Chas. R. Cook, the groceryman and lumber dealer, has begun a series of articles on his war experience for the National Tribune, the first installment appearing in the issue of October 24th.
He was a member of Co. B, 5th Minn., and tells how he was captured by the Johnnies, imprisoned at Corinth, made a desperate attempt at escape, and was put on a wearisome march of 30 miles.
The account is attractively written, and will prove of special interest to his old soldier friends.

Orin C. Skinner, a young man of 31 years well known in this community, was adjudged insane by the county court on Monday and committed to the asylum at Salem. On Saturday while sitting in the cigar factory of Carlin & Co., he quietly pulled from his pocket a revolver and was unconcernedly snapping the trigger. Mr. Carlin noticed that the weapon was pointed toward himself, and at once defended that it be put away.
He was fortunate in making the demand just in time, as investigation proved that two more turns of the cylinder would have reached a loaded chamber. There seemed to be nothing malicious in this action on the part of Skinner, but only an indifferent pastime. He talked incoherently of selling wood and sowing clover and pasturing horses. His loss of reason is extremely unfortunate, as he was a good and industrious citizen when in his right mind. This is his second commitment, the first occurring about ten years ago.

A distressing accident occurred at Eagle mills Thursday afternoon of last week. Clarence Hopfield, a young man of about 20 years, and son of John Hop-field, was engaged in bucking logs in the pond to the mill, and was working alone.
About four o'clock in the afternoon his presence was missed. The pike pole he had been using was observed floating on the surface of the pond. The other hands about the mill concluded at once that he had been drowned, and instituted a search for the body. It was found early the next morning, after emptying the pond of water. How he came to his death will never exactly be known. As he was an expert swimmer, it is thought he must have fallen backward in his work and been stunned.
His sudden death was a great blow to his family and many friends, being a young man of good character and highly respected.

The funeral and burial occurred Sunday from the residence in Happy valley, conducted by C. B. Reynolds, and participated in by Custer post and ladies of the relief corps.

REPORTER ADVERTISERS AND PATRONS

A. J. APPERSON.
In commencing a series of articles such as we have in contemplation, bringing into review some of the public-spirited and liberal business men whose patronage has enabled us to make the Reporter a newspaper of acknowledged excellence and high standing, there are ample reasons why the person whose name stands at the head of this article should be chosen as the first subject.

The fact that during a business career extending through many years he has been a constant, consistent and most liberal patron of the local newspapers, entitles him to a conspicuous place in the esteem and good will of the franchise.

Mr. Apperson is by the incident of birth a Missourian. By ancestral claim he would be reckoned a Virginian, his father having emigrated from the Old Dominion but by nurture, education and force of habit he is an Oregonian of pronounced stripe. He was a boy of eight years when in 1847 his parents set out on the perilous overland journey that brought him to Oregon City in the fall of that year. The loss of his father on the journey and the circumstances which surrounded the pioneers of that early date brought him face to face with the earliest affairs of life from the beginning and contributed no doubt to the development of the character which he has borne in all his dealings with people. Not to be minute in biographical detail, prior to his settlement in McMinnville we hear of him first as a volunteer soldier in a bloodless war against the Indians in 1856, next as engaged in mining, then in steamboating on the Willamette river, making regular trips up the Yamhill to this city, which was then an infant in size compared to its present importance, and again engaged in mining on a somewhat extensive scale. He came to McMinnville thirteen years ago and became associated with R. F. Hartman in the general merchandising. At the end of the year he bought the interest of his partner and has conducted the business up to the present. With the natural inclination to lead in whatever he undertakes, his stock in trade became at once the most extensive to be found outside of Portland on the West Side division, and by the use of liberal methods in business, including the distribution of a good deal of printer's ink, his trade has grown to be one of the most satisfactory. A characteristic feature of his stock, especially in the dry goods department, is that it is always up to date, representing the best and most fashionable goods on the market adapted to the local trade. In his method of dealing he is fair, honest and liberal, studying always how he can most benefit his patrons while reaping a legitimate profit for himself.

It is too sagacious and intelligent a business man not to realize that the lasting prosperity of one individual in the community is dependent upon the prosperity of the people as a whole, and hence he has been prominently identified with almost every enterprise calculated to promote the general welfare. Mr. Apperson was a moving spirit in the establishment of the McMinnville National Bank in 1888 and as a member of the board of directors has had a voice in its management ever since. Its flattering success and the great popularity it has gained as a sound and reliable institution, reflects credit upon all connected. There is one other enterprise, which seems about to culminate in success, of more vital importance to the city of McMinnville and the farming country for miles adjacent than anything that has transpired since she became the seat of local government.

We refer to the improvement of the Yamhill river and its opening to navigation the year round. The credit for that enterprise when completed will not belong to any one individual, it is true, but perhaps will owe its success at the present time more largely to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. Apperson than any other single influence. For years it has been the object nearest his heart in the shape of a public measure, and in season and out of season through his letters to the Oregon delegation in congress he has kept it steadily to the front as a living issue. They have been impressed with the fact that the people of Yamhill are behind it. And so they are. He has not spoken without authority. Seeing the river open to McMinnville, however, is but half the compass of his expectations. He believes that a like amount expended in locks at this point would take boats to Sheridan, and he expects to see that thing accomplished also.

In our business and social contact with the subject of this sketch, extending over several years, we have known him not only a liberal patron and good friend but a man of courage, open frankness and straight-forward-the-shoulder dealing in all matters. He is one of the stalwart men of McMinnville and Yamhill county.

Mrs. W. B. Meek, who resides at Campville, Cal., says her daughter was for several years troubled at times with severe cramps in the stomach, and would be in such agony that it was necessary to call in a physician. Having read about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, she concluded to try it. She found that it always gave prompt relief. It was seldom necessary to give the second dose. "It has not only saved us lots of worry and time," she says, "but also doctor bills. It is my opinion that every family should have a bottle of this remedy in the house." For The clothing store of Todd & Skyles at North Yamhill was burglarized Wednesday night. Entrance was made with tools obtained from the blacksmith shop, and a hole was drilled into the safe, but they did not succeed in getting it open. A box of silk handkerchiefs and an overcoat were the only articles known to have been carried off. Suspicion rests upon a couple of tramps who have infested the neighborhood.

When Chill Mists of the Morning Hang like a pall over the surface of the earth, it will be well for you before venturing into the raw vapors air, charged, perhaps, with the seeds of malaria or provocative of rheumatic twinges, to take a vinegarful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and thus shield yourself from atmospheric influences threatening to health. If you happen to get snowed, sleeted or rained upon, use the same preventive, and avoid the rheumatism or a dangerous cold. The agreeable warmth infused into the circulation by this genial stomachic, its invigorating and regulating properties commend it to all approaches of the fact that prevention is better than cure. Use the bitters for dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness and kidney trouble, sick headache and debility.

It not only hits the spot but takes it out and leaves no trace of it. Will not soil the daintiest fabrics. It will remove instantly grease spots, sweat stains, and things of a like nature from all kinds of cloth, and the good points about it, the spots will not return as when taken out with benzine or gasoline. The price of a bottle (25c) might save you buying a new suit of clothes or a new dress. We furnish a sponge to apply with it.
