The most unfortunate man in the democratic party this year will be the one who happens finally to have that tariff bill called by his name.

The sugar trust has a stronger hold upon the democratic party than anything has had since the days when the slave power used to control it.

There is little more left of the original Wilson bill than there was of the man's gun that had been mended so much that nothing remained of it but the touch-hole.

ABOUT the only legacy which the democratic party will leave when it is driven into retirement on March 4th, 1897, will be dearer sugar and a largely increased national debt.

The faith of the democratic party is pledged to Ed Hendricks for a second term, provided his record shows competent and efficient service. He can have no possible claim on a single republican voter.

We have been asked whether Nathan Pierce, the populist candidate for governor, is not the same who last year leased and farmed a large portion of the Umatilla reservation. We have made some inquiry, and whether that is true or not, Pierce is cultivating 2,500 acres of the reservation this year.

All that republicans have to do to win a clean victory in the coming election is to stand together and vote straight. If ever there was a time when the plea for the straight ticket could be urged in all good conscience, it is the case now.

In the first place, the republican ticket, from governor and member of congress to constable of the remotest precinct of Yamhill county, is clean, capable and honorable. A ticket freer from the dictum of bosses and machine politics was never nominated by the party.

would probably turn the tide against the passage of the tariff bill.

WHAT do you say, democrats, to coming over and training with a party that stands for protection that will protect? What is the use of being a protectionist unless you are a good one?

THE Salem Journal indulges in the following caustic but just criticism of Penoyer. In theory Penoyer has been a reformer. In practice he has himself joined in extravagance and taken all that was in sight for himself, as nearly every body else seems to have done.

REFERING to an item in the Reporter a couple of weeks ago, relative to organizing a home fire insurance company, the Newberg Graphic has something to say that is very much to the purpose.

E. J. CRAWFORD of Eugene, who is an old Yamhiller and a reader of the Reporter, writes to say a few words concerning our delegation in congress, and without being that personal he says some things that every one will recognize as sound and true on general principles.

ALL manufacturers buy wool on a clean basis, hence quotations for comparisons in different countries should be made on clean wool, and if this is done it will be seen that wool of the same quality is worth as much in the United States as in Australia at the present time, and as free wool is democratic doctrine, wool is being bought and sold in this country now at free trade prices.

WE hope wool-growers will read Mr. Kay's article in this week's Reporter and then pass it along to their free trade neighbors. He knows what he is talking about, having been for several years interested in buying and manufacturing wool and selling woolen goods.

To err is human. To correct an error before any serious results follow, is good management, hence the political foes of the present efficient county clerk are not making any great amount of capital from the alleged error.

WOOL AND THE TARIFF.

TO THE REPORTER I have heard it said by democratic speakers and have also seen quotations in democratic papers, that wool was worth 15 cents per pound in Australia, and but 10 cents in this country, from which they draw the conclusion that wool is higher in Australia than in the United States, and that the tariff is a farce.

I consider these quotations unfair and misleading, for several reasons. First, they are taken from the papers published in Melbourne and Sydney, the leading commercial cities in Australia, and are general quotations representing a country as large as the United States, and should be compared with the quotations of Boston or Philadelphia, the leading wool markets of this country, and not with the price of wool in some part of Oregon, regardless of shrinkage or quality.

Wool in Oregon in the grease is worth from 6 to 11 cents. Wool in Colorado is worth from 12 to 15 cents. Wool in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, etc., is worth from 14 to 18 cents. In other states different prices. Hence the injustice of saying that wool in the United States is worth 10 cents because that is the price in Oregon.

Now the answer to this question will answer the question so often asked, why is wool higher in Australia than the United States? Mr. Weatherford said in his speech last Saturday evening that wool in Australia was worth 15 cents in the grease and 27 to 28 cents clean. This shows that this wool does not shrink over 45 per cent. Now, wool raised in Oregon shrinks from 65 to 80 per cent and is worth from 6 to 8 cents.

The fact that wool in Australia which sold for 15 cents per pound two years ago, sells for 13 cents per pound now, and wool that sold in the United States two years ago (in republican times) at 20 cents sells now for 10 cents per pound, it would appear as if the tariff were not all buncombe.

If a person wishes to see Oregon represented in the U. S. senate by Sylvester Penoyer, a vote for either the democratic or populist candidates will further their wish.

WEATHERFORD, in his speech Saturday night, showed his own disposition toward candor and honesty by quoting Blaine to show that for ten years under the democratic tariff law of 1846 the country was fairly prosperous. Blaine may have said that, but everyone whose memory reaches as far back, remembers what a crash came in 1857. The country was prostrate until the republicans took up the reins in 1860 and began to legislate in the interest of this country.

THOROUGHLY DISREPUTABLE.

The democratic central committee met last Thursday and decided not to fill the vacancy in its legislative ticket caused by the declination of Mr. Burch. We do not understand that the committee had any right to decide that the ticket should not be filled, but it could decline to perform the duty entrusted to it by the nominating convention. That is what it did, simply that and nothing more.

This action on the part of the democratic committee is not very creditable from the standpoint of clean politics. It is thoroughly disreputable. It can only be characterized as an open and brazen attempt to accomplish by disreputable methods that which is confessedly out of reach by legitimate and proper methods.

Where the scheme is likely to fail, we think is in the size of the run of suckers at the June election.

OVER THE TRACES.

Harper's Weekly has defended the democratic tariff bill through thick and thin, being an ardent defender for "tariff reform" and willing to accept anything less iniquitous to its mugwump sensibilities than McKinleyism. But the latest phase of the tariff measure as developed by the four hundred senate amendments, is too much for its "reform" proclivities.

"The tariff bill as it stands is a surrender to the protectionists. That it is better than the McKinley law is all that any one can say in favor of it. The professions and pledges of the democratic party are violated in nearly every schedule. It is not only a protection measure, but in some respects it is more prohibitory than any law except the McKinley act that the protected trusts and monopolists have devised.

"The bill has now been remade for the fourth time. It was bettered in the house, passing over for the moment the adding of the income tax; it was changed by the subcommittee not greatly; it was made much worse by the finance committee; and now by the addition of more than four hundred amendments it is brought so near to McKinleyism that the leading republican protectionists in the senate are taunting the democrats with finally yielding to their principle.

"Whether honest and true democrats will consent that this bill shall become a law if it passes the senate is a matter for their serious consideration. Whichever way they may decide it, the outlook for their party is full of doubt."

REPUBLICANS should keep their eyes open for the "campaign liar," one of those fellows who bob up suddenly just before election with a great tale of woe regarding this or that candidate. He also tells how this or that candidate's friends are going to knife some certain fellow on the ticket. This liar is abroad in the land now and will call on you all before election day, but don't you believe him; just vote your ticket straight and you will be all right.

Invalid 3 Years, Cured by Hood's

"I had a low fever, and was unable to get on my feet. I was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result is that I am well as any one could wish to be, and can do any kind of work. I advise all my friends to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for I believe it will do them good."

"I said There Was No Use. However, after thinking the matter over, I decided to give it a trial, and have taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result is that I am well as any one could wish to be, and can do any kind of work. I advise all my friends to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for I believe it will do them good."

duce their prices on the same lines of goods. This reduction in prices will either cause manufacturers to reduce the price which they pay for labor or close their mills altogether. If they reduce wages, laboring men and their families must be the sufferers. If they close down their mills, laboring men are thrown out of work and deprived of all means of support.

Man's Inhumanity to Himself. The most inhuman outrages, outrages that would disgrace the savage, man perpetrates upon his own system, by allowing drastic purgatives which scourge his stomach, agonize his intestines and weaken his system. Many people constantly do this under the impression that medicines only which are violent in their action, and particularly cathartics, are of any avail.

W. G. Henderson of McMinnville, republican nominee for sheriff, was in Amity Wednesday. He gave the Blade a call while in town. Laying politics aside we have this to say for Mr. Henderson: If elected to the office to which he aspires, this country will have an upright, honest and impartial sheriff.
