It is the Nerve

of a tooth which has been completely nearly exposed that gives you that sharp, shooting, lancinating pain when subjected to pressure or something cold or hot or sweet. If you have such a condition in your tooth, it should receive immediate attention. There are but two methods of saving such a tooth, viz., removing the nerve and filling the roots or applying a proper non-conducting capping to the pulp. Either operation requires great skill. I have indeed been successful in my methods in such operations. If the tooth is beyond saving, my method of extracting deprives the operation of its pain and dread. All plates made to fit and appear as natural as each individual case will permit. keep up-to-date in all methods of work and material. Call for examination and prices.
