THE GRAVE DIGGER.

Oh, the shambling sea is a sexton old, And well his work is done. With an equal grave for lord and knave,

Then hoy and rip, with a rolling hip, He makes for the nearest shore, And God, who sent him a thousand ship, Will send him a thousand more. But some he'll save for a bleaching grave And shoulder them in to shore-

Oh, the ships of Greece and the ships of Went out, and where are they? In the port they made they are delayed With the ships of yesterday.

He followed the ships of England far, As the ships of long ago, And the ships of France they led him a But he laid them all arow.

Oh, a loafing, idle lubber to him Is the sexton of the town, For sure and swift, with a guiding lift, He shovels the dead men down

But, though he delves so fierce and grim, The dredge of the deepest tide.

Oh, he works with a rollicking stave at lip, And loud is the chorus skirled! With the burly rote of his rumbling throat He batters it down the world.

He learned it once in his father's house, Where the ballads of old were sung, And merry enough is the burden rough, But no man knows the tongue.

Oh, fair, they say, was his bride to see, And willful she must have been That she could bide at his grewsome side When the first red dawn came in!

And sweet, they say, is her kiss to those

Oh, crooked is he, but strong enough To handle the tallest mast.

From the royal bark to the slaver dark He buries them all at last.

Then hoy and rip, with a rolling hip, He makes for the nearest shore, And God, who sent him a thousand ship, Will send him a thousand more.

But some he'll save for a bleaching grave, And shoulder them in to shore— Shoulder them in, shoulder them in, Shoulder them in to shore. —Bliss Carman in Atlantic Monthly.

The Pikeman and His Weapon

The pikeman was covered with defensive armor, an iron headpiece, iron HETTIE L. TOLSON, Plaintiff.

'back and breast" and "tasses," a kind of iron apron protecting him from waist to knee. He carried a pike 16 feet long, with an ashen shaft, an iron head and a blunt iron spike at the butt end, whereby to fix it in the ground, and besides the pike a rapier. The pike, from its great length, was a weapon which required deft handling in order to be of effective use, and, as may be imagined, was excessively showy
