CLASS OF '94 AND '95. FRESHMAN CLASS POEM BY HENRY W. HAYDEN.

Twas '94, the time was fall,
When young folks came both great and small
From far and near and here and yon,
To be on time ere school begun.
The morning came so clear and bright,
Then at the school there was a sight.
Within the town and country round,
There came a few through duty bound.
Dayton lent a helping hand
And sent us four—a welcome band.
Oregon City proved also true
And sent us one as good as two.
Seattle showed with only one
And others came from Washington. tle showed with only one to thers came from Washington, re is a town that's called La Grande There is a town that's called La Granda That sent us two by overland. Carlton proved to be a friend And sent us two, two nice young men. Another came from Anity, While others came from Clatskanie: Then Newberg tried and did its share, And Welsdale, too, I do declare. One rode a horse upon the run For fear the school might be begun. How others came I do not know. We met at first as strangers do, When now we meet its "how de do."
