The Yamhill river flows through such a fertile country that there is no gravel to be found in the bed of the stream to make concrete for the locks being constructed in it. The contractors have leased a dredge from Nickum & Co. to dredge gravel at the junction of the Willamette and the Yamhill for the concrete needed, and this will have to be boated up the Yamhill to the locks. It is said that the Yamhill county farmers have to dig down 50 feet to get gravel for their chickens, and yet Yamhill beats the world.—Oregonian.

Albert Tozier, secretary of the state editorial association, is now getting returns from the editors who lately visited the state. To show the breadth of the work already accomplished in this line, Mr. Tozier has pasted together clippings from papers all over the United States, which stretch a distance of 1600 feet. Every line is about Oregon and Portland. In addition, since then, he has received 30 columns of printed matter singing Oregon's praises in every chord. At the least calculation, he cannot collect over a third of the things written about the state. Besides this, the Associated Press sent out thousands of lines. Furthermore, the delegates were allowed to send as many personal telegrams as they desired free of charge, and all of their relatives were in this manner made acquainted with the delightful climate.

The two-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nichols of Dayton was badly burned last Saturday. Mr. Nichols was preparing to take a bath, and while he was absent from the room for cold water, the little fellow fell backwards in the tub of scalding water, and he was horribly burned about the body. The child is in a very critical condition and is thought will not recover, as it has had several very bad convulsions since.

Deach, with their respective families, and Frank Deach, who is to go along to herd the children, are arranging to go to Yaquina bay next week. With a lawyer, a preacher and two pedagogues, all that is lacking to make the aggregation complete is a long haired poet to write of the "dark blue sea" and then they would be fixed a plenty. W. K. Allen expresses the opinion that the short fruit crop in Oregon is really a blessing in disguise, although it may seem a little tough on the growers at present. He thinks that with the hard blow the trees had last winter when the severe cold snap caught the sap flowing, a heavy fruit crop would have finished a very large number of trees in the country. As it is they will have a chance to recuperate during the season. The Chas. K. Spaulding Logging Co. has the largest number of logs now slowly moving down the river that has ever been floated on the Willamette at one time. The company estimates that the total number of feet will aggregate about nine million, which is more than double the number of feet ever before brought down the river at one time. About thirty men are working on the boom and some conception of work yet before the crew may be formed from the fact that it will probably be the middle of September before Newberg is reached.—Newberg Graphic.
