A peculiar sight was witnessed by Ed. Wing, the liverman, a few days ago. While out driving he passed a camp of Grand Ronde Indians near Middleton. Two of the young bucks, evidently ginned beyond reason, were engaged in a fight. One had the other down and was getting the best of him, when an older Indian rushed out and began chopping furiously with the edge of the hatchet into the back of the Indian on top. He stood it well for a while, but was seen to reel and fall over to one side. Wing thought he was killed, but in a little while he was on his feet, and moving towards the camp he cursed the old man and muttered "That's all right, but I'm not goin' to die!" All the time this was going on, the women at the camp maintained a regular bedlam of screams from fright. As the old man returned to camp with his hatchet, another Indian rushed out with a gun, and grabbing the hatchet from the old man, flung it with all the force he could command into the brush. Wing says the Indian cut with the hatchet bled so freely that you could track him. The party came on up to Newberg, where it is believed the chopped redskin sought medical aid. As Wing came on home, he overtook another load of Indians this side of Dundee. Two of the men were dead drunk in the bottom of the wagon, and were bounding along with their heads bumping against the end-gate. The presumption is that one of these was the husband of the copper-colored siren on the front seat, to whom a gay young Lothario was vigorously making love, after getting the other fellow drunk.

Rev. J. B. Lister in an address at the Turner camp meeting said that one person in every 48 of the population of Oregon is associated with the Christian church. It is said to be a part of the plan to close the wharves at Portland on the homecoming of the soldier boys to all but relatives. This is hardly a fair shake. And how are you going to tell who is a relative? We would suggest to Portland that many outsiders are expected to contribute to a volunteer monument fund, and that city would better beware how it lets its paternalism run to seed. Every patriotic citizen in Oregon should have an early chance to welcome her returning soldiers.

HOME CURE FOR BLOOD POISON.

Beware of the Doctors' Patchwork; You Can Cure Yourself at Home.

There is not the slightest doubt that the doctors do more harm than good in treating Contagious Blood Poison; many victims of this loathsome disease would be much better off to-day if they had never allowed themselves to be dosed on mercury and potash, the only remedies which the doctors ever give for blood poison.

The doctors are wholly unable to get rid of this vile poison, and only attempt to deal up the outward appearance of the disease—the sores and eruptions. This they do by driving the poison into the system, and endeavor to keep it shut in with their constant doses of potash and mercury. The mouth and throat and other delicate parts then break out into sores, and the fight is continued indefinitely, the drugs doing the system more damage than the disease itself.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I had spent a hundred dollars with the doctors, when I realized that they could do me no good. I had large spots all over my body, and these soon broke out into running sores, and I endured all the suffering which this vile disease produces. I decided to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and was soon greatly improved. I followed closely your 'Directions for Self-Treatment,' and the large spots on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I was soon cured perfectly and my skin has been as clear as glass ever since. I cured myself at home, after the doctors had failed completely."

It is valuable time thrown away to expect the doctors to cure Contagious Blood Poison, for the disease is beyond their skill. Swift Specific—

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

—acts in an entirely different way from potash and mercury—it forces the poison out of the system and gets rid of it entirely. Hence it cures the disease, while other remedies only shut the poison in where it lurks forever, constantly undermining the constitution. One of the features at the Sheridan 4th of July celebration will be a game of "shinney" by the Grand Ronde Indians. The game resembles football somewhat, except that the ball is kept in motion with large clubs, which are said to be so formidable that a white man hasn't the courage to take part in the game.

The Viavi health lectures given by the state manager, Mrs. Lucy E. Hitchcock of Portland, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon were interesting and instructive. The drift of highest modern thought is, that physical reform is the basis of all reforms, and these lectures contain information which will help every woman to understand principles necessary to a higher physical condition.

The ball game between McMinnville and North Yamhill was not played on Saturday, owing to the absence of a good many of the home team. The Yamhill boys think they have a pretty good joke on our boys about "getting a reputation," since the defeat by the Chemawas. We guess they have, but if our team should beat them, the tables would turn.

Col. Thos. Cornelius died at his home in Washington county, Saturday evening, of organic heart trouble. He was an Oregon pioneer of 1845 and an Indian War veteran. For a time he was engaged in the lumber business in McMinnville. He was nearly 72 years old, and one of the best known men in Oregon, being the republican candidate for governor in the campaign in which Pennoyer was elected.

When your daily toil is over, and the sun is going down, you are ready, now, to read the news, what's going on in town. If you miss the evening paper, here's a hint: t'will make you smile, p'rhaps you'll find it on your daughter, for the bustle's back in style. When you wash your face in soap suds, and you're looking for a towel, while the soap is getting in your eyes, you start to swear and growl, wipe your eyes upon your shirt sleeves, and remember all the while, that the towels are hard to locate, since the bustle's back in style. Now there's no use getting angry, and it does no good to swear, if your Sunday shirt is missing, and you've nothing clean to wear, try your hardest to look pleasant, do your best to wear a smile, and remember when you miss things, that the bustle's back in style.
