At the tax sale last Saturday the delinquent list for 1898 was cleared up, thus leaving only one list on the tax collector's hands. Most of the land advertised was saved by the taxpayers coming forward before final sale, and settling the delinquencies and accrued costs. Some small tracts were bid in for the county, but in the main, the county realized on the delinquent list the sums due, together with the costs of sale.
Prof. A. L. Pearson's commercial college closed for the term on Wednesday evening. Twenty-four students were enrolled during the term, and six studies were taken up. Three of the students graduated with high honors, namely: Andrew A. Loban, Chas. A. Gaby, and Harold A. Henderson. These young men were awarded diplomas by the board of judges, which consisted of Prof. Northrup, of the college, Prof. Reynolds of the public schools, and F. C. Ferguson, book-keeper.
There is a valuable article in this week's Reporter from the pen of Fred L. Post, the Dayton fruit man, on "Shall I Set an Orchard." Mr. Post recently contributed an article on grafting. He is a reliable man on horticulture, having given his entire attention to fruit raising for twelve years. He has over 6,000 fruit trees of different varieties, has a fruit dryer of four tons a day capacity, and has paid for his farm with one fruit crop. Whatever he says in the fruit line ought to be as good as gospel.

Next week on Friday, Henry Schenk will interest the boys in the first principles of carpentry, and the outcome will be some much-needed cabinets for the school rooms. Every pupil of the proper age should not fail to get these lessons. More work will be done along this line as time progresses.
The Shaw Co. now playing in this city is giving immense pleasure to the people. They opened the week with "Jack o' Diamonds," which is full of pathos and called for some fine acting. "For Revenue Only" on Tuesday night brought forth Mr. Shaw's rare abilities in splendid style, and many thought they had never seen him in a better role, though they can hardly discriminate in the performances of so clever an actor. He is exceedingly well supported by Nellie Maine Shaw, his wife, and the entire cast. "In Mizziouri" Wednesday evening was witnessed by the largest number of people so far, who were all delighted with the realistic presentation of the slow and backwoods life of Pike county, Missouri. "The Brand of Cain" was presented last evening to a full house, and tonight will be given the strong play of "Held By the Enemy." The children are going to the matinee en masse tomorrow afternoon, to see "Rip Van Winkle," and in the evening "From Sire to Son" is to be given, which many regard as the best play of the week.
