Some students of history may prefer to say that the war of 1812 left no doubt in Europe that the United States was destined to become a first class power, but the most cautious of them need not hesitate to admit that the country which emerged intact from the greatest of civil wars, forthwith sent back vast armies to the fields and shops and embarked with such energy upon a career of unparalleled industrial development that it was able to pay off $700,000,000 of indebtedness in ten years thereafter belonged in the forefront of the nations, Europe may have gained in consequence of the war with Spain a clearer knowledge of our resources and capacity and have put a new estimate on our influence in the affairs of the world, but she did not wait until that conflict had been decided to assign us to

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads have voluntarily reduced the local passenger fare in Oregon and Washington from 4 to 3 cents a mile. Now will Mr. Huntington meet this on the great Southern Pacific. The roads have taken this step because they believe the increased travel will more than compensate them for the difference. This is the second reduction in a little over a year. Mr. Charlton of the Northern Pacific says of it: "Our experience goes to show that the first reduction we made materially increased our passenger earnings in Oregon and Washington. This second cut in tariffs, we believe, will do the same thing. It will tend to stimulate travel, and assist in building up populous centers."

Summer Resorts.

To the mountains our people in increasing numbers yearly look for those days of relaxation and recreation necessary to maintain the human machine in fair working condition. The languorous sloth of the seashore proves very seductive while it lasts, but many have decided that the annual outing should provide not only radical change of air and surroundings, but also such stimulation of flagging energies as will provide brawn and vigor for the return to labor. For this they urge the mountain climb and ramble, the balsam of the mountain pines, and the clear, unadulterated mountain air.

In this direction the Shasta Route now affords a wealth of attractions. The entire line of road from Ashland to Redding is studded with charming and accessible hotels and camps, where are cheer and comfort and healing at reasonable cost, and where you can hunt, fish, ride, loaf, or play with equal facility.

Or if you look for healing waters, none better can be found, hot or cold, than the springs of Ashland, Coalinga, Anderson, Bartlett, Byron and Paso Robles.

Before visiting Europe, the people of the northwest should see the glories of Yosemite and the wondrous groves of Mariposa and Calaveras; the Parisians are likely to make inquiries concerning these attractive resorts.

SMALL KNOWLEDGE OF A GREAT POWER.

There are subjects on which we are unable to agree with Senator Hoar, but he seldom fails in the discussion of any subject to say in an impressive manner things that are well worth saying. Thus in the debate on the armor plate provisions of the naval appropriation bill the other day he disposed of a lot of silly twaddle about the United States having just become a great power in a few crisp sentences, which were in the main exactly to the point, in spite of an unnecessary allusion to "imperialism" and possibly one or two slight exaggerations. "The United States," he said, "came out of the war of 1812 a first-class power, and she has been a first-class power ever since—a power that has kept off the whole of Europe from North America and the West Indian islands, except as it was there before. There has not been a country since that time, great or small, that has ventured to tackle us, and there is not a country on earth, great or small, that would not have got out of any trouble with us by diplomacy rather than by war."

Some students of history may prefer to say that the war of 1812 left no doubt in Europe that the United States was destined to become a first class power, but the most cautious of them need not hesitate to admit that the country which emerged intact from the greatest of civil wars, forthwith sent back vast armies to the fields and shops and embarked with such energy upon a career of unparalleled industrial development that it was able to pay off $700,000,000 of indebtedness in ten years thereafter belonged in the forefront of the nations, Europe may have gained in consequence of the war with Spain a clearer knowledge of our resources and capacity and have put a new estimate on our influence in the affairs of the world, but she did not wait until that conflict had been decided to assign us to the class of great powers, and Americans who have just discovered where their country stands, or who talk as if they had, would benefit themselves and please everybody else by keeping silent. Senator Hoar says that he is tired of this sort of thing. So are a great majority of his fellow citizens, but they are rested and refreshed by his remarks on the subject.—New York Tribune.

More Anti-Imperialist Illusions.

Some of our old "anti-imperialist" friends, the St. Louis Republic and a few others, we regret to say, are fooled once more on the question of the status of the newly annexed territory. This time they are fooled by William Lochren, a United States judge for the Minnesota district. Lochren has been saying, in a case in which this point was not involved at all, that the United States constitution extends by its own force into the nation's newly gained territory. This was exactly what the democrats in congress and the newspapers were saying for the past three months, but nobody in particular took much notice of them. All the democrats are hailing the obiter dictum of Lochren, who is a democrat of the strict construction stamp, as gospel.

Jackson "constantly repulsed the idea of the presence of the constitution in the territory committed to his charge, and in that repulsion he was sustained by the federal executive government at Washington, and by each house of congress, each of these authorities refusing to entertain, as breaches of the constitution, the complaints forwarded against him by those who had been militarily dealt with under his government." Jackson was governor of Florida when he "constantly repulsed the idea of the presence of the constitution in the territory under his charge." The man whose words are here quoted is Jackson's old friend, Thomas H. Benton. The "federal executive government at Washington" which sustained him was the government of James Monroe, a democrat of the old school, and the congress which backed him up was almost solidly democratic, for the Federalist party at that time had disappeared as a national organization.

What Jackson did as governor of the newly acquired territory of Florida other governors appointed by that other sterling democrat Jefferson did as governors of the newly gained territory of Louisiana, and in the Jefferson case, as well as in that of Monroe and Jackson, the democratic congress fully sustained him. None of the fathers of the democracy ever supposed that the constitution of its own force extended to newly acquired regions. All of them, to use Benton's words about Jackson while he was governor of Florida, "constantly repulsed the idea of the presence of the constitution" in new territory. The theory which the republicans are acting on in the case of Porto Rico, the Philippines and other newly annexed localities was acted upon by the fathers of the democratic party constantly, without any misgivings as to its legality or justice. The average modern democratic newspaper, however, not only is ignorant of the history of its country, but knows very little about the history and actions of its own party.—Globe Democrat.

WHO PAYS THE TAX?

Customs and Internal Imports Fall Lightly Upon the Poor.

The Bryanites say that the present federal taxation throws its burden entirely upon the poor and practically exempts the rich. This is one of the minor misrepresentations of existing conditions which every intelligent man knows to be false. It is only intended, of course, to influence those who are too ignorant to know or mentally too sluggish to think. With the exception of the import duties on sugar and tea, which, in the individual case, amount to a sum too insignificant to be considered seriously, the federal system of taxation does not touch the poor man at all. It is entirely optional with him whether he contributes a cent to the support of the Federal Government. With the exceptions noted, not a dollar's worth of imported articles upon which tariff duties are levied is used by the poor man, or the men of moderate means, in this country. Custom house collections affect him not at all.

As far as internal revenue taxation is concerned, all the poor man is called upon to pay indirectly is that upon beer, spirits and tobacco. Substantial increases in the taxes upon beer and tobacco were imposed by the present war revenue tax. Yet the retail price to the consumer has remained unchanged. Whatever is paid by the consumer of either beer, spirits or tobacco is practically a voluntary tax, for it can hardly be pretended that any of these articles are articles of necessity. No man would suffer in health, comfort or morals if he refrained entirely from their use. No objects could be more legitimately burdened with heavy taxation than these, and it is insulting to the poor men of the country to intimate that they are clamoring for a reduction of taxation on such articles.

The stamp taxes affect the really poor not at all. When a man is carrying a bank account, or is engaging in real estate transactions, or in buying or selling stocks and bonds, he is, according to Demo-Populist logic, a member of the capitalist class. The average wage earner is not in the habit of using the telegraph lines very often, neither does he do so much shipping of freight. The stamp taxes rest almost entirely upon the commercial community, and the heaviest revenue derived from them is on transactions in which the size of the tax increases with the magnitude of the transaction involved. The great corporations of the country have contributed more to the general government under the stamp taxation, ten times over, than all the wage earners collectively. Yet the earnings of the wage earners, in the aggregate, are far greater than the earnings of the corporations.

The whole statement that the federal taxes are framed in the interests of the rich and against the poor is directly contradicted by the facts.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Was Not Our Council.

On a prominent page of The Reporter last week appeared the following:

"At a meeting of the city council, the pastors of the churches in town, urged passing of an ordinance to close the candy, bicycle and barber shops on Sunday, only allowing the livery stable to do business on that day. It was passed, and some are objecting. But for the well being of the boys it is a good move."

The explanation is, that through the intricacies of making up forms a portion of the Newberg correspondent's letter became detached from the balance, thus causing consternation among the McMinnville candy shops.

CANCER Cannot be Cut Out or Removed with Plasters

Surgical operations and flesh destroying plasters are useless, painful and dangerous, and besides, never cure Cancer. No matter how often a cancerous sore is removed, another comes at or near the same point, and always in a worse form. Does not this prove conclusively that Cancer is a blood disease, and that it is folly to attempt to cure this deep-seated, dangerous blood trouble by cutting or burning out the sore, which, after all, is only an outward sign of the disease—a place of exit for the poison?

Cancer runs in families through many generations, and those whose ancestors have been afflicted with it are liable at any time to be stricken with the deadly malady.

Only Blood Diseases can be Transmitted from One Generation to Another

—further proof that Cancer is a disease of the blood.

To cure a blood disease like this you must cure the entire blood system—remove every trace of the poison. Nothing cures Cancer effectually and permanently but S. S. S.

S. S. S. enters the circulation, searches out and removes all taint, and stops the formation of cancerous cells. No mere tonic or ordinary blood medicine can do this. S. S. S. goes down to the very roots of the disease, and forces out the deadly poison, allowing the sore to heal naturally and permanently. S. S. S. at the same time purifies the blood and builds up the general health.

A little pimple, a harmless looking wart or mole, a lump in the breast, a cut or bruise that refuses to heal under ordinary treatment, should all be looked upon with suspicion, as this is often the beginning of a bad form of cancer.

Mrs. Sarah M. Keesling, 941 Windsor Ave., Bristol, Tenn., writes: "I am 41 years old, and for three years had suffered with a severe form of Cancer on my jaw, which the doctors in this city said was incurable, and that I could not live more than six months. I accepted their statement as true, and had given up all hope of ever being well again, when my druggist, knowing of my condition, recommended S. S. S. After taking a few bottles the sore began to heal, much to the surprise of the physicians, and in a short time made a complete cure. I have gained in flesh, my appetite is splendid, sleep is refreshing—in fact, am enjoying perfect health."

Our medical department is in charge of physicians of long experience, who are especially skilled in treating Cancer and other blood diseases. Write for any advice or information wanted, we make no charge whatever for this service.
