REST AND RELIEF.

A piece of machinery run by steam and overworked will become cranky, creaky and out of gear, owing to some expansion of metal from heat and friction. Stop its work, rub and brighten and let it rest. In a short while it will be restored and will run smoothly. The human system is a machine. Too much work and worry are thrown upon it; too much of the heat of daily cares; too much of the steam of daily business. The nerves become cranky; they are restless, sleepless and twitchy, and a neuralgic condition sets in. Pain throws the machine out of gear and it needs rest and treatment to strengthen and restore. St. Jacobs Oil is the one remedy of all peculiarly adapted to a prompt and sure cure. So many have so treely testined from experience and use to its efficacy in the cure of neuralgia that it passes without saying that it surely cures. It will be a gracious surprise to many after the free use of it to hnd how easily pain, cares and worry may be lifted, and how smoothly the human machine goes on. work, rub and brighten and let it rest. In the human machine goes on.

There was a collision on the Danish State railroad near Copenhagen some time ago in which forty persons were killed and seventy wounded. The railroad at once admitted that it was to blame, and instead of fighting claims for damages, has appointed a committee to settle with the claimants what will be fair compensation, so as to avoid having the claims brought into the Gate that Will Not Sag.

Most farm gates begin to sag at the outer end after a little use, thus causing oftentimes much inconvenience. If the upright at the hinges can be kept rigidly in place, there is no reason why a gate should sag if it is properly constructed. A proper construction is shown in the accompanying illustration, two braces being used, both of which hold the outer end of the gate rigidly in place. Farm gates are often made of material too light to strongly pinned at the ends of the bars. This is a mistake, as secure pinning is necessary in order to give the braces a chance to do their work.

Intensive Farming.

The average yield of potatoes per acre in the United States is from sixty to ninety bushels; in the Island of Jersey-that tight little is and of fine cows and superfine potatoes-the average yield of the latter is 333 bushels an acre, with instances not a few of yields of 500 or 600 bushels to the acre. Of course, the area of land is small in Jersey, for the whole island contains less than 28,000 acres, with about 19,000 acres arable, and farms are very small, many of them containing three acres or less, and the largest has about fifty acres.

This makes the most intensive farming necessary, hence the yield of potatoes noted. Such results and such conditions prove that large farms are not necessary, and that, in fact, they may be of greatest disadvantage, particularly where not thoroughly cultivated. "Ten acres enough" is not so absurd a proposition as is generally supposed.-

lower end, is tacked to the lower edge.

The Poultry House.

A poultry house is not simply a place in which the fowls should roost. In winter, when the ground is covered with snow, the hens are almost helpless and must remain inside. They should have plenty of room on the floor, which should be kept covered with cut straw or leaves, in which they can scratch and work. Overfeeding on grain is the cause of hens not laying, and it also leads to double-yolk eggs, softshell eggs and diseases. Each fowl should have ten square feet of room on the floor; that is, a poultry house 10x10 should accommodate ten fowls.

Mules for a Profit.

There are many poor mules, the offspring of old, broken-down mares, good for nothing else. The best mules are bred in Kentucky, where some excellent large-bodied mares are kept for this purpose. A mule team, weight for weight, will show much more than a horse team, and it will keep in harness until 30 years old, which the horse team will not do.

It is a good plan to plant all peach has been grown on trees free from yel- thing else.

lows. If the peach is an extra good one, it may well be left to fruit on its own stock. Some kinds of peaches reproduce themselves from seed, and all kinds of this fruit are more likely to produce something nearly like themselves. If the native fruit proves to be worthless, a few buds inserted higher up after it has grown large enough to show what it is, will change it to whatever variety may be desired.

Plow Under Rubbish.

It will be a pleasant surprise to the farmer or gardener to notice the improvement of land where vegetable growth of any kind 'as beer plowed under. It will take the time of some one to pull, rake and cart off or burn such rubbish. Why not let this extra help follow the plow nd keep it clear of obstruction and accomplish some good from the operation? Not only will there be returned to the soil what the plant has taken up during the growing season, but also what the foliage has been able to appropriate from the air. This will be a paying operation upon land that is liable to be a little droughty. It will be noticed that the retentive properties of such land will be greatly improved by persistence in this line of management. The most perfect implement for this kind of work and also plowing under coar-e manure is the sulky plow.-Orargo Judd Farmer.

Natural Blue Grass Land. Blue grass is one of the most nutritious of all the grasses. Its roots are straggling and run near the surface, therefore it is rich in early spring, when the sun's rays do not warm the soil deeply. Some land seems to grow up in bloo grass whenever left uncropped. 't will run out most other grasses as the latter fail. One reason why this grass is nutritious is, perhaps, explained by the remark an old farmer made, that he had always noticed that the natural blue grass land was strong limestone soil.

Flavoring Hay.

When fresh clover not fully cured is mixed with grain straw as it is put in the barn, not only will the clover be kept from blackening, but it will impart a delicious aroma to the straw mowed away with it. Some farmers sow vernal grass, which has a very pleasant scent, for the purpose of flavoring the hay. It makes the hay more palatable, and that makes it more nutritious. It also makes the hay field a much pleasanter place to work in, as the scent of the newly-cut vernai grass is most delightful.

Have Warm Stables

A man or an animal can endure any amount of ventilation during the day, but when night comes the animal like the man, delights in a warm and soft bed free from cold draughts of air. The cold draughts in the stable frequently come along the floor, chilling the animal when it is at rest. This fact should teach the farmer that he will make no mistake in using plenty of dry bedding, and it should be thick and loose, thus preventing draughts from below and assisting to retain the animal heat.

Shelter the Implements.

Store the tools and implements under shelter. If possible take them apart and give the pieces a thorough cleaning with kerosene, which will assist in preventing rust. It would be also an advantage to sharpen all blades, and be in readiness for work without delay as soon as spring opens. All repairs and extras should be ordered now, as it may require days or weeks to secure them at a time when work is pressing.

It is a mistake to keep fattening cattle confined in stalls all through the day without change. It is often done under the impression that the animal if allowed to run out will work off all the fat that the feeding can put on him. But a short time each day will rest the muscles, cramped by being kept in one position too long. The animal will also keep to his feed better than if closely confined.

Burning the Strawberry Bed. Burning over the strawberry bed is work which some will not perform for fear of injuring the plants. A grower who desired to test the method piled straw in the spaces of a few of the plants to the depth of six inches. The foliage of the plants that were burned over was of better color the next season and much heavier than on those not so treated.

Stick to the Land.
