. Of this amount Dunbar Bros. shipped 500 boxes from their orchard, netting a dollar or more per box.

The prune crop, which is the staple in this valley, was taken altogether, a pretty fair crop for young trees, and though the early rains injured the fruit in many orchards, it was generally saved without much loss, and in good condition. These, of course were dried for shipment. An inquiry at the various dryers in and near town shows about 64 tons of dried fruit as the output, four or five tons of which were plums and apples, the remainder being prunes. Of this amount C. E. Hoskins dried near 19 tons, J. H. Bowerman, 10 tons, Bray, Dixon & Co. 15 tons, Chas. Mitchell 6 tons, Mills Bros. 6 tons, Wm. Allen 5 tons, and Paul Macy 4 tons. The price received for prunes this year was lower than any year previous, but it will average at least 75 cents per pound, aggregating $3,200 to $3,700 for dried fruit alone.

When we think that this section is only a few miles in extent, and that at least one-fourth of it is still covered with forest, that many acres of the cleared land is in grass, that 60,000 to 70,000 bushels of grain have been grown in this section this year, and that not more than one-fourth of the orchards are in bearing, we can get some conception of what sort of a country is tributary to Newberg, and form some idea of its possibilities for the future. All our people have to do is to hold on to what they have, tide over the hard times as best they can and wait for the good time that is surely coming.—Newberg Graphic.

College Notes.
L. Alderman is confined at home this week on account of the illness of his mother. Mr. Alderman is greatly missed when absent.

Four new classes started this week: a class in chemistry, physics and rhetoric. The rhetoric class is very large.

Misses Edith Brown and Georgia Storey, who have each just completed a successful term of school, have returned to the McMinnville college to pursue their studies.

A local oratorical association will soon be organized. Its object will be to make preparation for the coming state contest, and advance student oratory.

The Philergian society was not held the 23d ult, as announced, as most of the students were planning to start home Saturday morning. The program will be rendered next Saturday evening.

Mr. E. M. Underwood, a senior of the University of Oregon, was at the college Wednesday of last week. Mr. Underwood is president of the Inter-Collegiate Oratorical association and says that most of the other colleges of the state are about ready for the local contest. It is time for McMinnville to get to work in earnest.

J. P. Mellett, a Cherry-Valley, Washington, logger is getting out a stick of fir timber for the midwinter fair that is 130 feet long and thirty-six inches square.

Friends familiar with the circumstances of Mrs. Schuyler Colfax, the widow of the late Vice-President Colfax, declare that the failure of the Independence National bank has entirely swept away the small fortune left by her husband, which was invested in the ruined institution.

Patrick Eugene Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, was convicted of murder on the 29th, after the jury was out one hour. On the reading of the verdict the prisoner turned pale, but could not speak, and would have fallen but for the assistance of a bailiff. The opinion is general throughout the land that it was a righteous verdict.

The body of Lucy Stone was incinerated Saturday in the cemetery at Forest Hill, Mass. It was the first cremation in this resort or in the state. It was just 2:30 when the remains were placed in the retort. At 3 o'clock nothing but a pile of ashes remained. The ashes will be placed in an urn and delivered to Dr. Blackwell, the husband of Mrs. Stone.

The notorious outlaw, Chris Evans, escaped from the Fresno, Cal., jail on the 28th, by the treachery of a waiter who drew a revolver on the jailer and demanded him to hold up his hands. Both Evans and the waiter escaped to the mountains and have not been found. No reward is offered and the pursuit is half-hearted.

Word has gone forth among the unemployed of Chicago that those who will not work may not eat at public expense. The first result is expected to be a great dropping off in the number of people who have been filling the soup-houses and free lodgings. All who are not able to work will be taken care of. Those who can work, but will not, hereafter will have to shift for themselves. Of 1,500 asked to work, but one-third responded.

Secretary of State Osborne, of Kansas, has prepared a circular in which he advocates laws making two hours per day the limit of work of each man. He holds that labor-saving machinery has made such progress that one man is now able to do as much work as twenty 75 years ago, and he believes that over-production is responsible for the idleness of millions today. This he holds would be done away with if two hours would be made the day's work limit.

W. H. Mills, land agent of the Central Pacific, says there is no danger of the Southern Pacific going into the hands of receivers. Its bonded indebtedness is about $88,000,000 for 5000 miles of road, while that of the Atchison & Topeka is $300,000,000. The latter road has merely its main line traffic to support it, while the Southern Pacific has many feeders which assist its main line, and, with the possible exception of a system or two in the East, he says there is no road on the continent today which is so solid financially and so prepared to meet all emergencies as the Southern Pacific.

All the assessment rolls of Oregon for the year 1893 have been received by the secretary of state, and the result is as follows:
Gross taxable property, $178,815,604
Net taxable property, 169,655,513
TOTALS FOR 1892.
As assessed by state board, $228,398,617
Deduction for debt, 60,063,323
Exemptions, 8,129,711
TOTALS FOR 1891.
Gross assessment, $156,390,278
Deduction for debt, 64,403,863
Exemptions, 7,960,303
Net total, 125,026,112

The effect of the new law is shown in the difference between the net and gross returns for 1892 and '93. This difference in 1892 was $64,612,374. In 1893 the difference is only $9,160,091. The increase in net total taxable property returned for 1893 is $38,063,117 over 1892.

E. W. Hadley, receiver of the Oregon Pacific, unconditionally resigned on the 1st.
