FRIDAY, SEPT. 27, 1895.

It was snowing at Ogden, Utah, on the 20th, and in many parts of Nebraska the mercury climbed to 105 in the shade on the same date.

The Methodist conferences held at Valparaiso, Ind., and Ottumwa, Iowa, last week, voted to receive women into the conferences.

It was probably an oversight of the framers of the state constitution that no clause was inserted requiring the Willamette river to be located at Salem, and now the pesky thing is threatening to cut crossroads through Polk county and leave the capital city as dry as a Columbia river fisherman.

HAVING increased its profits in the street railway business by reducing fares to a penny, Glasgow has decided to erect several hundred electrical clocks at prominent street corners to furnish the correct time from a central station. The Scotch city holds a good lead at present in municipal ideas.

THOMAS C. WILLIAMS, who claims to be the oldest Old Fellow in the world, has been adjudged insane and sent to the asylum. Some time ago there was a controversy in the newspapers as to who was the oldest Old Fellow. Williams, who is 83 years old, was decided to be entitled to the honor. He took a great interest in the contest and his mind became affected.

A FIRST-CLASS dairy is being constructed at the state agricultural college. It will be in charge of Fred L. Kent, late of the Iowa agricultural college. To make this department of the greatest practical value to the state, a special course in dairying should be established, covering a period of a few weeks only, and farmers and dairymen, their wives and daughters, induced to take it up.

THERE is a constitutional amendment pending in Louisiana, which imposes an educational requirement in the matter of the suffrage. Its object of course, is to disfranchise the negroes; but, strangely enough, a large proportion of the negroes favor it as a stimulant to education, while the opposition to it comes mainly from the white men who object to the taking of the franchises from the illiterates of their own color.

It is becoming evident that Great Britain is trying to grab a lot of American territory in Alaska. The official maps just issued by the provincial government of British Columbia show that a wide area of territory containing valuable seaport sites, which has always been considered undisputed American territory, is now claimed by Great Britain. Again is the need of a vigorous foreign policy by our government manifested.

THE California Fruit Grower issued its annual review and harvest edition on the 21st. It contains 64 pages of matter valuable to wide awake fruit growers and shippers, including the advertisements, which keep the reader posted in everything that is up to date and useful in his calling. The C. F. G. is one of the most valuable publications that visit us weekly. We frequently make extracts from its ably-edited columns and consider it high authority.

THE last democratic platform pledged the party to wipe out all protective tariff, and introduce a tariff for revenue only. Wilson undertook to make such legislation, and did not know his own offspring when the senate got done riding it. The president promptly called it "party perdy and party dishonor." Wilson now doesn't father it, and the great organs which are pointing to "prosperity" as due to "the wisdom of democratic tariff reform" make a sickly show when paralleled with what they said of the law when before the senate. Every word said in favor of this law shows the gross dishonesty of the campaign of 1892.

PEOPLE and newspapers who are saying that the tariff is a dead issue, or that it will not be a leading factor in the campaign of 1896, either do not know what they are talking about or else are trying to disguise what they actually think. They would rather fight the battle on almost any other line. There is only one way in which the tariff issue can be eliminated from politics. When the democrats and populists come to the conclusion that an American policy is the thing for this country, and adopt resolutions in their national conventions abrogating their former policy and declaring in good faith for protection to American industry, then and not till then will the tariff cease to be an issue. Political issues are not, as some people suppose, made to order and shaped to suit the convenience of parties or individuals. They arise from conditions of great magnitude and public concern. The greatest fact that confronts the people of this country at present is the prostration of industries and a bankrupt treasury following the elevation to power of a party hostile to protection and incapable of legislation "for revenue only." There is only one logical, safe and sure way of changing this condition and restoring prosperity to the country, and that lies in returning to full power the republican party, under whose guidance the country enjoyed unparalleled prosperity for more than thirty years. The people can turn to it in confidence as a party that has kept its every pledge and promise in the past and fully competent to meet the urgent requirement of the time. If the tariff issue is dead it is because the democratic party and the populist side show are dead and buried beyond hope or fear of resurrection.

CUBAN RECOGNITION.

Sentiment is growing powerfully in favor of recognizing Cuban belligerency, and the next congress will be brought face to face with the demand backed by the press, the pulpit and the utterances of many prominent individuals. Why this government should withhold its moral support from a country of patriots struggling to throw off the despotic yoke of Spain, is a problem that no one will essay to answer. Its barbarous treatment of Cuban subjects has fallen little short of the atrocities of the Turks in Armenia, that have aroused the indignation not only of our own country but of the civilized world, and it is time to consider whether our policy ought to stop short with bare acknowledgment of belligerent rights, or whether we ought not to go to the extent that is proposed with Turkey, of demanding and enforcing such reforms as will bring peace to the long abused and unhappy island. Humanity has claims which appeal strongly to the United States in this connection. In a certain degree civilized nations are their brothers' keepers. England, France and Russia are going to interfere to prevent a renewal of the Armenian atrocities by Turkey. The Turkey of western Europe is Spain. There is another reason that would justify the United States in making vigorous remonstrance, backed up if need be by force—the interests of American citizens in the island. Thousands of citizens of the United States reside in Cuba, and this number is constantly and rapidly increasing. The trade of the United States with Cuba is far greater than that of any other country. The United States sells as much to Cuba as Spain does, which ranks higher than any other nation in this particular, and it buys from Cuba twelve times as much as Spain. These facts give this country a direct and vital concern in the affairs of that island.

OREGON NEWS AND NOTES.

The grand jury has been investigating the little disturbance between the two Portland doctors and has returned an indictment against Dr. Asplund for assaulting Dr. Holmes with a dangerous weapon.

The committee on program has arranged the following special days for the state fair: 25th, pioneers' day; 26th, farmers and horticulturists; 27th, press day; 28th, native sons and daughters; 29th, special religious services; 30th, Salem day; Oct. 1st, ladies' day; 2d, eastern Oregon; 3d, southern Oregon; 4th, Portland day.

After all it turns out to have been a little joke among the preachers of the Puget Sound conference. Bishop Bowman said to a reporter when asked about the matter: "As I recall the incident you refer to, it was thus. A brother, in making a report on finances, remarked that he was unable to make a favorable showing, owing to the fact, as he rather jocularly put it, that God had sent a curse upon the hop business, and the accustomed sources of donations had thereby failed. I inquired how the crop had been cursed, and some one remarked that Providence had sent the hop louse to interfere with the production of beer. Some one said 'amen' and everybody laughed. There was also some applause. The whole matter was considered a joke, and was given no further thought."

WHITESON.

H. H. Campbell has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, and E. E. Miller has been filling his place on the section.

H. Belat has moved into town and is making preparations to start the cider and jelly factory. He has full control, having bought out his partner, Simon Huffer.

C. L. Cox made a business trip to Portland Tuesday.

R. Phillips, Jr., and Geo. Matthes have purchased a new hop baler, and are kept busy baling hops in this vicinity.

Rev. Good occupied the pulpit at the church here Sunday last.

Hop picking is progressing nicely, and if the good weather continues most of the yards around here will finish picking this week.

Mrs. S. A. Kell, of Pomona, Cal., had the bad luck to sprain her ankle. "I tried several liniments," she says, "but was not cured until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. That remedy cured me and I take pleasure in recommending it and testifying to its efficacy." This medicine is also of great value for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the chest, and all deep-seated and muscular pains. For sale by S. Howorth & Co., druggists.

THE OUTLOOK FOR HOPS.

Our hop growers, like our wheat growers, have not made any money in the past two seasons owing to an over-production of the article throughout the world, and only by a decrease of acreage will prices ever be restored. While the Pacific coast, and more especially California, is famed for the quality of its hops, our farmers, unmindful of the consequences, have rushed into the hop raising industry with their eyes shut, and instead of farming from 10 to 20 acres each, which is as much as any one farmer ought to farm in hops, they have set out yards from 100 to 200 acres each, and the natural result is over-production. The increase in acreage has been so rapid on the Pacific coast that we now raise more hops on the coast alone than are consumed in the entire United States.

In 1894 the crop in Europe and America was a good one, and it was impossible to sell hops on the Pacific coast at over 4 to 7 cents per pound, and a great number of growers have their 1894 crops still on hand, for which they cannot obtain over 2 cents per pound. As it costs from 8 to 10 cents per pound to cultivate and harvest hops, it can be readily seen that this state of affairs cannot continue forever, and in the meantime some growers will be compelled to give up the business.

The English farmer and New York state grower appreciate that there is an over-abundance of hops grown, and that they cannot compete with the more fortunate California grower, who does not have to fertilize his soil, or wash the vine against vermin, and notwithstanding the difference in freight our growers can land hops cheaper in the London market than the English farmer. As it is now a case of "the survival of the fittest," the English, and possibly the New York state grower, may have to abandon the culture of hops, and it is possible that the next few years may see a decided decrease in the English acreage. In the meantime low prices are starting our farmers in the face, and to avoid accumulation of old stock and certain loss the wise farmer will not pick his crop this season. At this writing all indications point to not over 6 or 7 cents for this year's crop, and as this price is below the cost of production there is nothing to be gained by a farmer picking his crop. By allowing it to remain unpicked on the vines he will prevent another glut in the market and at the same time give the old stock an opportunity to be worked off. By pursuing this policy he will not only save money but put the hop market in a more healthy condition for the future.—California Fruit Grower.

The following extract from a letter to A. J. Apperson of this city from the well-known house of Allen & Lewis, Portland, under date of Sept. 20th, is somewhat encouraging to the growers and we take pleasure in printing it.

In regard to hops we are inclined to the opinion that choice hops will sell in the neighborhood of eight cents, and inferior hops will probably be dull sale at a lower price. The outlook is more encouraging now than it has been, for the reason that it is the general opinion that there will be a short crop in England and also in New York state, and this will no doubt influence prices for good hops for the better, although we can hear of no transactions being made at this time, we think buyers and sellers are both waiting the outcome and there will not be much business transacted until after the crop is taken care of. You should be very careful in buying to know that they are choice before purchasing. We are glad to hear that there has been no serious damage done to the crop in your section, we however, anticipate that there will be a great many crops in Oregon that will not be gathered.

The assurance of getting something for the crop, if only barely enough to pay the expenses of picking and baling, has greatly encouraged growers, and we hear of some who resolved not to pick their hops having changed their minds. Six cents appears to be the current price offered. E. B. Collard of Lafayette, a leading grower, stated yesterday that he had received an offer of seven cents from a representative of Lillienthal & Co., of San Francisco.

A few sales are reported in the vicinity of Salem this week at 5 1/2 and 6 cents.

Last August while working in the harvest field I became overheated, was suddenly attacked with cramps and was nearly dead. Mr. Cummings, the druggist, gave me a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which completely relieved me. I now keep a bottle of the remedy handy.—A. M. of approbation to the pinnacle of popularity, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has acquired a commanding position, which has occasionally made it a bright and shining mark for knaves, who seek to foist upon the community spurious compounds in the guise akin to that of the real article.
