FRIDAY, JAN. 20, 1899.

A LARGE mogul locomotive was built in a Pennsylvania shop last week in twenty-one hours and thirty minutes. The whole world wants American locomotives and the demand will be met.

WHEN the Spanish peace commissioners made a request for arbitration, Judge Day's reply was: "Arbitration comes before war to avert its evils; not after war to escape its results." The epigram states the case fully in fifteen words.

RAILROAD proprietors never made a better showing than in the past year. Nearly one-half the railroads in the hands of receivers at the beginning of 1898 were taken out of the courts during the year, according to the Railroad Gazette.

ADMIRAL Dewey's two brothers and his new nephew at Montpelier, confirm the statement that he is a republican. The admiral himself said so in an interview published in former years. Mr. Bryan need feel no rivalry from Dewey in a democratic convention.

Two words, at least, were added to the English language in 1898, according to some leading scholars. They are "rubberneck" and "lobster." It is predicted that these expressions will not pass away as is customary with most slang. "Unpreparedness" is another word brought out by the late war.

President McKinley's wedding present to Mrs. Henry Harrington Scott, nee Sampson, was the original of her father's now celebrated telegram announcing the destruction of Cervera's fleet. "All of the guests," says one account, "were loud in their praise of Mr. McKinley for his delicacy in thinking of such a gift for the daughter of the victor."

Chauncey M. Depew will be the next United States senator from New York. Mr. Depew is one of the prominent Americans of the present day, and a man in every way creditable to his state and country. Our populist brethren will rant over the fact that he is a railroad attorney, but what of that. The railroad business is an important business, and good men are required as railroad attorneys.

THE annual New Year's edition of the daily Oregonian came out on Monday, and is a surpassingly fine paper. Oregonians who have the true immigration spirit will see to it that this paper is well circulated in the east, because nothing finer can be sent abroad to advertise our varied resources. Yamhill county is represented in a truthful and comprehensive way, perhaps as much so as any county outside of Multnomah. The edition does great credit to the Oregonian.

This county is now paying for the keeping of three inmates of the Portland hospitals. J. S. McKay, an invalid from consumption, and John Baldwin, a paralytic sent from North Yamhill last summer, have been at the Portland hospital on a charge of 60c each per day. Chris Strong, a paralytic, is at St. Vincent's at a cost of $1 per day. He receives a pension of $10 per month, which is applied by the hospital on his monthly keep. Judge Bird has information that the Portland hospital, which has been in the hands of a receiver for some time, is to be closed by order of the court, and it becomes necessary to find another place for the two inmates. He made application to St. Vincent's for a lower rate, but could obtain nothing lower than 90c per day for each patient. The keeping of the county poor at the lowest cost consistent with good care and medical attention, is a problem hard to solve, and Judge Bird has given no little thought to the subject. He doesn't favor a poor farm, because the great majority of the county wards are invalids unable to labor and bring any return to the county, and at the same time it seems to him as if they ought to be kept within the county cheaper than it has been costing abroad. Yamhill county is not alone among the counties of the state in its effort to reach a satisfactory solution of the question how best to handle its poor. The columns of The Reporter are open to suggestions from taxpayers of the county on this important subject.

Decision in Bankruptcy.

Some time ago the Morris Mercantile company and others, at Newberg, conveyed all their property to the Chehalis bank, on an assignment. Subsequently they made an application to be adjudged voluntary bankrupts, setting up a claim that they had been forced into making the assignment.

In compliance with the desire of the petitioners, Referee Owen D. Burnett brought suit to recover the property.

Appended is United States Judge Bellinger's decision, which may be of value for the guidance of many other unfortunate business men.

"This is a proceeding by a trustee in bankruptcy to set aside certain conveyances made by the bankrupt in fraud, as it is claimed, of its creditors. The defendants demur to the complaint upon the ground that this court is without jurisdiction, the controversy being one between citizens of the state.

"Section 23 of the bankrupt act provides: The United States circuit courts shall have jurisdiction of all controversies at law and in equity as distinguished from proceedings in bankruptcy, between trustees as such and adverse claimants concerning the property acquired or claimed by the trustees, in the same manner and to the same extent only as though bankruptcy proceedings had not been instituted, and such controversies had been between the bankrupts and such adverse claimants.

"Suits by the trustee shall only be brought or prosecuted in the courts where the bankrupt, whose estate is being administered by such trustee, might have brought or prosecuted them if proceedings in bankruptcy had not been instituted, unless by consent of the proposed defendant.

"It is clear that congress intended that the jurisdiction to set aside conveyances as made in fraud of creditors should not be enlarged by operation of the bankrupt act; that the jurisdiction in these cases should be determined with reference to the law as it then was. Any construction in favor of the jurisdiction of the district court of the United States based upon provisions of the law of general application, is in conflict with the section quoted.

"It is argued that because the bankrupt cannot maintain a suit to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, made by himself, therefore the provision quoted does not apply in a case like this. But this is a question of jurisdiction—a question of the right to determine, not of the principles to obtain in reaching a determination. If the bankrupt himself brought the suit, he could not be turned out of court on the question of jurisdiction. The authority of the court to decide as to his rights would be unquestioned, although he might be precluded in his right to relief by his own act. The statute intends to keep all controversies as to the validity of conveyances like these where they would have been if the bankrupt law had not been passed.

"The demurrer is sustained."

A Pioneer of '13.

Hon. Henry Hewitt died at his home six miles from Dayton, at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning, aged 76, after a ten days' illness with pneumonia. Mr. Hewitt came to Oregon in 1843 with an ox team from Missouri, and had lived in and near Salem for 56 years. He leaves a wife and nine sons: Ex-Circuit Judge H. H. Hewitt, D. M.; A. W.; J. A.; I. C.; M. C.; J. L.; H. W. and L. L. Hewitt. He had one daughter, Mrs. Ann Elizer Thornton, who died some time ago. Mr. Hewitt's remains were buried in Hopewell cemetery near his home, on Monday at 2 p. m., the service being conducted by Rev. Crandall of Dayton. Mr. Hewitt first settled in Clackamas county but removed to this county in 1844, and took the claim on which he lived until his death. He was a native of Pennsylvania, and possessed that agreeableness of nature and uprightness of character so characteristic of the people of that state. All the members of his large family were born in Oregon except the daughter. He arrived in Oregon City on his 21st birthday anniversary, with his wife and one child. His subsequent years were crowded with responsibilities and honors well met, and his life constitutes a record of integrity and true citizenship worthy of emulation.

THE SOLONS OF OREGON.

A great many of the legislative solons being away from the capital over Sunday it is considered safe to take a personal view of the membership as viewed in the lobbies and from the reporters' tables.

Taken as a whole, both bodies are composed of men above the average to be found in the grouped legislatures of most of the states, counting ability, industry and aptitude for legislation, good character, good clothes and good looks. The house contains but few who may be termed orators, though quite a number are good talkers, keen debaters and ready champions of the cause engaging their advocacy. In the senate are to be found, however, some of the most brilliant and engaging speakers of whom any state could boast, such as Fulton, Mulkey, Driver, Brownell, Smith, Reed, Adams, Kelly and Haines, while several others may be classed excellent "short-order" talkers when there is important business demanding a plain business explanation.

Perhaps the most striking man in either body to a person who sees him for the first time, is Dr. S. E. Joseph, senator from Multnomah county to succeed Joseph Simon. The doctor is a handsome, professional looking man, a thick mass of iron-gray, curly hair surmounting a massive, well-shaped head and a young face. In the shape of the head and in the general carriage, he reminds one of the late Roseoe Coukling, but when in repose the doctor's expression is devoid of the self-conscious, austere expression which repelled many from the brilliant New York statesman. A good many observers claim to discern in Dr. Joseph's contour of face a remarkable resemblance to the pictures of the Redeemer, a fact certainly not to the doctor's discredit.

The professions are well represented in the senate, there being nine lawyers, three physicians and one minister of the gospel. No politics are displayed in the senate except in voting on offices. The democrats and the fusionists there—Dr. Daly, Smith, Dufar, Morrow, etc.—are just as popular with the majority, personally and in a business way, as though they were of the true blue republican stamp, and their measures never suffer from their political belief.

The most brilliant orator in the senate is Mr. Fulton, although the readiest and most pointed debater is Mr. Mulkey. The most prolific speech maker is Rev. Dr. Driver, who never seems to care whether he is in order or not—when loaded, he insists on firing off. The senate and presiding officer take it good naturedly and allow him many privileges that would arouse combativeness from a younger man. Senator Reed is the free lance of that body. He is always ready for a fight and fears no foe. He is like the Irishman running for alderman back in Dubuque when called on for a speech. He said: "I'm no orator, gentlemen, and can't make yez a speech; but for honest-ty and capability I bates the devil." Reed is always manly, square and honest.

There are several handsome men in the senate. Smith of Baker, would be an Apollo, if his busy brain had not burned the roots of his hair; Ben Selling would really be a pretty man if he could dissolve the habitual frown which the frequent appearance of appropriation bills have furrowed into his classic brow. President Taylor and Senator Patterson of Washington, who look some alike, are very often mistaken for each other by many of the lady clerks and should the verdict of these good judges be taken it is difficult to say whether the bonnet for beauty would go to Washington or to Umatilla county. Dr. Driver is the oldest man in either house, but he has many young ideas yet. The youngest man in the senate is Kelly of Linn, though he is as bald as a pumpkin.

In the house, the oldest man is Mr. Jones, the silver-republican from Linn, with Mr. Maxwell of Tillamook close alongside, being 68 years old last December. The tallest member is Reeder of Umatilla, with J. Thorburn Ross of Portland a close second. The smallest is Mas-singill of Lake. In beauty it is hard to decide between Stanley of Union, McCullough of Marion and Sherwin of Jackson, while Beach of Multnomah Flagg of Marion and Curtis of Clatsop will run a close race for the prize at the other end.

The most dramatically eloquent member is Stillman of Umatilla; the man who has his subject most clearly reasoned out in line with the sentiment of the house is Moody of Multnomah; the closest and most consistent business reasoner is Williamson of Crook; the man who knows most of the business before the house, its exact condition, what to do to get it where he wants it, and who pushes the greatest number of measures along his line of operations is Curtis of Clatsop. The funny man of the house is Fordney of Willoua, who never loses his temper, always has something to say to raise a laugh and who need not be feared as liable to originate any dangerous legislation (or much of any other kind).

The social leader of the house is Young of Clatsop, who has a penchant for "protecting" everything—clams, crawfish, salmon, sturgeon, eels, steelheads, blue-backs, graybacks, moose, mountain goat, elk and deer, and it makes little difference how dear is spelled, he is in for getting his protection around it just the same. Young is all right when years

Breaks Down the Health of an Oregon Man

What a Few Bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla Did for Him.

"Our home is in Clark county, Washington. My little boy was taken with asthma when only two years old, and grew worse until he was five, when the physician advised us to take him to a dry climate. I resolved to go to the great wheat fields of Eastern Oregon and work in harvest, but I soon found my own health was failing. I could neither eat nor drink without getting sick. I was blind and dizzy. I procured a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and began taking it, and in a few weeks I was well and able to work every day. My little boy is now taking Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results." D. PATTEE, Wasco, Oregon.

Donnelly of Grant is the quietest man in the house. He has introduced only one bill and his voice, even in answering to his name, is scarcely ever heard. Yet, if you could find him on the plains of his native birth, among a herd of bucking bronchos, you would probably see as brisk, active and noisy a "buster" as any of them.—Statesman.

Supt. Littlefield has received a copy of Daly's senate bill No. 3, amending the school laws of Oregon. In many respects he can not agree with the provisions of the bill. It provides that textbooks be provided by a text-book commission of five members, instead of by the county superintendents and a commission of as at present. He believes that five men are more easily corrupted than 42. It would be placing in their hands the expenditure of about a half-million dollars. Another objectionable provision is that of filling a vacancy in the office of county superintendent by the governor instead of the county court. The bill adds civil government and Oregon school law to branches necessary to county certificates. Physics and psychology are added to branches for state certificate, and botany and plane geometry to those for state diplomas.

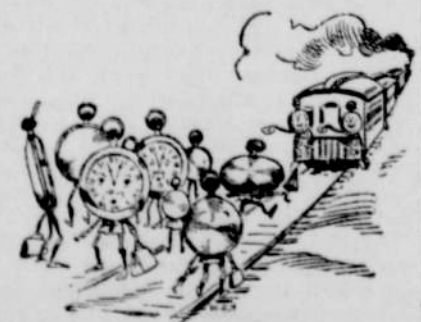

Pleasant Dreams.

It does not lie in the painter's fancy to imagine a prettier picture than that of a young girl, with lips luscious with the promise of love, half parted in the smiles of happy dreamland. The mind of happy maidenhood is a clear and polished mirror, which, when the wits go wandering into the ghouland of dreams, reflects the impressions of waking hours. If those impressions are pleasant and painless and happy, she will smile in her sleep. If the impressions are those of a suffering woman, tortured with the special ailments to which the feminine organism is liable, the picture is spotted by the lines of suffering and despondency. Maladies of this nature unfit a woman for joyous maidenhood and for capable motherhood. They incapacitate her to bear the burdens of life in any sphere of action. Household, marital and social duties alike are a burden to the woman who is constantly suffering from headaches, backaches, dragging sensations and weakening drains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively, completely, unfailingly cures troubles of this nature. It imparts health, strength, vigor to the distinctly womanly organs. It fits for care-free, healthy maidenhood, happy wifehood and capable motherhood.

I have a little stepdaughter who had St. Vitus's Dance, which your medicine cured," writes Mrs. T. F. Boze, of Ford, Dinwiddie Co., Va. "I spent about twenty dollars for doctor's bills and medicine, and it did not do the child one cent's worth of good. We commenced giving Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and used three bottles of each, which cost only six dollars. Now the child is running around every where and is just as healthy as ever."

Which Gets Left, You Or Your Watch?

Sometimes both get left—your watch is left for repairs after you are left because of failure to give it proper and timely attention. Your Watch is blamed for your neglect. A timepiece, if it is one, needs attention the first of the new year. "Turn over a new leaf" in watch care. Turn our way if you want proper care.

Well, What About It? Just This:

A great talk has been made about Joaquin Miller getting back from the Klondike with a bag full of gold, and the material for a new book of verse. The mines up there he is reported as saying are certainly the richest in the world.

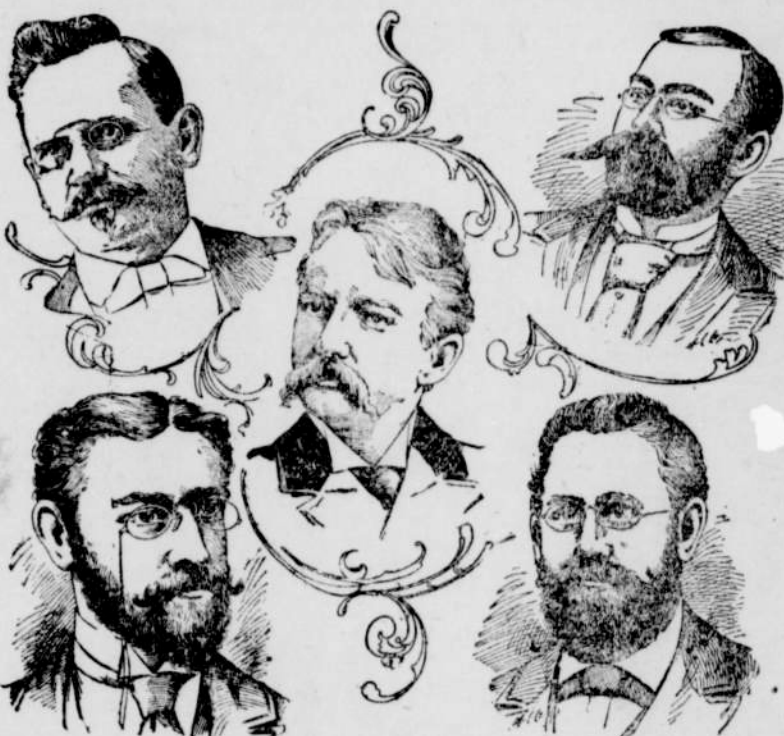

But the riches of that frozen region are not to be compared with the richness of flavor and aroma to be found in our D. & H. Coffee at the price we are selling it, 20c. Do you drink it? If not, why not? You surely cannot afford to drink inferior coffees and run the chance of ruining your health so that you will be compelled to use the so-called substitute for coffee, which in many cases gives you no satisfaction at all.

Drink Coffee, but Drink Good Coffee
