Yamhill County To Be Congratulated.

The Beet Sugar Factory Secured for Newberg.

The Reporter believes that June 30th, 1900, will go down into history as one of the most momentous days in the annals of the sixty years of Yamhill county's civilized settlement by white folks. It was the culmination of a period of strenuous effort of Newberg people, for the most part, aided and abetted by the more enterprising citizens of other parts of this and adjoining counties, to secure pledges of 5,000 acres to be devoted to beet sugar culture for five years in consideration of the establishment of a sugar factory on the Willamette river at Newberg. It meant for Yamhill county, if plans fail not, the securing of the second sugar factory in the state of Oregon; the retention at home of scores of people who would have gone elsewhere; the influx of hundreds of others with money to invest; the return to the farmer's pockets of money which wheat would not bring him, and a crop-rotation which will greatly redound to the benefit of a wheat-impooverished soil. The consummation of this enterprise means more than can be enumerated in advance. It means further, in the language of the great Oregon daily, "the demonstration of the quality and temper of the people of the community," and "an example to be commended to the consideration of other communities that may be sighing for developing and expanding agencies." It will be another verification of "Yamhill against the world," and the industry for western Oregon may claim, with other celebrities, that it got its start in old Yamhill. The pledges were not obtained without the most arduous labor on the part of solicitors. The meeting in this city was poorly attended, but the few present were enthusiastic, and got in on the ground floor. Good speeches were made by Messrs. W. C. Kruger, Wm. Manning, Rev. J. F. Day and Chas. Grissen. The pledges taken, combined with previous solicitation in the vicinity, aggregate about 300 acres. At Newberg Gov. Geer spoke to a densely packed audience, and at the summing up at the going down of the sun the total acreage of all contracts was found to be 5,100. Now let Dr. Korn and his syndicate "go ahead with their rat-killing." The people of Yamhill have done their share, and have done it nobly. Let us have no wheedling. Let the factory be built!

GOPHER.

Mrs. Chas. Nelson of McMinnville has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. W. F. Scott.

Wm. Arthur and wife of McMinnville visited with the family of Chas. Agee Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Barnett visited their daughter, Mrs. Short, at Ballston Sunday and Monday.

J. Scott and Miss Mary Ivie of Sheridan spent Sunday with Walter Scott and wife.

Several teams are constantly required to haul the lumber put out by the Agee & Daniels sawmill.

Hay harvest is not under much headway as yet, as the cloudy weather causes the farmers to be a little shy.

Mrs. J. Eborall has gone to the coast with her father and sister-in-law. She intends to be gone about seven weeks.

Miss Flo Potter recently arrived from her home in Sumpter and is visiting with her brother Milton and wife.

Elmer Imus came up from Dundee Saturday and returned home Sunday, accompanied by his sister, Miss Gertrude, who has just closed her school.

The school closed Friday, June 29th, with a picnic which was quite a success in spite of the rain. The program consisting of songs and recitations proved that the pupils were well trained and took great interest in all their work. About seventy-five people did full justice to the dinner served in E. H. Taylor's barn. The amusements of the afternoon consisted of a game of base ball between the school boys and the old men, which resulted in a score of 21 to 8 in favor of the boys. After the ball game the barn floor was swept, a violin procured, and young and old tripped the light fantastic toe for an hour or more.

New Music Teacher for the College.

The position of music teacher in McMinnville College was filled in a highly satisfactory manner on July 2d by the election of Miss Rose Trumbull of San Jose, Calif., who was a music teacher of good ability several years ago, when many Oregon people were well acquainted with her. Since that time she has taken a thorough course in the musical conservatory of San Jose and has had 3 years' experience in teaching in that place, having built up a large class of pupils, and also having had under her direction some of the leading choirs of that city. She is a lady of excellent christian character, of considerable ability as a composer of songs, and has had marked success as a teacher of both instrumental and vocal music. The friends of the college are very much pleased at the prospects for the musical department of "Old McMinnville."

Good 10-horse traction engine, in first-class shape. Inquire of E. M. BREIDWELL, 29-2

The census enumerator of the district of Columbia did not skip the White house. He wanted to know what was the present occupation of McKinley and how long he had been at it.

The democrats, you remember, blamed President McKinley for not declaring war with Spain sooner than he did. Now that the employment and demand created by that war has proved a good thing for the country, and incidentally for the party in power, they still allude to the fact that McKinley opposed the war, and in the next breath berate him for not withdrawing troops from the Philippines and from protecting the two thousand American lives endangered in China. Verily, consistency is no part of the democratic make-up. Democracy is only satisfied when it can be contrary.

DEATH OF JUDGE DENNY.

Judge Owen N. Denny, a Yamhill county farmer, died suddenly last Saturday afternoon, at Long Beach, of a general breaking down of his health. He had an encounter with a savage bull about two years ago, which affected his nerves in a serious manner, and he never fully recovered from the shock. A year ago he suffered a paralytic stroke, and has since been gradually failing in health. In the hope that a change might benefit him he went with his wife to Long Beach at the beginning of June. While he seemed at times to gain strength, his condition was never very hopeful, and the end, though sudden, was not unexpected.

Judge Denny had long been prominent in political life. He spent many years as a representative of the United States government in China, and, while consul-general at Shanghai, introduced into Oregon the ring-necked pheasant, a Mongolian game bird, which is now the principal upland bird in Oregon and Washington, and by common consent of sportsmen has been given the name of the Denny pheasant.

Judge Denny was a man of much ability, and of high character, and his death will be deeply mourned by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

O. N. Denny was born in Beverly, O., September 4, 1838. His father was a Virginian, and his mother was a Massachusetts woman and a direct descendant of the colonists who came over in the Mayflower. His parents immigrated to Oregon in 1852, and settled in Lebanon, their son receiving his education in the Lebanon Academy and Willamette University. He read law with Armory Holbrook and Joseph Wilson, and soon after his admission to the bar removed to The Dalles, where he was appointed and afterward elected judge of Wasco county.

He came to Portland about 1864, and was elected police judge, a position which he held for four years, and resigned to accept from President Grant the appointment of collector of internal revenue for Oregon and Alaska.

In 1870 he was appointed United States consul to Amoy, China, but declined the position. In 1877 he was appointed United States consul to Tien Tsin, and in 1880 was promoted to the position of consul general at Shanghai. After serving four years he resigned and returned to Portland, but had not been here long before he received a cablegram from Li Hung Chang, on behalf of the king of Corea, inviting him to Seoul. He accepted the invitation, and on his arrival there was made foreign advisor to the king, at a salary of $12,000 a year. He held this position four or five years, and returned to Portland early in the '90s.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, from the residence of his cousin, Judge George, and burial was made in Riverview cemetery.

In his address at the Philadelphia convention Senator Wolcott referred to the settlement in full of the Pacific railroad debt by the present administration. That feat was in truth a financial triumph seldom equaled in the history of any government.

In the absence of an issue, logic or mental activity of any kind, the democratic party can always fall back on abuse of Hanna.

Senator Wolcott said in his speech at the Philadelphia convention that "A democratic president could paralyze the operation of the new currency law as effectually as if it were wiped from our statute books." Democratic success would reopen the whole currency question and end in a battle for irredeemable paper money. No intelligent sound money man can have a doubt on that point.

France promises to have a short wheat crop this year, but to provide for her deficiency can come into our markets freely, bringing along the expropriation money which our countrymen have paid her. Although she put the prices up on them to pretty high figures, she can have our grain at current rates, with no extortionate grab at her pocketbook, an example of comity worthy of her study and imitation.

The North Yamhill Record is guilty of a glaring inconsistency again. It sees nothing admirable in Roosevelt, and declares him a candidate of the republican machine. The one thing more than any other that has caused Roosevelt to rise to a place of distinction has been that he was "anti-machine" in everything. Populists are always clamoring for "men of the people," but haven't the honesty and fairness to recognize one who has come to the front through that very channel.

The words suppressed by Lemuel E. Quigg which General Grosvenor asserts, on the authority of Senator Foraker, were understood by the committee to be a part of the republican platform, read as follows: "We reassert the principle which was the watchword of the republican party in its first great battle, of which Abraham Lincoln was the illustrious champion, and on which he was elected president, that congress has full legislative power over territory belonging to the United States, subject only to the fundamental safeguards of liberty, justice and personal rights."

A Democratic View.

Hon. Wm. Galloway, of Oregon City, Ore., is in Weiser visiting his brother, Thos. C. Galloway. Mr. Galloway is receiver of the U. S. land office at Oregon City, and is rather a good stayer, considering that he is a democrat and has held the office for five years straight. He thinks McKinley hasn't discovered him yet, probably because the president is busy practicing for the various political flops he is making so frequently, or prosperity is so thick that no republican cares to be chained up to a petty $3,000 a year office.—Weiser, Idaho, Signal.

REPRESENTATIVES OF FIVE GENERATIONS OF ONE FAMILY.

The death a few days ago at Eureka, Calif., of Robert F. Roberts, of Portland, breaks a chain of five generations. The oldest representative of this family is Mrs. Susan Roberts of Lolo, Cal., and the youngest Mapril Bernice Keasey, 2 years and 2 months old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Keasey of Portland. Grandma Roberts is in her 93rd year. She maintains all her faculties, does her own work and is still as spry as many women at 60. Her son Robert reached the age of 71 years. He came to Oregon in pioneer days, but later settled in California. He arrived here in February, 1859. He visited friends and relatives here and in the state during the past winter. Mrs. Rosabel Roberts Guild, wife of J. O. Guild of McMinnville, is the third link in this unusual line of a living family. She is the oldest daughter of Robert Roberts. Mrs. Guild was the first white child born in Humboldt county, Calif. Mrs. Nettie Guild Keasey, wife of D. E. Keasey—fourth link in the chain—was born in Portland, March 22, 1873, on the banks of Guild's Lake, where the North Pacific mill now stands. Her grandfather's farm formerly comprised a large part of North Portland. She received her education at the State Normal School, and is known as a successful teacher. Mapril Bernice Keasey, last in the interesting family line, is a bright little girl, 2 years old. She was born in Portland, May 5, 1898. The ages of the people are respectively 93, 74, 66, 27 and 2 years.
