HOME AGAIN.

Dedicated to the Dead Heroes of the Second Oregon Buried at Woodlawn Cemetery March 25, 1900.

The battle's o'er, the day is won,
Old Glory floats o'er Malabon.
Honor them, your noble dead,
Fair Oregon your heroes dead
Have won for you enduring fame,
Have won for you an honored name.
While floats the flag o'er Malabon
Shall live the Second Oregon.

Home again, to rest and sleep,
Where loving friend may weep and weep;
Where roses bloom, where violets grow,
Where your own western breezes blow,
To sleep in consecrated earth
Beneath the soil that gave you birth;
While floats the flag o'er Malabon
Shall live the Second Oregon.

Then lay the flowers, lay the bay
Upon the dead this mournful day;
But while they sleep and while they lie
Upon the bier, love cannot die,
Nor valor that in noble strife
Can give up youth and love and life.
While floats the flag o'er Malabon
Shall live the Second Oregon.

The strife is o'er, the battle's won;
Then cover them o'er, each beloved son;
To rest, to sleep, forever and aye,
Where roses bloom, where tall firs sway,
Among the hills they loved so well,
Where rippling brooks and zephyrs shall,
While floats the flag o'er Malabon,
Sing of the Second Oregon;

—Muriel Gray.

Democratic Teaching.

The following poem upon the death and burial of the gallant General Lawton, bearing the signature of S. H. Randall, Wyoming, Ohio, has been widely circulated in the middle west:

A warrior brave who fought with zest
For Tyranny is dead:
A bullet through the butcher's breast
For Liberty hath sped.

'Mid loud hurrahs he marched to kill,
For crimson carnage keen:
And did his heartless hirer's will,
A slaughtering machine.

A puppet in a cause of shame,
Upon the weak he warred;
And made his country's flag and name
By hearts humane abhorred.

But now thro' avenues of gloom,
To martial mourning's drums,
Upon its journey to the tomb,
The killer's carcass comes.

Saluting cannons grandly boom
A nation's last adieu,
And oratory casts its bloom
On him to Murder true.

"On Fame's eternal camping-ground"
His "silent tent" is "spread,"
"And Glory guards with solemn round"
Her savage butcher "dead."

Expressed in brutal language, this is democratic teaching today, and no matter how repugnant it is to the rank and file of democracy, they cannot deny the fact that its sentiment is taught in their councils. In the estimation of the leaders of that party in high authority, Aguinaldo is a patriot; American soldiers are "tyrants" and "savage butchers." Is this the reason the democrats of Oregon did not nominate Capt. Heath for congress? Was it because they thought he was a "warrior brave who fought with zest for tyranny?" Or was it because he was "to murder true," "a savage butcher?" Can Capt. Heath, his friends, the brave soldiers who fought in the Philippines and their friends endeavor to entrust the United States government in the hands of the people who entertain the opinion expressed by democracy's party leaders?

I take pleasure in recommending it to others suffering from that dreadful disease. —J. W. Lynch, Dorr, W. Va. This remedy is sold by S. Howorth & Co., druggists.

Daly's Financial Platform.

To C. H. Newell, of Lake county, the Bryan candidate for congress in this district said:

"Free silver is a folly and would precipitate the country into a panic."

To the Oregonian reporter who asked his views on the money question, he replied:

"The financial declaration of the democratic, populist and silver republican platform of 1898, as confirmed by the democratic platform of 1900, fully represented his views on the money question."

Again, to an Oregonian reporter: "Pressed for a further discussion of the money question, Dr. Daly, smiling a sweet smile, patted the reporter on the shoulder and said: 'A candidate for office must be careful about what he says.'"

For Sale.
