LOCAL NEWS.
Silverware at Dielschneider's Jarrett Todd, the North Yamhill clothing merchant, was in the city Monday. C. E. Lous orders the Barometer to his address at Pocatello, Idaho, and remarks that he is doing well in his new location. County warrants taken at their face by R. Jacobson. A number of Newberg people have the mumps. Leave your subscriptions for any newspaper or magazine at C. Grissen's book store.

Mr. E. A. Mann of Pendleton visited his sister, Miss Frances Mann over Sunday, and on Monday proceeded to Polk county to visit his old home. For a nice lady's cloak see R. Jacobson. You can buy it at bed rock price. Anstine of the Novelty has been in Portland this week seeing about holiday goods. Rev. E. E. Thompson united in marriage at the parsonage on the evening before Thanksgiving, Mr. Frank M. Olds of Washington county and Mrs. Jose Eberhard, nee Cone, of this city. Wait for the stock of Christmas goods at the Novelty, F. Anstine, manager. The children are counting the days till Christmas. New styles in jewelry and holiday goods arriving daily at Wm. F. Dielschneider's, the jeweler. E. N. Ford is jubilant over the arrival of a new son in his family on the morning of the 3d. Fresh mince meat at Cook & Millsap's until after Christmas. Mrs. Mann.

Dr. Tyler Smith, Sheridan's gentlemanly physician, was transacting business in the county seat on Saturday. WANTED.—Two or three fresh cows, at reasonable price, by J. Matvey, Lafayette. Thanksgiving day in the evening was made notable to the family of Lawyer Coshov by the arrival of the third daughter in the line of posterity. Go to the Novelty for stationery. F. Anstine, manager. Mrs. W. S. Thompson, of Albany, a former college student in this city, is visiting her brother, Judge Magers. All persons indebted to R. Jacobson will please call and settle as we have waited patiently, and now are obliged to make collections to meet obligations. Miss L. Vial of Portland was visiting her brother Dr. Vial, in the city over Sunday.

Some fortunate person is going to get a fine French clock. For particulars see the window of Wm. F. Dielschneider, the jeweler. 491t Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock Judge Magers united in holy wedlock Mr. Leonard Umpllett and Miss Alice Greer, both of Amity. The biggest man in Yamhill county, according to current report, was on our streets Tuesday. His name is H. F. Bedwell of North Yamhill. The Baptist church of this city has finally secured a regular pastor, after a long and diligent search. He is Rev. E. B. Pace, a graduate from the theological seminary at Louisville, Ky., and who has recently been pastor of a church at Long Pine, Neb. He is a young man, whose family consists of himself and wife. He is expected to arrive during the present month.

Joe Melotte has the lumber on the ground for a new house. He has made up his mind that Lafayette is good enough for him. Rev. Gay while at Newberg last Saturday evening had the misfortune to walk off the steps at the hotel and strike his head on the walk. The steps are three feet high and the fall gave him quite a shaking up. Mr. Unger and family have moved to Oregon City. R. Jacobson, of McMinnville had quite a smash up while going home from this place Thursday. Some part of the harness gave out while he was going down the hill at the river, the horse became frightened and ran down the hill into the brush at the side of the bridge. Both axles were broken and the buggy was otherwise smashed up. Mr. Jacobson was not injured.

Yamhill Independent.
Rev. A. L. Hawley, who has been secured by the Methodist people to serve as pastor of the church here for the next year, arrived here this week. He is a brother of President Hawley, of Willamette University. The S. P. railroad company has given our fruit raisers a very low rate on dried fruit to be shipped east, and the offer has been accepted. The fruit is loaded on the cars here and taken to New York for the very reasonable figure of one cent per pound. Two cars of 40,000 pounds capacity each were brought down Tuesday morning, and as we go to press the work of loading is going on. There will be enough dried prunes to fill two cars. Though the price this year is not what it used to be, it is yet sufficient to pay a good profit on the investment, and our prune raisers are generally encouraged.

North Yamhill Record.
Mrs. S. S. Duncan arrived safely in Omaha, Nebraska, last Thursday at 4:10 p. m. She was called thither by the serious illness of her father. He is now improving rapidly, and Mrs. Duncan is expected home soon. Frank Chapman, of Sheridan, has the best trained team in the state. Three horses hitched to a gang plow turns the soil all day without a driver. Men with other teams turn the plow for them at each end of the field, and the horses do the balance. Amity Blade.
E. J. and J. L. Wright are constructing a small boat for hunting purposes this winter. N. B. Rambo, recently of Knoxville, Illinois, is in Amity this week, the guest of E. J. Wright and wife. He is looking for a location in this country and is very favorably impressed with Oregon. He is a cousin of Mrs. J. M. Fink and an old acquaintance of Mrs. Wright. Dayton Herald.
At a special meeting of the town council on Monday night, in the matter of the disputed vote for S. R. Baxter and J. Bradley for councilman, it was decided by the council that Baxter had received the largest vote and was entitled to the election of councilman.

At a meeting of the school board on last Friday evening, the directors authorized the county clerk to dispose of the bonds at 44 per cent to raise money for the purpose of building the proposed new school house. The bonds to be negotiated for by April 1st. Perhaps the bonds may be disposed of at that low rate. If they cannot will that stop the building of a new school house? It need not, and should not. The present building is now crowded to its utmost with two departments—the primary department having quarters in very unsuitable rented room, which is also pretty well filled. Hop Picking Machine.
C. C. Green, inventor of one of the machines which has been tried in America, though conscious of failure in the past, is full of confidence in the ultimate success of his device, as shown by his recent communication to the American Agriculturist, in which he says: "I can report that although a much nearer approach to successful picking by machine was obtained this season, yet the success was not enough to justify hop growers in buying machines. One part of the machine only appeared to be deficient. The season for picking hops being too short to make the necessary change, a crude form of the improvement was put on one feeding section and the result appears to encourage the expectation that the machine will be a complete, practical and useful success in the field next season. "I have every reason, from past experience, to assure hop growers that the time is near at hand when the hops will be picked by machine, doing the work cleaner than American hand-picking at not over one-fourth the cost. It is expected that each section of the machine which receives the hops from one person who feeds in the vines will pick as many in an hour as a hand-picker would do in a day; that is, if the feeder can feed the hop-bearing vines fast enough. I hope to furnish an illustration with description next season." Lincoln county is making an exhibit at the Portland Universal Exposition of cranberries, grains, grasses, three qualities of building stone, canned salmon, etc.

FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.
Sheridan Sun
We hear numerous complaints about drunken Indians. One report is that a lady and some school children near Willamina were insulted by Indians from the reservation. Another report is that two citizens of Willamina were driving cattle between Willamina and the Agency, were stopped by Indians and that one of the swashes drew a knife and threatened to kill one of the whites, who promptly clubbed the Indian with his Winchester and knocked him off his horse into the mud. These reports, however, lack confirmation, but there is no doubt but that whiskey will sooner or later lead to serious trouble between the agency whites and the whites. Don Hayes has purchased Mr. Townsend's interest in the Sheridan and Mc. stage line.

Mr. S. L. Hyde, Sheridan's original and only trapper succeeded in capturing a fine otter in one of his traps the other day. The varmint was caught along the Yamhill river and is worth about $6. Mr. Hyde ships his peltry to New York. Horst Bros. of Salem last week purchased 86 bales of hops from H. W. Lamson; 90 bales from Campbell & Fendall, 9 bales from Ed Fendall and 26 bales from Harrison Foster. All got 51 cents per pound but Foster who received 4c. The hops were shipped from Sheridan last Wednesday and filled five cars.

Newberg Graphic.
Solomon Haworth has the Hawaiian fever and hopes to get off to the banana and coffee land. An exchange in speaking of a $25,000 breach of promise suit in this county, says Yamhill county never does anything by halves but always reaches for the persimmon with a long pole. The exchange is right in the assertion. Yamhill in competition with other sections of the world, not only reaches for the persimmon, but "fetches 'er kerwallow." A. P. Oliver shipped 500 pounds of French prunes to a cousin of his in Vermont last week to tickle the palates of his friends. They were put up by a Paul Macy in 25 pound boxes, in a way to attract the eye as well as to satisfy the appetite. Mr. Oliver has sent prunes to this place before and they have been well liked by those who have received them. Such shipments of first-class fruit sent to different parts of the country speak more for Oregon than our estimates sent broadcast in the way of printed matter. Let the people touch, taste and handle Oregon prunes and compare them with prunes from other countries, and we need not fear the results of the comparison. Let the good work go on.

DIFFICULT JOURNALISM.
Setting Type in Japanese is a Most Laborious Process.
They are very keen journalists in the land of the chrysanthemum; but it must be allowed that the business is carried on under difficulties from which even hardened western newspapermen might shrink appalled. "The internal organization of a newspaper office is a sad spectacle of daily struggle with difficulties unknown elsewhere and really unnecessary here. "The Japanese written and printed character consists of the Chinese ideographs, those complicated square figures made up of an apparent jumble of zigzags and crosses and ticks and triangles and tails, "the footprints of a drunken fly"—and of the original syllabary, called kana. Of the former there are 20,000 in all, of which perhaps 14,000 constitute the scholar's vocabulary, and no fewer than 4,000 are in common daily use; while the forty-seven simple letters of the kana are known to everybody. Therefore, the Japanese compositor has to be prepared to place in his stick any one of over four thousand different types—truly an appalling task. "From the nature of the problem several consequences naturally follow. First, he must be a good deal of a scholar himself to recognize all these instantly and accurately; secondly, his eyesight suffers fearfully and he generally wears a huge pair of magnifying goggles; and, third, as it is physically impossible for any man to reach 4,000 types, a totally different method of case arrangement has to be devised. "The 'typo,' therefore, of whom there are only three or four on a paper, sits at a little table at one end of a large room, with the case containing his 47 kana syllables before him. From end to end of the room, tall cases of type are arranged like the shelves in a crowded library, a passage three feet wide being left between each two. The compositor receives his copy, in large pieces, which he cuts into little takes, and hands each of these to one of half a dozen boys who assist him. The boy takes this and proceeds to walk about among the cases till he has collected each of the ideographs, or Chinese picture words, omitting all the kana syllables which connect them. While these boys are thus running to and fro snatching up the types and jostling each other they keep up a continual chant, singing the name of the character they are looking for, as they cannot recognize it till they hear its sound, the ordinary lower class Japanese not understanding his daily paper unless he reads it aloud."—Henry Norman in Real Japan.

Blaine's Peculiar Request.
It has been discovered that the grave of one of America's greatest diplomatists, James G. Blaine, is unmarked save by a small footstone on which are the initials "J. G. B." There is no monument nor even a headstone. This condition of the grave is not the result of neglect, but in accordance with Mr. Blaine's own request. When Walker Blaine was buried on the lot adjoining the lot wherein repose the remains of the great statesman, Mr. Blaine pointed to a hickory tree which stands near by and requested Mrs. Blaine to bury him, should he die before her, with that tree as his headstone. The hickory was once struck by lightning, but afterward recovered and is now quite thrifty. The grave is much visited by Mr. Blaine's admirers, not many of whom are aware of the circumstances under which a hickory tree chance to be accepted as a monument to so conspicuous a public man.—Chicago Herald.

Of a Piece With Prize Fighting.
The following from a recent report of a Yale-Harvard football game shows clearly how nearly akin this latest craze is to prizefighting, when indulged in with a determination to win, the exact minute of the occurrence being given: "2:27 p. m. C. Brewer (Harvard) hurt for a second time, but resumed play. 2:29—C. Brewer is forced to retire from the game by his injuries, and is helped off, crying: '2-40—Worthington is hurt and is forced to leave the game. Worthington's collar bone was broken in the first half and Hollowell's nose was broken. There was a delay of three minutes while Murphy, of Yale, was being resuscitated. Another man knocked out. 3:30—Murphy carried off the field on a stretcher. Armstrong and Hayes are ruled off the field. 4:03—Hollowell is disabled and Wheeler takes his place."

SMILES.
The teacher called the grammar class One bright November day, And said: "My children, now you know The best they set and lay, So tell me what the people do— "Now, think right hand and try." And then a scowl-bearded boy Yelled out—"they ain't no!" —Atlanta Journal.

Old Gentleman—Why do you weep? Schoolboy—Another great man is dead—boo, hoo, hoo! "Did you know him?" "No, but for the next three weeks we'll have to study ourselves blind to answer the teacher's questions about him."—Street & Smith's Good News.

Business.—Indignant Householder—Just look at this, will you? Water Works Official—It looks to me like a small eel. "That is just what it is. I got it out of the hydrant this morning." "Ah, James, charge Mr. Smith with one small eel—10 cents."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Twelve notices of location of mining claims were filed with the county clerk of Marion county last week. The claims are located in what is known as the Mineral Cut mines on the Santiam river, ten miles above Gates.

THE HOME CIRCLE.
The Habit of Orderliness an Imperative Duty—Untidy Boys and Girls.
There is nothing in a child's education that should be more effectually and speedily inculcated than the habit of tidiness. Slovenliness in a boy is bad enough—an ever-present worry and vexation to an orderly household—but in a girl it is unpardonable. There should be one rigid and inextorable rule applying to sons and daughters alike. Even in a household where many servants are kept, both should be required to pick up and put away their belongings—boots, hats, gloves, and garments. The practice, once fixed, becomes almost the involuntary habit, and one which will be of benefit through life, no matter in what position either may be placed. There are many lovely girls who please in society by their tasteful dress and agreeable manners, the sight of whose bedchamber would be a revelation of indolence and untidiness. Closet doors are left open for dust to collect upon bonnets tossed carelessly upon shelves, delicate gowns crumpled in shapeless heaps or hung by the armhole or back of the waist upon a hook, button drawers open, desk in a confusion, book shelves clustered with rubbish, nothing in its place, and nothing ready for use. Carelessness with one's own possessions, when unchecked, easily extends to the appropriation and abuse of the property of other people, so that in the home where this lawlessness is tolerated there are comfort and convenience for no one. If, as often happens, a girl reared in this way is thrown upon her own resources she will find her untidiness a bar to success. Not only is personal neatness in the matter of dress requisite, but it must extend to every detail of work, whatever it is. Should the untidy boy enter the army or the navy he will be broken of his evil ways by no agreeable means. The mother should be inflexible in her demand that rooms should be kept in order, and that personal property should be taken care of. One wise parent used to capture all the balls and bats and toys which she found lying around the house without the lawful territory of the playroom, and each was kept for a week as a penalty. Her three boys soon grew to be thoughtful and watchful, and men as they are today they feel that her summary method of discipline was most salutary in its lasting effects.—Mary H. Knight in Inter Ocean.
