Corner Third and C Streets.

Did you notice the fine assortment of fancy crockery at Bettman & Warren's? C. E. Branson returned Monday from the head of Deer creek, about 14 miles west, where he had spent several days surveying for Semmens, the mining expert. The tract surveyed embraces about 320 acres, divided into twenty claims, which have been mostly taken by nonresidents. Mr. Semmens' idea is that there are valuable deposits of cinnabar on this land, and it is this rather than gold that he is seeking. About a dozen years ago there were parties hereabouts who had the same idea regarding the mineral deposit of this section, and the coming summer will probably determine the
