A Hold-Up Near At Home.
About 9:30 p. m. Saturday, Otis E. Lemasters, who lives in Happy valley, was returning to his home from Dayton by way of McMinnville. As he reached the first bridge this side of W. B. Sharp's place, two men stepped before his horse and ordered him to throw up his hands, each man being armed. Lemasters obeyed, and the men went through his pockets, securing $43.25. They then told him to drive on. He did so, and the incident was closed. Lemasters was unarmed, and could offer no resistance. All the conditions of the robbery point to the conclusion that it was the work of men who are not strangers to the country or to the man robbed, and who knew that Lemasters would be along about that time, and that he had money. He deals in stock, and generally has some ready cash in his pockets. They may never be discovered, but if the game is tried again, something is more than likely to pop before they get his money.

At the M. E. church next Sunday, the services will be conducted as usual by the pastor, Henry T. Atkinson. The subject of the sermon in the evening at 7:30 will be "The Use of Reason in Religion." Some people seem to have an impression that there is little in common between reason and religion, but the pastor wishes to show the strong relationship which exists between the two. The public is cordially invited to these services, and always receive a warm welcome. Ushers are always in attendance to welcome visitors.

Mention was made last week of the visit to McMinnville of John F. Loeper in search of his brother Eugene. He went over to Salem on Thursday and procured his brother's release from the state hospital, and they returned to this city on Friday. Eugene was not lavish in praise for the management of the hospital, and was very glad to get released. He claims there are many inmates who are picked up as vagrants to swell the number, who have nothing specially ailing them—"they do not even have fits." He met Peter Head, formerly of McMinnville, who still does duty in the kitchen. When Peter Head first saw Loeper he exclaimed: "Oh, you old fool, I knew they'd get you over here!" Turning to some of his associates, he said: "Dis fellow, he saw five cords of wood in a half a day." After arriving home Loeper disposed of his personal effects quicker than one man in fifty could, and the following day, Saturday, was off with his brother for his old home at Diller, Neb., leaving behind him several unfilled contracts to saw wood, one of which consisted of thirty cords. He will probably remain in Nebraska with his mother, who is 83 years old, and able and willing to afford her son a good home.

Carbolineum Avenarius.
The most radical remedy against chicken lice and the best wood-preserving paint is Carbolineum Avenarius, manufactured in Germany only. The farmers all over the country count amongst their heaviest expenses to run the farm, the lumber bill. All are undoubtedly interested to learn of a medium to reduce the same at least to half its former cost. This medium is Carbolineum Avenarius, a wood preserving paint based on 27 years' experience. Many are of the opinion that paint, tar and linseed oil will preserve the wood against rot and decay. These coatings only form an air-tight cover, but do not destroy the albumin parts of the wood, which always start the rot. The coatings with above mentioned materials prevent the evaporation of the wood and the consequence is dry rot. Carbolineum Avenarius, on the contrary, penetrates deeply into the wood and destroys all present decay matters. The Carbolineum Avenarius is applied with a brush and imparts a nice nut brown color to the wood. It is used on the farm for painting barns, granaries, shingles, silos, posts, bridges, chicken coops, etc., and all woodwork above and below the ground. Carbolineum Avenarius is also the most radical remedy against chicken lice. If you want plenty of eggs and healthy chickens, the chicken must be free from lice and mites. Carbolineum Avenarius will keep your henhouse free from this plague. One coat applied to the inside of the chicken coop will keep it clean from vermin. Kerosening and whitewashing, which has to be repeated every month, is done away with, and expenses for sulphur and insect powder are saved. Whoever desires further information about Carbolineum Avenarius should write to O. O. Hodson, McMinnville, Oregon.
