The Hillsboro Independent has heard the mutterings from Manila, and accounts for the bad condition of the soldiers in this manner. The trouble en route was lack of facilities for cooking for so many men, for which the Sprekles steamship company is primarily responsible, in refusing to properly equip their transports. If the quarters in Manila are foul, the fault is with the company officers, whom the boys selected, and cannot be charged to the administration or to the war department. It thinks much of the sickness at Manila can be attributed to the overeating of tropical fruits by the soldiers.
Almost every advertiser has his theory about the proper season for advertising. Some say there is no use trying to force trade when it is dull; others say that trade is good enough at certain seasons, and they only want more trade in such and such months. Hence they advertise at that time only. Some regard must be paid to season without doubt, and advertisements should be so worded as to be seasonable; but people read the newspapers about as much at one time as another, and if at certain periods an advertisement is not likely to be quite as productive, that fact keeps competing advertisements out of the newspaper columns, and consequently gives the whole field to the man who does advertise at that time, thus making the dull season in truth a season of plenty. We would not recommend a druggist to advertise "ice cold soda" in January, nor should "Arctic overshoes" for the retail trade be pushed with much energy in June; but outside of a few articles which have their seasons, it is admitted by the most successful advertisers that the best time to advertise is all the time.

The Hillsboro Independent has heard the mutterings from Manila, and accounts for the bad condition of the soldiers in this manner. The trouble en route was lack of facilities for cooking for so many men, for which the Sprekles steamship company is primarily responsible, in refusing to properly equip their transports. If the quarters in Manila are foul, the fault is with the company officers, whom the boys selected, and cannot be charged to the administration or to the war department. It thinks much of the sickness at Manila can be attributed to the overeating of tropical fruits by the soldiers.
Almost every advertiser has his theory about the proper season for advertising. Some say there is no use trying to force trade when it is dull; others say that trade is good enough at certain seasons, and they only want more trade in such and such months. Hence they advertise at that time only. Some regard must be paid to season without doubt, and advertisements should be so worded as to be seasonable; but people read the newspapers about as much at one time as another, and if at certain periods an advertisement is not likely to be quite as productive, that fact keeps competing advertisements out of the newspaper columns, and consequently gives the whole field to the man who does advertise at that time, thus making the dull season in truth a season of plenty. We would not recommend a druggist to advertise "ice cold soda" in January, nor should "Arctic overshoes" for the retail trade be pushed with much energy in June; but outside of a few articles which have their seasons, it is admitted by the most successful advertisers that the best time to advertise is all the time.
