Those neither absent nor tardy were: Lora Booth, Lola Kuns, Frank and Sadie Keen, May Martin, Harold Miller, Bert, Pholia and Blaine Oatman, Christel and Justa Pennington, Raymond Shepperd.

Army experiences upon the sea, around the barracks, and within the Cavite hospitals, as seen by Private Leo M. Travis, of Company C, Oregon United States volunteers, will be given under auspices of the college, Saturday evening, March 4th, at 8 p. m., at the opera house, for benefit of the book fund. General admission, 25 cents. Mr. Travis is an Oregon boy, a graduate of the university of Oregon, class of 1897, and one of the brightest men ever sent out from the university. He was in Manila during the stirring times of last summer, was sent home on furlough last fall on account of sickness, and will return to his regiment very soon. He knows Captain Heath and many members of Co. A, speaks from personal observation and experience in the Philippine campaign, and his lecture, already delivered in many Oregon towns, will offer a rare opportunity to McMinnville people to hear history and description of intense interest from one of the boys who went to the front.

Our good friend, Hon. J. T. Gowdy, was over Monday from Dayton precinct to keep his subscription in the advance column. He came near making a special trip a few days earlier for the purpose. This is a sure sign of a conscientious man, for whom a crown awaits.
A very pretty evidence of spring may be seen about the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wortman. Crocuses of different colors are in bloom about the house in a ribbon border, and the lawn is studded with them, making a most pleasing effect to the eye.

Mr. A. Leroy, acting grand master of Oregon for the order of Oddfellows, will give a public address at the opera house this evening, to which all are cordially invited. Mr. Leroy is the only speaker in this line that the Oddfellows have employed for many years, and is worthy of a good audience. There will also be good music.

Thos. H. Rogers has on exhibition at the drugstore what he calls a famous teak wood club once owned by the Barkly tribe in the Philippine islands and sent him by his friend Arthur Harris. We'll wager Tom that it is the same old club that he exhibited some time ago as property of Chief Too-Too, who was to throw it 200 feet into the air and catch it in his teeth as it came down.

Died—At Arlington, Kan., Feb. 17th, 1899, Mrs. A. E. Clarke, after a long illness. Deceased was the wife of C. S. Clarke, at one time editor of the Sheridan Sun, and later of the North Yamhill Record. The husband left Sheridan mysteriously one night, and the little woman was left for three or four years to paddle her own canoe, which she did nobly, steering the Sun safely past many a shoal. She effected the sale of the paper and soon after Clarke returned, and seemed to be a much better husband from that time on, showing a commendable solicitude for his wife's health, and doing what he could to effect restoration of the same. He is now practicing medicine at Arlington.

The college glee club, assisted by Louise Sawyers-Linn of Portland, soprano, and Mrs. F. A. Powell of this city, reader, gave a very pleasing entertainment at the opera house Friday evening. The glee club was composed of twenty-three young ladies, and they exploited the shirt waist with white collars and ties. They opened the program with "Welcome, Pretty Primrose," which was good, but their second selection, "Rose Waltz," was much better, and received a hearty encore, which was appeased with "America." They closed the program with "Old Madrid." Mrs. Linn's first selection was "Summer," and later she sang "Lesson From the Birds," and "Four Leaf Clover," receiving encore on almost every selection. The evidence of appreciation of Mrs. Linn's voice was hearty on the part of the audience. The lady is sweet-faced, and combines with this a voice of rare culture and melody, and in these respects she occupies a place unique among sopranos who have appeared in McMinnville. Many of those present would not fail to hear her again, should she return at some future time.

Mrs. Linn and Miss Glen sang a duet, "Pearls of Love," which was the best single number of the evening. Melody and time were in such perfect accord that it seemed like one voice with a dual capacity. Miss Fay Swick, the elocutionist of Dayton, was programmed for the reading, but was announced by Miss Gray as being sick and unable to be present. This was cause for regret by Miss Swick's friends, who know her powers, but Mrs. Powell kindly filled the breach, and in an admirable manner. She gave three readings which highly pleased the audience, many of whom till this occasion had been unaware of the fact that we have a home elocutionist with ability for any stage. Requisition for her services will not cease with this entertainment. Miss Glen of the college sang the contralto solo, "Dark is the Night," and was particularly fortunate as usual in her selection. Spirit and force are always in the right place with Miss Glen's singing. The audience demanded a second number from her, and "All Men are Deceivers" was given very shyly, though no one had an idea that Miss Glen believed it. Miss Satie Snyder was accompanist for the evening, and performed her part well.

The Methodists congregation were some what surprised last Sunday morning to see so many children occupying the front seats in the church. When, however, Rev. Grannis stepped down from the platform and said that he was going to preach a short sermon to the children every Sunday morning, their presence was made plain. The sermon was fine, and seven minutes in length, and was fully as much enjoyed as the excellent discourse which followed. While singing the last hymn such children as desired were permitted to go to their homes.

Miss Eva Martin and her trimmer returned from Portland this week, where they have been selecting spring goods and getting the latest ideas in millinery. Pattern hats, so called, can be purchased earlier in the season, but the best styles do not appear so soon. Miss Martin will have the latest and best.
The inter-collegiate oratorical contest, never before at McMinnville, will be held in the Baptist church March 10th. This contest, following the local contests of the different colleges and universities of the state, is held at different places every year, and will not be at McMinnville again for eight years.
A new road is to be opened to the gravel bed in the Willamette river near Weston landing, through the efforts of Supervisor John Bradley. The Herald says it will greatly shorten the distance from all points for hauling gravel. This is good news. The nearer we can get gravel to the road beds all over this valley, the nearer we are to our highest development.
A young man was arrested at Dayton last week for disturbing a religious meeting, and fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $15. Justice Snyder remitted the fine. Such lessons are severe, but sometimes needed. Every youth should be early impressed with the fact that if he cannot behave in public meetings, he has no business to be present. It is one of the first places for the exercise of civility.
The Mormons are going to work Oregon to a finish. They have divided the state into three districts, and have placed two elders in each, and say they expect to have one hundred elders at work within three months. They urge people to dismiss prejudice and come out to hear them. This would be necessary with a great many people.
Mr. Chester Albright and wife of Philadelphia, Pa., arrived in the city on Friday last, and visited until Monday. Mr. Albright is a civil engineer, who frequently has large contracts in his line of work. He came west with a party of Philadelphians on a tour of sight-seeing, and left the rest of the party at San Francisco, and will again join them at Omaha this week. Mr. Albright is a nephew of Mrs. Gortner.

Guide by the Past.

You who do not know this store need not accept what we say as gospel truth. Guide by the past. Look up our record. See how we have kept faith with the people. See if we have ever sold any thing but faultless footwear. Some dealers do a deal of talking; their rainbow of promise is a big one, but it is a rainbow sure enough. You follow it only to find that it disappears when you reach the store. Here we endeavor to perform all that we promise. If we say a shoe is so and so, it is so and so, or we take it back at the price you paid us. No guessing at qualities. No risks.
We still have a small lot of those ladies' rubber shoes at 40 per cent off. This is a rare offer. Take advantage of it.
