The successful ones were: Second grade—Florence Wilson, Ray Antrim, Bezie Rounds, Zella Hart. Third grade—Lela Goheen, Carrie Sargent, Elvia Stevenson, Ella Yates, Jessie Robertson, Lenora Laughlin, Minnie Helyer, Daisy Varner.

The cantata of "Esther, the Beautiful Queen," is ever new, because it stirs the soul with its melody. There are people in McMinnville who sang it over 30 years ago, back at the old home, who are coming out next Tuesday night to revive the long-sleeping but pleasant memories of the past. Bradbury was a favorite musical author with many people now past middle age, and much of his Sunday school harmony still fondly lingers with them. Your mother knows all about Bradbury's songs, if she be a Christian woman, and, God bless them, most mothers are. The cantata has various new and later touches, but enough of the old outline is left that it may be easily recognized.

O. O. Hodson and F. W. Fenton returned from their California trip Friday evening, having a good summer color in their faces. They made a thorough visit of the southern part of the state, and seemed to be most enamored of Santa Anna, Pasadena and Watsonville.

President Chapman has purchased a printing outfit for the state university, at a cost of about $400. The local papers naturally feel that it is a little on the "department store" order. The Guard says the bootblack stand and barber shop will probably arrive in due course of time.

There are assurances that the diligent and persistent labor of our home people to prepare a cantata will be rewarded by good honoes next week. Their only desire is to please and aid public enterprise. Money put into good public buildings employs labor and thus reverts to the people. Reciprocal patronage is one of the things that make a thriving town.

Dr. Fenton, James Parker and Walter Day, of Portland, grubstaked a man named Fry. They had about given him up. He now writes he has secured two claims. He sold one for $15,000. His partners (except Fenton) are going up with more grub. The claim is on Hunker creek and is a bonanza.—Portland Chronicle.

Stock Inspector Minty informs us that from Jan. 1st, 1897, to Jan. 1st, 1898, there were 9276 head of sheep driven and shipped out of Yamhill county. Of this number D. W. Ralston handled 5750 head. The mutton and wool product forms no small item in the output of this county. Mutton sheep are very scarce at present and are bringing $4 to $4.25 a head. The wool outlook for 1898 is also most encouraging.

The death of Mrs. Orofine F. Spencer, wife of M. V. Spencer, Wednesday night, was news to many people. She had been ill but a short time with an attack of measles. Pneumonia developed later. She was the only daughter of the late Samuel F. Staggs. Her mother still survives, and is living in California. Deceased was born in this county Aug. 28th, 1865, and leaves a husband and three children, to whom many extend sympathy in their unexpected bereavement. The funeral will be held at the home at 11 a. m. today, conducted by Rev. King.

John Dudley, a pioneer of over 35 years, living near North Yamhill, died suddenly on Monday afternoon, Feb. 14th, at the age of 64 years. He was engaged in the work of grubbing, when he suddenly fell over and expired. He was buried in the Stout cemetery on Wednesday. Mr. Dudley had a varied and interesting career as an Oregon pioneer. The story is well authenticated that in the early 60's he drove a band of cattle to the Portland market, and there being one large wild steer which, for some reason, proved unmarketable, question arose as to what should be done with him. Mr. Dudley did not hesitate long before declaring that he would ride him home, and at once strapped on his saddle, and putting spurs to the beast rode him all the way from Portland to North Yamhill. He is said to have been cheerfully given the right of way through the streets of Portland. He was one of the most skillful riders of wild ponies known in the valley in the early days.

When a Hen Lays an Egg

She cackles. When a man gets in a new stock of goods it is human for him to crow over it. If he opens up his new styles and blows his trumpet in the newspaper (the best place to advertise a la Wanamaker and all good judges) wise people know that he has something on hand worth advertising, and will patronize him.

The Result

on the part of the hen, is a cheerful disposition—a sense of duty performed. Likewise the merchant. If he can give you a bargain and send you away happy, at a living profit to himself, he feels good, too. It is needless to say that every purchaser gets a bargain at

A. J. APPERSON'S.

He is here for that purpose. He is not here one day and in some other town the next, but for twelve years has been cultivating cheerful dispositions by dispensing bargains to the people.

Do You Need Cheering up?

Now is the winter of your discontent made glorious if you go to Apperson's, and anyone of his force will agree to send you away better natured for having patronized the old reliable store.

C. T. Long returned on Tuesday from his visit of two months in Kentucky. He circulated among many good old democratic neighbors in the blue grass state who did not hesitate to tell him that they thought McKinley was all right. The expression, of course, was prompted by their renewed prosperity since the election, which Mr. Long says is quite marked, particularly in the prices paid for live stock. Cal started home with the idea that he would rival Judge Denny along a similar line. He secured nine beautiful red birds, with duergard to apportionment of sex, in the hope of establishing a new feathered family in Oregon. As is usually the case, the porter overheated the car one night, and five of his pets perished. The other four came through all right, and were promptly given their liberty. Cal has no law for their protection, and must trust to the god graces and humane instincts of sportsmen to spare these Kentucky orphans until sufficiently numerous to establish his reputation as a bird propagator and eliminate the possibility of their total extermination.

The best and purest drugs in the world (the kind we keep) are of no service, or are dangerous, if they are not handled carefully. This is a matter which is always uppermost in our minds—carefulness—the choosing of the right bottle, the measuring or weighing of the right dose. It is our constant aim to be the kind of druggists to whom people can go with confidence, when the lives of loved ones depend upon care and accuracy in filling prescriptions with medicines that are just as they should be.
