THE prices of hogs have fallen about $1 per 100 pounds since the new tariff bill took effect and the reciprocity treaties were abrogated.

DIES for the World's fair medals will be completed this month, and about Nov. 1st, stamping will begin. Some time in February the medals will all have been struck off.

LET the Japs and Chinese alone. Most assuredly as long as the smaller dog, the favorite, the most civilized and progressive is on top. The shaking up of the Chinese empire means the spread of world progress and enlightenment. It will be time for other nations to interfere when the interests of civilization are in jeopardy, and not till then.

CONSIDERABLY more than 500,000 bushels of potatoes, weighing 31,745 tons, were brought from Scotland to the United States in nine months, ending in June, and this, too, notwithstanding a protective duty of 25 cents per bushel on imported potatoes. This fact is set out in a report to the state department by United States Consul Savage at Dundee, Scotland.

A LETTER received at the republican headquarters, says a Washington dispatch, from one of the largest wool commission houses in the country, gives some very interesting figures upon the condition of the American wool market since the passage of the tariff act. It is stated that in fine wool and merino, which constitute 75 per cent of the American wool clip, there has been a decline in price from 11 per cent to 16 per cent within the thirty-five days since the tariff bill passed and wool was put on the free list. The decline on all kinds of wool since the advent of the Cleveland administration and the subsequent prospect of free wool has been over 37 per cent, and during that time the decline on fine wool alone has exceeded 40 per cent. "Although wools are advancing in Europe," says the communication, "American wools are still going down, and that at a time when our mills are the busiest woolen mills in the world, for they have free raw material and the McKinley law protection in operation until January 1, 1895."

THE changes that have taken place in the last quarter of a century in the matter of railroad freights is thus summarized in an article in the Scientific American: The all-rail rate on grain from Chicago to New York, which was 70 cents per hundred pounds in 1869, is but one-third that amount in 1894. The rate on live stock and dressed beef was 95 cents in 1872 and 45 cents in 1894. The dry goods from New York to San Francisco in 1860 paid $6.50 per 100 pounds and in 1894 one-half that sum. Carloads of fruit from California to the Atlantic seaboard cost $4.20 per 100 pounds in 1869 and $1 per 100 pounds in 1894. Dry goods from New York to Chicago were charged $1.50 per 100 pounds in 1869, 75 cents in 1894. In 1869 the N. Y. C. R. R. averaged 2 cents per ton per mile on all its traffic, while the average now is 7 mills per ton per mile; the Illinois Central charges have in like manner fallen from 2½ cents to 9 mills per mile, and the Louisville and Nashville from 3 3-10 to 1 cent. Ocean freights have fallen in equal measure. Wheat which paid 13 cents per bushel from New York to Liverpool in 1869 is now being carried for 4½ cents. Inventions, machinery, and competition have done it.

IT is a mistake to consider the affiliation of the Louisiana sugar planters with the protection party as a matter of sudden impulse inspired solely by resentment against recent democratic legislation. The upheaval began in Louisiana ten years ago when that state was swept by a wave of enthusiasm for Blaine and protection to American industries. There is no doubt that Lousiana gave a majority for Blaine for president and Stevenson for governor, but as Blaine failed of election little protest was made against the count by which the verdict was reversed. Following that campaign bulldozing and blandishments were employed, according to circumstances, to bring the recalcitrants into line, and as a last resort the specter of negro power was conjured up whenever another outcropping of republican sentiment was observable. But the planters having learned how to control the masses of the negro vote in behalf of democracy now feel that they can do the same thing to promote other interests. Meanwhile they have acquired useful allies in the workingmen of New Orleans, who went numerously for Blaine in 1884, and who ever since without proper leadership or organization have welcomed every opportunity to get away from the democratic land of bondage.

OREGON NEWS AND NOTES.

The Marion county delinquent tax roll foots up $12,000.

Secretary of State George W. McBride has gone to New York city for medical treatment.

So far 3000 head of beeves have been purchased in Klamath county this fall, prices ranging from 2½ to 4 cents.

The Trask River toll road has changed hands, Mr. Crowson having disposed of his interest to Geo. F. Burton of Ashland.

Someone stole a church organ from a country district north of Salem one night recently. The red-hot stove was left by the thieves.

The Salem woolen mills advertise that they will pay out $3,000 for wood, $6,000 for wool and $40,000 for labor the coming year.

Governor-elect W. P. Lord and his wife started last week on a visit to their old homes in Delaware and Maryland, to be absent several weeks.

Gold excitement runs high in Nehalem. News from there is to the effect that ore taken from the ledge assays from $3,000 to $7,000 a ton. The mines are on Rock creek.

Pay rolls and vouchers of the Oregon Pacific for September amounted to nearly $7,500, and will be paid in full. During the month six thousand new ties were put in. Besides this the Santiam bridge and several others on the coast division were repaired.

There is but one locality on the west side ahead of Corvallis in orchard acreage and that is Newberg. In the vicinity of that growing little city may be seen 1,600 acres of trees, a very large portion of which is already in bearing.—Corvallis Gazette.

On Wednesday of last week Mrs. Soule of Marquam, Clackamas county, was driving a horse and buckboard, and the animal from some cause ran away. The woman's clothing was caught in one of the wheels, by which she was drawn from her seat and wound around the axle. In this awful position she was dragged quite a distance and the top of her head was literally torn off knocking against stumps and other obstacles. She was otherwise mangled and presented a dreadful spectacle when found.

I. L. Campbell has instituted suit in the Lane county circuit court against J. E. Noland, for the recovery of the sum of $3,655.71. The complaint alleges that from January 7, 1892, to July 27, 1894, while the defendant was sheriff of the county, the plaintiff performed services for him in the way of legal publications to the amount of $4360. He has received from him but $704.89, and a good portion of this was in the way of receipts for taxes, leaving a balance due the plaintiff of $3,655.71. Campbell runs the Guard, and the complaint might also have stated that he has stood by Noland all through the latter's legal and political complexities.

S. B. Baxter, a deaf mute of Marion county, was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year last Friday for the crime of stealing a bicycle in Salem. He pleaded guilty and presented to Judge Hewitt the following pathetic appeal: "To the Honorable Judge of the Circuit Court:—I don't think I have done anything bad enough to be sent to the penitentiary for. The bicycle was left out doors all night, and would probably have been stolen if I had not taken it. It no doubt has taught the boys of Salem to be more careful in the future. Salem is my home and has been ever since I have been deaf. I held a position of trust at the deaf mute school for four years. This is my first offense and I hope your honor will give me the lightest sentence you can, because it would kill me to stay in jail very long. I remain S. B. Baxter."

The contest over the control of the Philomath college, between what is known as the radicals and liberals in the United Brethren church, which grew out of the action of the general conference of that church, held at York in the state of Pennsylvania, in May, 1889, has been decided by the supreme court in favor of the liberals. The conference at York adopted a revised confession of faith by a vote of 110 for and 20 against. Of the number who voted against, 15 organized another conference, and styled themselves the Radicals. They contended that the revised confession was a departure from the original articles of faith, a violation of the constitution, etc. It was therefore an ecclesiastical question, and this decision agrees with former decisions by the supreme courts of Indiana and Pennsylvania. Its legal troubles have had a very damaging effect on the interests of Philomath college for several years.

Horticulturists say that the "black spot" is affecting trees throughout the state. It first attracted attention last year in Jackson county and symptoms of the disease were noted about the same time on the Sound. It has already made such inroads upon the orchards of the northwest that the general government has interested itself in the matter and sent Newton B. Pierce from the department of agriculture to the coast for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the disease. Mr. Pierce is connected with that section of the department of agriculture pretaining to vegetable diseases. During the past six weeks he has been making a careful investigation of fruit trees in Oregon and is now continuing his duties in the state of Washington. He found evidences of the complaint in every horticultural section of the state. At present no remedy is known nor have specialists as yet been able to determine the cause of the disease. Uprooting and destroying by fire is the only way to eradicate it.

The season when the selling of game birds is permitted by law opened Monday, and will continue one month.

The Pacific express company was robbed of $14,000 at The Dalles Saturday night. The agent went to the 11 o'clock train for the box, and took it to the express office. During the brief absence of twenty minutes the box was opened and the money taken. The money was consigned from Portland to The Dalles National bank and the banking house of French & Co. In all, there was $12,500 gold and $2,500 silver coin. The robbers took it all but $1,000 in silver. The express company is responsible for the loss.

Another man has mysterously disappeared from the vicinity of Portland. This time it is John E. Overton, a wealthy farmer. Last Monday he drove to the city with a load of baled hay. As he did not return in the afternoon nor the next day, his hired man informed a couple of neighbors, who went to the house and found it had been robbed of every useful article. The key of the house was in the door, showing that if Overton had not entered and robbed his own home someone else had become possessed of the key from him. Neither his team nor wagon can be found, but the load of hay has been found on a vacant lot about three blocks from where he was last seen Monday, near the corner of Belmont and Seventh streets.

Jane and Charles Davis, husband and wife, of Roseburg, have instituted suit against the Southern Pacific company and the Pullman Palace Car Company for $10,000 damages. During the first part of August, 1894, Mrs. Davis and her 3-months-old child took passage for Roseburg from Oakland, Cal., and when she retired to bed in the Pullman car the employes of the company agreed to wake her up when she got to her destination. This they failed to do, putting her and her baggage off 1½ miles north of town at midnight, telling her it was Roseburg. A couple of tramps happened along and assisted her to town. She, being in poor health at that time, sustained injuries from the exposure and fright from which she has not yet recovered.

ROMANCE OF WAR.

When Professor David Swing was in charge of the preparatory class at Miami University two young men under his care were Carter B. Harrison, brother to Benjamin Harrison, now ex-president and Joel Allen Battle, son of Colonel Battle, of La Vergne, Tenn. These young men were active, studious, exceptionally bright and were fast friends. They continued their fraternal intimacy as they advanced to their classes in college, and when the war broke out they were sophomores together.

With the beginning of hostilities their spirits were aroused with martial zeal, and each resolved to go to his home and enlist for the war, though the sympathies of the one were with the north, and those of the other with the south. They talked the matter over together, each justifying his course of action, and then embraced as friends and parted. Young Harrison returned to his home in Indiana and enlisted in an Indiana regiment, Battle going to his home in La Vergne and thence to the front with the Twentieth Tennessee. Both were of valiant stuff, of ardent temper, and made excellent soldiers, fighting bravely when the opportunity came to fight, but each following his flag in ignorance of the fortunes of the other.

Without knowing it they were on opposite sides in the deadly battle of Chickamauga, one of the fiercest and most destructive of the entire war. It was on the evening of September 3, 1863, after the battle, that Harrison again looked upon the face of his loved young classmate, a face that no longer gave answering smile to his own, but cold and still and changeless, the life blood gone from it—the friend of his youth lying dead on the battlefield. With passionate emotion young Harrison lifted the dead body of his friend that he had chanced upon, and bore it from the field; and then obtaining a leave of absence he took it to La Vergne to the bereaved family, saw it committed to the embrace of loving earth, and rode back to the war.

OREGON needs population to develop her splendid resources. Every locality needs it, and should never cease to work for it. Advertise.

It is encouraging to learn that a Portland syndicate purposes to redeem the exposition building from the mortgages, and to assume the debt upon it.

THIS from the Salem Independent is good doctrine:

This pardon business is working irretrievable injury to the country. We believe in mercy—"blessed are the merciful"—but even mercy can sometimes be misapplied. We would like to be able to do away with all suffering and punishment, but we do not overlook the fact that society must be protected—that the law of the land must be upheld, that justice must be maintained. We believe in liberty, not license. Without law there can be no liberty, and if the judgments of the courts are to be set aside by a single man who knows no law, and who has not heard both sides of the case, then farewell to all liberty, to all justice, to all safety—to our national existence itself.

PORTLAND'S new morning paper, The Sun, appeared above the horizon for the first time Monday morning. It is a bright looking, six-column quarto, chock full of news and good things. The instigators are a lot of unemployed printers, who have united their energies in a co-operative enterprise. The paper professes to be politically independent, and it remains to be seen on which side of the political hedgerow its independence will be exercised. We believe there is room in Portland for another morning paper, without trenching upon anybody's vested rights, and we shall be glad to see the Sun score a grand success.

Pittsburg will move heaven and earth to secure the next national republican convention. San Francisco is also in the field for the honor, and offers to bear the expenses of all the delegates.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The emperor of Russia is suffering from cancer of the kidneys, and may die at any time.

Ex-President Harrison returned to Indianapolis Friday evening after a campaigning tour of his state in which he made twenty speeches, thirteen of them being delivered in one day.

Ten thousand dollars reward is offered for the capture of the robbers who held up a train on the Richmond, Fredricksburg & Potomac R. R. in Virginia on the night of the 11th and took from it $50,000.

In the district court at Ogden, the jury found Decamp, McConnell and King guilty of an attempted train wrecking during the A. R. U. strike. They were sentenced to imprisonment as follows: King four years, Decamp and McConnell to twelve years each in the Utah penitentiary.

The third and last shooting match of the series between J. A. R. Elliott and Dr. Carver at Kansas City was won by Elliott on the 14th by a score of 99 to 93. In addition to winning the decisive shoot, Elliott's record of 199 birds out of 200 in the last two matches is something that will go down in trap shooting as miraculous.

Thos. B. Reed of Maine opened the republican campaign in New York state Friday evening at the Cooper Union. He was received with the wildest enthusiasm. He thinks as a political speaker for this campaign his occupation is gone, as any argument by any speaker is unnecessary. The case has argued and is arguing itself.

Bandits held up the Southern Pacific overland train a few miles west of Sacramento on the night of the 11th and secured $50,000 in gold. The robbers compelled the trainmen to detach the engine, which they boarded and rode off. After some distance they left the engine, reversed the lever and returned it "wild" at the rate of six miles an hour. It collided with the baggage car and crushed in the platform.

A gigantic postage stamp robbery has been committed at the bureau of engraving and printing, Washington. It is thought 250,000 stamps of various denominations are missing. The postmasters in all parts of the country, it is thought, have received fewer stamps than they ordered, and failed to notice the deficiency. When their quarterly reports are made up, the shortages may be found out. It will take weeks to discover the full extent of the robbery.

The United States has been invited by the quadruple alliance, composed of Great Britain, France, Germany, and Russia, to join it in a friendly intervention in the war between China and Japan. The invitation will be declined. The declination will be based on the time-honored policy of this government to avoid any entangling alliance with foreign powers. Acknowledgement is made of what the invitation has to say about the desirability of the restoration of peace, etc., but, in the polite language of diplomacy, it is pointed out that this country has so far managed very well by attending to its own business and that, so long as it continues to prosper by that policy, it will not depart from it.

Work on a limited scale has been resumed on the Panama canal. It is apparently for the purpose of inducing subscription to the stock of the new company, rather than a real beginning of the work of completing the canal.

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY.

President of the Hillsboro Bank Entertained in the Woods.

HILLSBORO, OR., Oct. 16.—Last evening about 7, as Banker John W. Shute, president of the Hillsboro National bank, was, as usual, riding his bicycle toward his ranch, some men sprang out of the woods at a steep place where every cyclist dismounts, and presented revolvers to his temple and forehead. One man behind suddenly blindfolded him firmly with a handkerchief. His arms were also bound and he was hurried into the woods, where his pockets were rifled of his purse and bank keys. As his life was threatened, he had to give the safe combination, but assured them that as there was a time lock on the bank safe, they could not possibly get in until the time expired. Two of the robbers set out on the mission of robbing the bank, and, after a few hours, returned, vowing that as he had given the wrong combination they would kill him, unless he would quietly come in person and open the bank safe for them.

They led him to the city limits, after a walk of two miles, but he persisted in saying that it was useless for him or any other man to try to open a time lock until the proper hour had arrived. So, again, two of the robbers went to try the bank, but returned after a time and said they were satisfied it was a time lock, but stated that if ever they became satisfied that it was not, they would kill him on sight. All this took until after midnight, and it is to the credit of the robbers that they provided the banker with one of their overcoats around his shoulders, and that they, after all, returned the keys of the bank and the purse which only contained small change.

When the banker was liberated and reached his house, he was very much prostrated and had difficulty in giving an account of what had occurred to him. The nightwatchman cannot understand how so much coming and going could have occurred without his or others' observation. The cashier, Mr. Merryman, declares everything was found as he had left it. The bank vault was locked and no article of consequence was disturbed. Mr. Shute was told that it would be well for him to say nothing about the matter. The man who presented the revolver to his forehead had a mask. It is evident to the authorities that the gang was green at the business, but it is not known if any other clue exists as to the identity of the assailants.

An Old Soldier Made Happy.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by S. Howorth & Co.
