CHAS. A. DEACH, Teacher.

What might have been a disastrous fire was fortunately averted last Thursday night. The blaze started from the wood box in Mr. Earhart's barber shop about midnight. Mr. Bass, of the Excelsior Photo Co., was reading a very interesting book at that hour on the opposite side of the partition. He noticed first a noise like the dripping of water, which increased to something of a roar, and looking up found that smoke was filling his room. He hurriedly sounded an alarm and a crowd of about one hundred firemen and citizens were soon on the scene and quickly dispatched the blaze. The fire had burned a whole through the floor and ceiling of the barbershop.

The Earl Fruit Co. will appeal to the courts to collect its claims for back freight and commission charges against a number of fruit shippers at Corvallis. So far as known only one lot of prunes shipped from Benton county sold for more than enough to pay the commission and shipping charges. Upon other lots there were either no returns made or else the returns were in the form of a bill for back charges. A few producers are outspoken in the belief that they were defrauded by the fruit company, mainly in its charges for transportation. Individuals know that they cannot obtain suitable cars for less than the Earl company claims to pay the transportation companies, but the more intelligent shippers believe that it receives a rebate from the railroad companies.

"The Deacon" is without doubt the best play the Vesperian dramatic company has presented to a McMinnville audience. No better proof of this is needed than the size of the audience that greeted its second presentation Saturday night. The company is showing great improvement in costuming, in stage settings, in the readiness with which they take up their "cue," and their more pronounced intonation. Will Holman had a decidedly good disguise in his character of deacon, and transformation was almost complete in the make-up of Arthur McPhillips. Mr. Eberle has won his spurs as a darkey impersonator, the opinion being general that he sustains this character with a perfection equal to the darkey traveling with the Wizard Oil company. He is a born actor. Jesse Henderson has a trying part as the booby boy, and sustained it admirably, especially in his sudden appearance from a sick bed. A. E. Apperson did his best work in the act of comforting the deserted wife, showing a very tender sympathy. The ladies of the cast did splendidly, every one of them. Miss Satie Snyder and Mrs. Hobbs carried the most difficult parts, the former as the deserted wife, the latter as the old maid sister. Miss Alta Booth made a very pretty appearance as a bride. For variety and genuine mirth "The Deacon" surpasses any play yet given. Some good specialties were given between acts. Miss Jennie Snyder sang splendidly, and was recalled. A minstrel specialty by Frank Dickinson, with the harmonium, Lee Wise-carver with the guitar, Wild Oliver with the spade and Grant Eberle with bones, was a happy interjection. Mr. Oliver also appeared as a banjo soloist. The receipts of the evening were $43.10, more than on the former occasion.

When a Hen Lays an Egg

She cackles. When a man gets in a new stock of goods it is human for him to crow over it. If he opens up his new styles and blows his trumpet in the newspaper (the best place to advertise a la Wanemaker and all good judges) wise people know that he has something on hand worth advertising, and will patronize him.

The Result

on the part of the hen, is a cheerful disposition—a sense of duty performed. Likewise the merchant. If he can give you a bargain and send you away happy, at a living profit to himself, he feels good, too. It is needless to say that every purchaser gets a bargain at

A. J. APPERSON'S.

He is here for that purpose. He is not here one day and in some other town the next, but for twelve years has been cultivating cheerful dispositions by dispensing bargains to the people.

Do You Need Cheering up?

Now is the winter of your discontent made glorious if you go to Apperson's, and anyone of his force will agree to send you away better natured for having patronized the old reliable store.

The city council passed ordinance 188 Tuesday evening, which compels every minor under 18 years of age to have a written permit from his guardian to visit a billiard or gaming hall, and any youngster violating this subjects himself to a fine of one dollar, or one day's imprisonment or both. And any owner or keeper of a billiard or gaming hall, allowing minors under 18 to visit or loiter about such place, subjects himself to a fine of from $5 to $20 or imprisonment in the city jail not to exceed ten days.

The gripe is around again pretty numerously, and already has a hold on a good many people. The proper thing to do is to go to bed and take absolute rest, and put yourself under the care of a competent physician. It is considered folly to hold out against it and try to work it off.

Onions and potatoes are on the up grade. Onions are three cents a pound and potatoes have gone to 45 cents a bushel. The Alaska demand is having its effect. The man who raises these two crops in 1898 is very likely to get good returns. There are already evidences of the people taking advantage of the outlook. Our Whiteson correspondent tells of something big in this line.
