FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1900.

The Eugene Register says the "populist party is progressing some. Bryan and Towne who have been nominated by the fusionists are both smooth-faced."

It is said that there is strong probability of a contest in Lane county over the county judgeship. This is the county that declared Kincaid elected by one vote.

Bryan and Dewey would be a combination of a man who voted for Populist Weaver in 1892 with a man who never voted in his life. The democratic crazy quilt of 1900 promises to beat that of 1896.

It is to be presumed that Mr. Bryan will not object to the full protection of American interests in China. Bryan is willing to afford the nation every facility for upholding its honor and safe-guarding its citizens except an army, curtly remarks the Oregonian.

The states in which there will be no general election for state officers this year are Maryland, Mississippi, Nevada, New Jersey and Virginia. The states which have already held their state elections are Rhode Island, which chose a governor and state officers in April; Louisiana, which holds its state election in the same month, and Oregon, which voted in June. The states which are to hold elections this year in advance of the November contest for presidential electors are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Maine and Vermont. Alabama chooses its state officers in August. Arkansas chooses a governor and state officers in September. Georgia, in compliance with an old political custom, chooses its governor and state officers on the first Wednesday in October, a month before the general election. Maine elects a governor and other state officers (Maine has no lieutenant-governor) on the second Monday in September. Vermont chooses in the same month, but a week earlier than Maine, a governor, a lieutenant-governor, a secretary of state and treasurer for the like term of two years, and also two representatives in congress.

Prior to the beginning of the civil war and since the close of the civil war the republican party had as its presidential candidates men having military records of service in war. General Fremont, the first nominee of the republican party, entered the army as a second lieutenant and rendered distinguished services during the Mexican war. The military record of General Grant was the chief element of political availability in 1868. Hayes enlisted in 1861 in the Twenty-third Ohio infantry and commanded a brigade at Winchester. Garfield served in the Forty-second Ohio volunteers and took an active part in the battle of Chickamauga. General Harrison went to war with the Seventieth Indiana infantry and was mustered out of service in June, 1865, with the rank of major-general. William McKinley enlisted in the war as a private in the Twenty-third Ohio infantry, and was a brevet-major at the close of the civil conflict. The list of soldier candidates before and since the civil war was broken only by the nomination of Blaine in 1884. While the republicans have generally nominated candidates with military records for president, their vice-presidential candidates have, all of them except General Logan, defeated in 1884, and Col. Roosevelt, the present nominee, been civilians—Dayton, Hamlin, Johnson, Colfax, Wilson, Wheeler, Arthur, Morton, Reid and Hobart. General Arthur got his title from services from 1860 to 1863 as engineer-in-chief on Governor Morgan's staff.

If Kansas actually harvests 100,000,000 bushels of wheat it means sixty-six and two thirds bushels for every man, woman and child within the state, or 285 bushels for each voter. The estimated annual consumption of wheat is four bushels to the person. Leaving this amount for each person in Kansas and say 4,000,000 bushels for seed, there will still be 90,000,000 bushels for export. This means that the Kansas crop will furnish a year's supply for 22,000,000 people.

Judicious advertising always pays. The people are looking for bargains as well as news always. It's a part of their business. The constant advertiser is the one who gets the trade. John Wanamaker, one of the most successful business men in our country has this to say: "I do my heaviest advertising in dull times. Then is when people look most keenly for bargains, and are most anxious to know how much things cost and when they can save money. I advertise particular things, give prices and take as much pains with my announcements as I do with my stock. One big dinner won't keep the reputation of the house, but steady cooking does it. I never permit interest in my announcements to lag, and never miss an issue in my chosen publications. Advertising has made my store one of the largest in the country."

McKinley and Roosevelt undoubtedly compose the strongest ticket that the republicans could have nominated. The governor of New York was great enough to do justice to President McKinley in his speech in which he seconded his nomination. The hero of San Juan referred to him as "the president who has had to meet and solve the problems more numerous and important than any other president since the days of the mighty Abraham Lincoln." Roosevelt himself has a most creditable record in public life, but creditable as it was, it had not brought him close to the hearts of the people, until he became associated with the most brilliant achievements of the American army in Cuba. Roosevelt's utterances after the Maine was destroyed, and his zeal and energy in preparing the navy for war when the majority of men in public life were insisting there would be no war, singled him out as the truest representative of public sentiment in that trying hour. His courage on the battle field, his scorn of those who complained of trifles, his appreciation of the soldierly spirit, and his loyalty to the national purpose made him, independent of the question of rank, one of the most conspicuous figures in the war with Spain. These are a few of the reasons why the people cheer Roosevelt. He will be elected the nation's vice president—considered a dummy office. But before his four-year term is out "Teddy" will bring the nation to the realization that there is something in the office, after all.

R. A. Harris, formerly of this city, has begun the publication of a little monthly at Salem called the Western Rural Press. Its mission, if it has one, is hard to define, as it does not seek advertising patronage, and isn't so awfully particular about getting subscribers. Through Rufus' very peculiar and labyrinthine use of English we are able to glean that his paper stands for the initiative and referendum; against song and prayer; for government ownership of every public utility, including railroads, telegraphs, mines and money; believes that the Philippine war is unjust; that the "impending difficulty with China will witness the sacrifice of more human lives on the altar of selfishness, and the deplorable thing is that America is in a fair way to sell a few thousand disinterested and innocent souls for Chinese indemnities and territory, cheap competition and public soup." Not content with all this ranting against the good and liberal government which makes it possible for him to publish a paper, he seemingly endorses the alleged statement of the heretic, B. Fay Mills, who is quoted as saying in San Francisco recently, that "the anarchist has the noblest moral theory of them all. He believes that humanity is at heart so good that it needs no laws to restrain it. I am an ultimate anarchist, and an immediate socialist." Perhaps the last sentence would tersely describe the real mission of Mr. Harris' paper. The editor states that "it remains to be seen how the public will deal with it," and gives the cheerful assurance that "should the paper's publication cease, all unfulfilled subscriptions will be settled in cash."

WORDS OF BURNING TRUTH.

There is room for solemn reflection in the words of Governor Roosevelt concerning the Philippines, which every anti-expansionist should weigh with the greatest care. The wonder is that any Pacific coast man can see the facts any other light. Perhaps none would, if all could trace history intelligently and remain free from party bias. Happily, the preaching of anti-expansion doctrine in Oregon is uphill business. It should grow more so as people read and reflect on the following from Governor Roosevelt's speech:

"I rise to second the nomination of William McKinley because with him as a leader this country has trod the path of national greatness and prosperity with the strides of a giant, and because under him we can and will once more and finally overthrow those whose success would mean for the nation material disaster and moral disgrace. Exactly as we have received evils which in the past we undertook to remedy, so now, when we say that a wrong shall be righted it most assuredly will be righted."

"We have nearly succeeded in bringing peace and order to the Philippines. We have sent thither as to other islands toward whose inhabitants we now stand as trustees in the cause of good government, men like Wood, Taft and Allen, whose very names are synonyms of integrity, and guarantees of efficiency. Appointees like these, with subordinates chosen on grounds of merit and fitness alone, are evidences of the spirit and method by which this nation must approach its new and serious duties. Contrast this with what would be the fate of the islands under the spoils system, so brazenly advocated by our opponents in their last national platform."

"The war still goes on, because the allies in this country of the bloody insurrectionary oligarchy have taught their foolish dupes abroad to believe that if the rebellion is kept alive until next November democratic success at the polls here will be followed by the abandonment of the island—that means the abandonment to savages, who would scramble for what we desert, until some powerful civilized nation stepped in to do what we would have shown ourselves unfit to perform. Our success in November means peace in the islands. The success of our opponents, an indefinite prolongation of misery and bloodshed."

"We, of this convention, now renounce the man whose name is a guarantee against such disaster. When we place William McKinley as our candidate before the people, we replace the republican party on record as standing for the performance which squares with promises, as standing for the redemption in administration and legislation of the pledges made in the platform and on the stump, as standing to the upbuilding of the national honor and interest abroad, and the continuance at home of the prosperity which has already been brought to the farm and the workshops."

"We stand on the threshold of a new century, a century big with the fate of the great nations of the earth. It rests with us now to decide whether in the opening years of that century we shall march forward to fresh triumphs, or whether, at the outset, we shall deliberately cripple ourselves for the contest. Is America a weakling to shrink from the world work that must be done by the world powers? No! No! The young giant of the west stands on a continent and clasps the crest of an ocean in either hand. Our nation, glorious in youth and strength, looks into the future with fearless and eager eyes and rejoices as a strong man to run a race."

"We do not stand in craven mood, asking to be spared the task, cringing as we gaze on the contest. No. We challenge the proud privilege of doing this work that Providence allows us, and we face the coming years high of heart and resolute of faith that to our people is given the right to win such honor and renown as has never yet been granted to the peoples of mankind."

Mrs. L. Root will attend the Canby camping, leaving here Saturday.

An exchange asks: Shall we wait for the news from Kansas City, or go ahead and celebrate anyhow? We are going ahead in McMinnville.

Word comes to us that the families of Dr. Grannis, Prof. Prentiss, Judge Ramsey and W. A. Benedict, all former residents of McMinnville, live on adjoining blocks on State street, Salem.

Cook & Son are building a house for Mr. Frank Sulley on the Bean block in this city. Mr. Sulley will make it his residence.

DR. PIERCE'S Favorite Prescription

"I am so grateful to you for your advice," says Mrs. Sidney B. Oakes, of Whitwell, Pittsylvania Co., Va. "When I commenced your medicines I had been treated by different doctors for three months or more, but would only receive partial relief for a short while and then would be worse than before. Was confined to my bed most of the time. At the time I commenced your treatment my left side was completely paralyzed. Had no desire to eat anything; bowels costive all the time. Nerves were all unstrung, so I could not bear the least noise. I also suffered from diseased ovaries and female weakness. But thanks to my Maker and you, after following your advice, I am able to do all my washing, sewing and house work in general. I haven't had a spasm in two months. Left off medicines about one month ago. Didn't think it necessary to continue them longer. I have taken about seven bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, seven of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' I heartily recommend those medicines to all suffering as I was."

makes weak women STRONG, sick women WELL.

The Independence Enterprise asks this pertinent question: "Notwithstanding the populist national convention was held at Sioux Falls, S. D., several weeks ago, and nominated Bryan and Towne, neither gentleman has been officially notified or at least publicly announced their acceptance of the nominations. The lapse of time between nomination and notification is unprecedented. Is it possible the 'great' populist party must first learn the sentiment of the democratic national convention before they can proceed with their notification?" This is exactly the tactics. Each party is afraid of the other, and the first convention will not complete its work until the second meets July 4th, when Towne will be withdrawn in favor of a New York man, perhaps Hill, in the hope of offsetting the overwhelming vote that is sure to be given Roosevelt. It is always a sort of insincere, betraying, stool-pigeon, pull-the-chestnut-out-of-the-fire game when men forsake their principles for the spoils of office, and resort to fusion.

Of the registered vote of the state, which is a little over 100,000, the municipal indebtedness received about 16 per cent; the judiciary amendment about 15 per cent; the irrigation amendment about 16 per cent; the repealing amendment 19 per cent and the woman suffrage amendment 26 1/2 per cent. Taking the vote actually cast as 80,000, the woman suffrage amendment received about 33 per cent; the repealing amendment a little less than 24 per cent; the irrigation amendment 20 per cent; the judiciary amendment nearly 19 per cent, and the municipal indebtedness amendment a little over 20 per cent. The people of Oregon do not want to amend the constitution of the state, at least on these lines.
