Lincoln and Cromwell.

Professor Caird, the master of Balliol College, Oxford, delivered a lecture on Abraham Lincoln in Toynbee Hall, London, the other evening.

"Lincoln was one of the foremost herces of our time, but one whose the iron military leader, whose power rested on rapid intuition and trenchognized leader and representative of Chas. Mitchell recently shipped the Northern States in their contests tera of the hero who by superior force and insight was lifted above idea, and to prove that it was possible to be a real ruler of men, and yet only to move along with the genial senti-
