Dr. Lowe's Sarsaparilla

Needs but to be tried to be thoroughly appreciated. It is not a patent medicine; we have no objection to outlining the formula, reserving detail only. We make it and know that it will do all that we claim for it. It restores and invigorates the whole system. It enriches the blood, and thereby gives tone and strength to the stomach, accelerating the waning appetite. It is an effectual remedy for rheumatism, and is infallible in cases of general or nervous debility, loss of appetite and prostration of strength. 100 doses 75 cents.
