The Ad Presses the Button--

The article must do the rest. Much of our stock was bought before the tendency to shoddy everything, hence there's a bigger-priced look about them. But we have to meet shoddy competition, and prices consequently have to be cut in two. Wouldn't you rather pay a few cents more for a pair of boy's pants that will wear six months to a year, than buy a 19-cent cotton shoddy that the average boy will run through with in two days? The same comparison holds to a greater or less degree in all lines. Buying a thing because its dirt cheap is a most ephemeral satisfaction, because the thing bought is of the same character.
