The Corvallis police are evidently poor ghosts. A fellow named Scott got in trouble in a saloon one evening last week, and was arrested by the chief of police. On the way to jail the prisoner broke away and got behind a telegraph pole. The prisoner fired, the chief fired, and five of his assistants fired, in all seventeen shots, not one of which found its mark. Ed Warren was one of the deputies, and the first to capture the prisoner, who took refuge in a woodpile, where Ed had run him down. Scott snatched his pistol twice as Ed approached, but it failed to work. The prisoner now awaits trial, on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

These tiny, sugar-coated pellets—the smallest and the easiest to take—absolutely and permanently cure Constipation, Indigestion, Sick and Bilious Headaches, Dizziness, Bilious Attacks and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

They cure PERMANENTLY, because they act NATURALLY. They don't shock and weaken the system, like the huge, old-fashioned pills. And they're more effective. One little pellet for a corrective or laxative—three for a cathartic.

They're the CHEAPEST pills you can buy, for they're so ANGRIVELY to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the good you get.

PORTLAND ON SUNDAY.—The steamer Toledo ran an excursion to Portland from Lafayette on Sunday. The band and a few others went from this place. A few were on board from North Yamhill, Lafayette, Dayton and way points, making in all a company of about 75. The band left at 5 a. m. and arrived in the flooded city just in time for divine services in the morning. The flood, of course, was the center of attraction. The excursionists took boats and traversed the inundated district. The city was unusually quiet and apparently despondent. But few street cars were running, the power houses having been incapacitated by water. The flood had gone down about seven inches from its highest register on the Friday previous. The Holton house was fairly "in the swim," and the water stood just below the restaurant floor of the Hotel Perkins. The view from the "Height" was sublime. Vancouver, in the distance, seemed to have found a watery grave, and the great expanse of water below the junction of the Willamette was in some places twenty miles wide. There was just room enough under the Madison street bridge (the uppermost of the four bridges) to allow boatmen to row under by stooping. The Morrison street bridge was for the most part out of the water. The New Eastmond hotel, at the west approach of the bridge, was standing in water above the dock knobs, the same being the condition of all of Front street below this point and for some distance above. All boats were landing at the narrow gauge depot. Most of the business houses removed their goods to upper stories or to higher streets, but occasionally a firm was caught napping, and its wares were badly submerged. It was estimated that 1500 row boats were plying the streets. Financially, the situation is serious, though the city papers are endeavoring to make it appear otherwise for the good of the place and the encouragement of the people. With the settling of the chamber of commerce building, a loss of several hundred thousand dollars will be entailed, and there were rumors of disaster to other buildings. The salvation of the city has been in the fact that the water is still. The most noticeable damage was to sidewalks and fences, and much effort had been put forth to prop and weight them down, but in many places they rested bodily on the surface of the water. It is estimated the city will be damaged by as high as three millions, while untold damage will result to the Union Pacific railroad along the Columbia, and the farms, habitations and industries along the river.

He Knew Its Worth.

Dr. M. J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for the past thirty-five years. On the 20th of May, while in Des Moines, en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of cholera. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability, he procured a 25-cent bottle, two doses of which completely cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhoea. Everyone should procure a bottle of this Remedy before leaving home. For sale by S. H. Worth & Co.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT THE COLLEGE.

Tuesday afternoon at the college chapel were the ivy exercises. Mr. Loder delivered the ivy oration, pointing out in an interesting manner the similarities between his class and the ivy that the class had planted. It was a creditable effort. Miss Edna Scofield presented the class history. Miss Scofield has come to be recognized as one of the best writers in the college, and maintained her high reputation by combining wit and fact in a happy union. The class prophecy was read by Nellie Latourette. She reported what the prophet had told her concerning various members of the class. Most of them seem destined to hold positions of honor.

The graduating exercises were unusually attractive because of the large class. Two members constituted the largest previous class; this class consisted of nine. Admission to the main floor was by ticket. This doubtless kept many away. Unusual efforts were made to seat the people that came. Extra seats were made and chairs borrowed so that the chapel never had as many seated in it on any previous occasion. In spite of these efforts many stood all the evening. The following program was rendered:

It was a departure to have music furnished by other parties than the students. The orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Toyney did some fine playing and was highly appreciated. Miss Bryant argued that self-made men are highly praised chiefly because they are so rare. Ninety-nine out of every hundred that try self-education fail, the hundredth man is justly praised. Most people in praising this man forget that he worked hard and along the same lines that he would if he had gone to college.

Miss Cary made a strong and timely plea for college graduates to enter the public schools as teachers that they might improve our school system; that they might do more thorough teaching than is found in many of the schools, and that they might inspire a large number of boys and girls to take a deeper interest in higher education.

Wirt Fellows, under a unique heading, discussed some of the relations that ought to exist between the members of society. He argued that people ought to take more interest in their manners and morals in order that they may be helpful to each other and to the world. It was generally admitted that Mr. Fellows did the best speaking that he has ever done at the college.

In one respect Mr. Loder surpassed all others, in showing an interest in his subject. He spoke with great animation, pointing out how science has overthrown many superstitions that once ruled people in many lands. Mr. Loder has gained a high position the last two years as a speaker, and never spoke better.

Miss Lynch chose a large but popular subject. She argued that the future of this country rests upon the development of transportation facilities, especially by water, the character of its people and the interest taken in higher education. As a speaker Miss Lynch excels in grace of movement and in gesture.

Miss Millon traced the influence that literature and commerce have each had upon the other; showing especially that commerce has always had a close relation to the growth of literature. It was one of the best orations of the evening.

Miss Pagenkopf made an especially effective plea for the education of the girls, showing that there was every reason for their education that could be urged in favor of that of the boys.

Mr. Scott discussed the things that had taken place since the discovery of America, especially in the line of government.

Mr. Latourette chose a popular subject and discussed it in an effective way. The oration gave special evidence of wide reading in current literature. He argued that America was in danger from over-valuation, and that more care ought to be had in developing the American citizen. America has become a polished much, but there is yet room for further advance, especially in building up a national spirit, educating public opinion and establishing an intellectual superiority.

It has been difficult to characterize each oration as to delivery, as the entire class did good speaking. Perhaps it is just to say that Mr. Loder, Miss Pagenkopf and Mr. Latourette succeeded better than the others in seeming to be thoroughly interested in their subjects. The class as a whole gave many favorable comments from good judges.

President Brownson in a short and fitting speech conferred the degrees upon the class. That of B. S. upon Miss Bryant, Miss Cary, Mr. Loder, Miss Lynch, Miss Millon and Miss Pagenkopf; that of B. L. upon Mr. Fellows and Mr. Scott, and that of A. B. upon Mr. Latourette.

Taken as a whole the commencement exercises seemed to have surpassed in interest those of any preceding year.

Are You Insured?

If not, now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as an insurance against any serious results from an attack of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is almost certain to be needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place or do its work. 25 and 50-cent bottles for sale by S. H. Worth & Co.

Crossing the Atlantic.

Usually involves sea sickness. When the waters play pluck and lose touch with you, strong indeed must be the stomach that can stand it without revolting. Tourists, commercial travelers, yachtsmen, mariners, all testify that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best remedy for the nausea experienced in rough weather on the water. Nervous and weakly travelers by land often suffer from something akin to this, and find in the Bitters its surest remedy. No disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels is so obstinate that it may not be overcome by the prompt and thorough remedy. Equally efficacious is it for chills and fever, kidney and rheumatic trouble and nervousness. Emigrants to the frontier should provide themselves with this fine medicinal safeguard against the effects of vicissitudes of climate, hardship, exposure and fatigue.
