DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, that is by the internal remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it gets entirely closed you are deaf. It is not until the inflammation has been removed that hearing can be restored to its normal condition. Hearing will be destroyed forever; the cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A New Invention—Flying Top.

The latest invention of considerable merit is the "Flying Top," invented by a Western boy. It is so easy to operate, that a boy six years of age can manage it without any difficulty. The top is constructed on the principle of a flying machine and by simply pulling a cord, ascends from 50 to 800 feet, or until its momentum ceases, when it gradually descends like a parachute, still spinning when it strikes the ground.

A SWORN STATEMENT.

I, C. R. Rollins, M. D., of Grass Valley, Or., voluntarily make the following statement: After having my teeth extracted I have had five sets made at intervals of about nine months, three in Portland, one in San Francisco and one in Spokane. With neither of these have I been able to eat a meal's victuals or even an apple or ripe peach. On December 10, 1888, I had my sixth set made by Dr. Stricker, L. O. F. Temple, First and Alder, Portland, Or., and within twenty minutes after the time they were put into my mouth I was able to eat a common hard winter apple and a piece of dried venison, and at this time, December 12th, have eaten every meal since with the greatest comfort and with no trouble at all. They are a perfect fit and satisfactory in every respect.

REGAINED HEALTH.

Gratifying Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Happy Women.

"I Owe You My Life."

Mrs. E. WOOLHISER, Mills, Neb., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I owe my life to your Vegetable Compound. The doctors said I had consumption and nothing could be done for me. My menstruation had stopped and I said my blood was turning to water. I had several doctors. They all said I could not live. I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me right away; menses returned and I have gained in weight. I have better health than I have had for years. It is wonderful what your Compound has done for me."

"I Feel Like a New Person."

Mrs. GEO. LEACH, 1609 Belle St., Alton, Ill., writes:

"Before I began to take your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer from womb trouble. Menses would appear two and three times in a month, causing me to be so weak I could not stand. I could neither sleep or eat, and looked so badly my friends hardly knew me.
"I took doctor's medicine but did not derive much benefit from it. My druggist gave me one of your little books, and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel like a new person. I would not give your Compound for all the doctors' medicine in the world. I can not praise it enough."

FARM AND GARDEN

Roof Thatching.
Good, straight rye straw is probably as desirable material as can be secured for thatching. To get rid of the grain, hold the bundle, without cutting the band, so that the cylinder of the shearer will strike the heads. When the grain is all removed throw the bundle to one side and do not let it go through the machine. The straw will then be straight and in good condition for thatching.

Arrange the rafters for a shingle roof. Use for sheathing 4-inch boards placed about a foot apart. In thatching, the work is done on exactly the same principle as shingling. A course of small bundles (a) is first put on all the way across the lower edge of the roof. Take a small bunch of the straight rye straw, even the butts by standing the straw perpendicularly and lifting several inches from the floor, then letting fall suddenly. Tie the end of a ball of strong string to the lower pieces of sheathing next to the cornice. Place the bunch of straw against it and pass the string over the straw down under the sheathing, back to the left and bring it up over the bundle the second time. Put in another bundle of straw and repeat the operation until the first course is completed.

Put on the second course in the same way, having the bundles in this cover the cracks of the first course and the butts extending to the edge of the roof. The third and remaining layers are put on in the same way, except that the butts of these are always about a foot above the butts of the layer below, just above the lower edge of one row of shingles is several inches above the one just below it. In the engraving b, c and d show the relative positions of the third, fourth and fifth courses. Always cover completely with the lower part of one course until the twine which holds on one course with the lower part of the next layer. If the work is carefully done, the roof will be waterproof and will last for many years.

Portable Swill Barrel.
I have not seen any device that beats mine for lightening the labor of swilling the hogs or transporting slop. I made mine of an old cultivator, with a pickle barrel that cost 25 cents. I first bend the iron B, as shown in the first illustration, at the spindle, then fit it around the barrel, then bend for the other spindle, using the grip shown at 1 for the hub, and the grip shown at 2 to fasten on the barrel. With this, a boy can carry 25 gallons of slop as easily as I can carry a bucketful. This device is left at the kitchen door, and the whole day's slop is put in it, and is all hauled away at once, at the same hour each day, so that the pigs are not squealing around the trough all the time. The trough projects through the fence, so I can dump the slop in to sixty head of hogs and not get my clothes soiled, as shown in the second picture. The device can be improved by cutting out a shallow curve from top of the barrel and riveting on a tin spout, as shown.—J. Brinsinger, in Ohio Farmer.

Corn Fields in Winter.
The bare corn field is no better pulverized by winter freezing than if some fall crop were sown, and left in winter to cover its nakedness. Wherever crimson clover will live through the winter, that is, of course, best, as winter earth covering for it will often make considerable growth in the spring. But there should be something sown, if only oats or peas. A mixture of both these grains would probably make a better winter protection to the soil than either alone. These will not live after heavy freezing, but their leaves will make a mulch that will protect the surface from being beaten down by rains. When this mulch is plowed under, it should not be buried more than three or four inches. The cutaway harrow will do it deeply enough.

Pruning Peach Trees.
Peach growers are gradually learning that the peach tree will not only stand very severe pruning, but that it does best under such treatment. Where this is not practiced, long, slender branches form, and these produce fruit mainly at their outer extremities. This overloads the branches and causes them to break down even when the tree is producing no more fruit than it could easily carry if properly distributed. If the branches were cut back to within two feet of the trunk they would throw out numerous fruit spurs and produce fruit close to the trunk and main branches where it could easily be supported. Trees handled in this way will also produce more perfect fruit. Such severe cutting back may be done without any injury whatever if performed while the tree is dormant. Although peaches are reckoned an uncertain crop, it is still one of the most profitable fruits that can be grown in localities adapted to it. Select the finest varieties and give high culture and it will require but little fruit to give you a good money return.—American Farm News.

Made Poultry Pay.
A writer in a Western paper says: I often read in the poultry journals that it is not much work to take care of poultry. I have always found it just the reverse. Still I like it for the outdoor exercise and natural love I have for pets. I also found it very remunerative, but I find there is as great a demand for that article called common sense in poultry raising as in everything else. The third year I gave poultry my attention I kept a strict account with the biddies. I had thirty-two Light Brahma hens and forty half-bloods for sitters. In the early spring I sold ninety-two sittings of eggs, twenty-two half-bloods for sitters, and raised nearly 700 chicks. I sold some for broilers and some for breeding purposes, and packed over 150 dozen eggs during the summer. I sold all the culs Thanksgiving, and at the end of the year the books showed a balance in my favor of $791.24. Since that time I have kept no accurate account, but am satisfied to continue until I find something better.—Farmer's Review.

A Cow for Every Acre.
We do not hear so much as we used to do about the importance of producing enough feed on an acre to keep a cow through the year. It can be done by growing corn as the main feed. But that is not always, nor generally, economy, for if all the land is kept in corn it must require more manure than where it can be every three or four years seeded with clover, and after all the soil would be less fertile than after a clover seeding. B-sides, more depends on the milking character of the cows than on their number. The best dairymen prefer rather to reduce their herds in number, and still get as much milk and butter as formerly. This makes the labor much less, and if the lessened number of cows leaves more land not needed to keep them, it can probably be given to other uses that will pay much better.—American Cultivator.

Guesing Weight of Stock.
One of the best ways of training the eye to judge both of live and dressed weights of animals is offered at "butchering time." If the farmer has some barn scales it is easy to secure the live weight of animals at any time. But there is great difference in the amount of waste in killing and dressing, even among animals of the same breed. It is this kind of knowledge that the buyer learns by long practice, and unless farmers want to be cheated in selling live stock they must learn also. The boy on the farm should be encouraged to make his guess as to how much each hog or beef would weigh, both alive and after it was dressed for marketing. It is knowledge that every boy on the farm should try to gain.

Making Neatsfoot Oil.
Every farmer who kills a beef should save all the feet and get the oil out of them. This is called neatsfoot oil, and is valuable for many purposes. Almost everybody understands how it is made. All that is needed after thoroughly washing the hoofs to remove dirt is to put them in water and keep the water boiling several hours, until all the oil rises. The four feet of a full-grown beef will yield about a pint of neatsfoot oil. Of course it is as much trouble to boil a few hoofs as it is to care for a great many, but neatsfoot oil is valuable enough to be worth saving, even if the feet of only one animal can be procured to extract it from.

Storing Apples and Grapes.
If apples are kept in the cellar they should be placed in the coolest and most airy part. It is best to keep them in a shed or garret until there is danger of freezing and then put in the cellar. To keep well, apples should be kept in receptacles as air-tight as possible. The barrel should never be left uncovered. Open the barrel and take out a sufficient quantity to last a few days and then nail the cover on again.

Do You Know Your Farm?
We want to ask you, farmer friend, if you are perfectly familiar with your whole farm? Have explored all its acres and know what is on the under side as well as on top? Do you know just how deep certain land should be plowed and what crops are best adapted to same? If you do, then you are on the high road to prosperity. Just keep right on, and you'll get there.—Farmers' Guide

DR. DARRIN'S CURES.

Baker City Republican.
Those who are disposed to doubt Dr. Darrin's cures will have their doubts shaken on reading the following card from Mr. John Martin, of Cove, Or. Mr. Martin is a man well and favorably known to all of our readers, and a man of 20 years' residence in Union county. His case will go far to establish the skill of Dr. Darrin:
For the benefit of the afflicted as well as Dr. Darrin, I will state I had been afflicted 10 years with hydrocele and other troubles before being treated and cured by Dr. Darrin, five years ago, in Portland. Water Power Abandoned.

The famous incline railway at Prospect Park, Niagara Falls, is to be operated electrically according to a recent decision of the New York State Park Commissioners. Heretofore this railway has always been operated by water power, but in view of the fact that during the great ice bridges, when tourists flock to see this marvelous sight, from all over the state, the railway is usually inoperative. This has been due to the clogging of the intake with ice and very often too low water. As there is no other means of access without a tedious descent and ascent, the tourists have been greatly inconvenienced, and the management has lost considerable money. With abundant electric power available from the Niagara Falls Power Company the electric operation of the road appears to be most appropriate.

Germany and Asia Minor.
It is inevitable that Asia Minor shall eventually pass from the possession of Mohammedanism, and whether Germany accomplishes the task or not, the Sultan must yield to a Christian nation. It is just as inevitable that diseases of the digestive organs must yield to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The disorders of this kind are usually called dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness. The Bitters are equally good for all such complaints, regardless of the name.
