

CANCER IS NOT INCURABLE

Time was when Cancer was considered as incurable as leprosy. Physicians and friends could give little relief or encouragement to one afflicted with this terrible disease. Even now doctors know of no remedy for this fearful malady; while admitting it to be a blood disease, they still insist that there is no hope outside of a surgical operation, and advise you to have the Cancer cut out, but at the same time cannot assure you that it will not return. You may cut or draw out the sore, but another will come in its place, for the disease is in the blood—is deep-seated and destructive, and beyond the reach of the surgeon's knife or caustic, flesh-destroying plasters. The blood must be purified and strengthened, the system relieved of all poisonous, effete matter before the Cancer sore will heal.

S. S. S. is the only medicine that can overcome this powerful and contaminating poison and force it out of the blood. It builds up and invigorates the old, and supplies new, rich, life-giving blood. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy; no mineral can be found in it; the roots and herbs from which it is made contain powerful purifying properties that act directly upon the blood system and make a safe and permanent cure of Cancer. It has cured thousands, why not you?

Cancer is not always inherited; your family may be free from any taint, yet your blood may become so polluted that a severe and stubborn form of the disease may develop from a sore or ulcer on your tongue or other part of your body; a slight bruise or hurt, a little pimple on the eyelid, hip and other causes so insignificant as to attract attention to cure it—begin with S. S. S.

Send for our special book on Cancer; it contains much information that will interest you; it is free. Write our physicians about your case, and for any advice or information wanted; they have made a life study of Cancer and all blood diseases. We make no charge whatever for this. BEYOND THE MOUNTAINS.

The Reporter Man Writes of Scenes Along the Route from McMinnville to the Mining Regions.

The slothful dreamer, luxuriating in idle reveries of mocking riches may be content to gloat in imagination over the glittering atoms lying in fabulous abundance away off in the Klondike or up at Nome, or even in the great Sumpter district. The dreamer who dreams at home, longing all the while for the riches that he knows are only waiting for his hand to reveal, and who is indulging in gloomy prophecies concerning the condition of the world generally, and who mayhap now and then are led to speculate as to visionary plans for the relief of mankind whereby we might all come into the possession of all the blessings conceived by the mind of man, may not be convinced that the world is all right, but when the truth comes to him he will find that he has forgotten his mercies in contemplation of his troubles. Men are apt to grow morbidly gloomy, some discordant and some complaining. Pessimists and misanthropists will multiply when the happy conditions of life are temporarily turned back, and the people who see the world through a glass darkly are to be found in the "booming" mining camps of eastern Oregon, as surely as they are in the more happily situated and more generally prosperous farming sections. It is doubly certain, therefore, that those who have gone to the far north in search of that which cheers, have encountered more gloom and cob-webbed ambition than those who have sought earthly treasures nearer home. This presumption tallies one in favor of the project of trying your luck first in the Oregon gold fields; then if the utopian dream of picking up gold from the streets, or catching the shining particles as they fly in swift clouds of dust through the highways and byways is realized, it will be very well to conclude your life's following chapter in Nome or Klondike.

A trip to eastern Oregon's gold fields has the advantage of cheaper and swifter means of transportation. Leave McMinnville in the morning, and you are landed in Baker City that evening. The Portland-Chicago special on the O. R. & N. carries the traveler out of Portland, after about an hour's halt from the arrival of the Sheridan express. You are told that the elegantly upholstered reclining chair cars are just the things necessary for a comfortable daylight ride up the magnificent Columbia. They are all right if you like them, but after trying them one will very naturally associate them with the instruments of torture used by the Spaniards in the middle ages to make men and women quit being Christians. Truly, while the modern car-chairs are not intended for the attainment of that end, a passenger after spending a day in one of the narrow, stiff-backed things, if he is at all sensitive and conscientious, will be convinced in his own heart that he stands before God on a par with Judas and Ananias.

Eastern Oregon has an air of thrift and enterprise this year. Grain fields are showing signs of ripening, and climatic conditions have left the wheat in a much more favorable condition than in the Willamette valley so far as relates to the early grain. Manufacturing industries inaugurated some years ago tend to induce the general prosperity of different sections. Pendleton's woolen mill provides a large pay-roll for the working people of Umatilla county's capital city. La Grande depends for prosperity on the operation of the beet sugar factory, while the little city of Union, with characteristic western energy, has in operation a fine woolen mill. Our own Yamhill county, whose representative men have abundant capital must, and will in time, build more mills and factories when they see the advantage of such to themselves and to the communities.

Leaving the farming and industrial centers of the vast eastern Oregon country and plunging off into the unexplored regions of Grant county, where the daring prospector has lately pitched his tent in search for gold, abundant material for the romancer may be found. Miners have traversed the beaten paths, but the byways, the gorges, the fastnesses, the mineral zones yet to be discovered, will be of great moment to the ready pen of the chronicler of the future. The wilderness of tall timber and towering peaks, the solitude and grandeur and the rarified air of his surroundings will inspire some future author to deeds of daring. Even now the publication of the true stories unearthed by the hardy pioneers within the borders of the golden Northwest read like the weird fancies of Rider Haggard, creating a deal of discussion as to the unrevealed wonders yet to come. The latest of these stories comes from the Greenhorn mountain section near the new town of Lawton, the bare facts being detailed in a letter from a physician, and the queer story relates the strange results of the transfusion of blood from a fowl to the veins of an infant. Some years ago a son was born to a family in Missouri, who a couple of years ago moved to Eastern Oregon. While young the child was dying of inanition, and to save its life a young doctor transfused into the infant's veins the blood of a fowl taken from the farmyard. The child became strong, but as he grew in years his mother observed that he was intensely fond of outdoor life and cared nothing for the society of other children. He always played with the barnyard fowls, and his mother found it difficult to make him stay in the house. Later, she discovered that he left his bed in the night and was found in the chicken house in the morning. She could not break him of this habit. She was distressed, too, to see a bright red streak of hair growing from his forehead across to the back of his neck, and that he imitated the fowls in his actions, deliberately raising one foot high from the ground and putting it down again with all the dignity of a Brahma rooster. He made strange chicken-like noises, too, imitating the crowing of a game-cock and clucking softly to himself as he strutted about the yard. The birds of the yard followed him about, and the hens clucked noisily at him when he crowded. His mother watched these strange developments in her child with anxiety, and now that they are constantly becoming more pronounced, she has decided to send him back to the physician who saved the lad's life in infancy, for treatment, hoping that he will be able to arrest the abnormal chicken-hearted symptoms developing in her boy. An Epidemic of Diarrhoea.

Mr. A. Sanders, writing from Coccaut Grove, Fla., says there has been quite an epidemic of diarrhoea there. He had a severe attack and was cured by four doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says he also recommended it to others and they say it is the best medicine they ever used. Socialism No. 2.

EDITOR REPORTER: The Transcript editors speak only of the socialist votes in Belgium, while several countries were mentioned in my former article. In fact socialism is spreading rapidly in all civilized countries. It is international and by far the greatest political party on earth. If the ratio of increase is kept up throughout the present year, it will cast more votes the year 1900 than any two political parties now in existence. These editors further say that Dennis Kearney, the sand lot agitator, was a good socialist. He may have been. All agitators are not socialists, nor all socialists agitators. I once heard of a carpenter that quit work and turned agitator. He was a "walking delegate" as it were. Don't know whether he was a labor union member or not. He persuaded some other men to quit work and tried to organize something of the kind. These fellows would get together and chew the rag about rich people generally. My! what stories they would tell. Told about one prominent business man, the Hon. Mr. Dives, who actually died and went to the bad place, and another poor, diseased, filthy tramp that died and went to the good place. This carpenter made so much trouble that the business men and church members had to shut him off. They hired a detective named Judas to run him down. But, Mr. Transcript, this same carpenter's name and deeds stand out brighter and far above all those who lived before or since his day. Some claim him as the greatest socialist that ever lived. Be that as it may, he was not much of a business man. Some editors and preachers may feel shocked at what they may call flippant remarks about the Savior. There is no intention to be irreverent, but to use plain, every day language that can be understood. While on this question of loyalty to his cause, I would ask these editors and ministers, that when they petition to that unfeeling source "thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," if they believe it can be done. If they do believe it, they are socialists, if they don't believe it, they are hypocrites when they send up that petition. But this may be too far out into the white light of absolute socialism. It makes our eyes blink. We will begin back with the public ownership of electric light and water plants, where we are all socialists. By and by, we will buy the railroads, and shut off the profit taker there also. Then we can ride fifteen days for six dollars as they do in Switzerland. We could go to Portland and back for twenty-five cents. You see that profit business is terribly vicious. Then we will stop competition among laborers as the trusts are doing among capitalists. That competition in business is bad. It adulterates nearly every article of commerce. When we have put aside all competition among working people and have stopped the profit taker from his grafts, then it will not be much of a job to "do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." The socialistic light is pretty bright away out there, but then we can go one eye on it, and think about it. Some people can think.

IS IT RIGHT

For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines.

From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C.

It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by Howorth & Co., druggists.

ALL ABOUT CALIFORNIA.

A Handsome Series of New and Useful Publications.

California is the natural paradise of the holiday maker. Its resources are inexhaustible, its invitation universal, and its resorts and attractions among the most noted in the world.

The Southern Pacific company publishes descriptive literature containing valuable information about all of them. It is for free distribution and may be obtained from any Southern Pacific agent, T. H. Goodman, general passenger agent at San Francisco, or C. H. Markham, G. P. A. Portland, Ore. If you apply by mail inclose a stamp for each publication.

"Resorts and attractions along the coast line" is a handsomely illustrated folder, giving a description of the health and pleasure resorts on the coast between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"Shasta Resorts" embellished with beautiful half-tone engravings, describes the scenic and outing attractions of the vast and wonderful Shasta region, the grandest of pleasure grounds.

"California south of Tehachapi" tells all about the charms of that remarkably favored semi-tropic garden spot, Southern California.

A handsome map of California, complete in detail, reliable, skillfully indexed, and full of information about the State's resources. It is the only publication of its kind conveniently folded for pocket use.

"Summer Outings" is a 32-page folder devoted to the camping retreats in the Shasta region and Santa Cruz mountains. It appeals more directly to that large and growing class of recreation seekers who prefer this popular form of outing.

"Pacific Grove" is the Chautauqua of the west, and this folder not only describes the pretty place itself, but gives a program of the religious and educational meetings, conventions, schools, etc., to be held there this summer.

Other publications are "Lake Tahoe," "Geysers and Lake County," "Yosemite," "Hotel del Monte," "Castle Crags," each brimful of information about the places named, and printed in the highest style of the art.

John Chapman sold his furniture store building this week to A. H. Thomas. Mr. Thomas has not decided whether he will move his dry goods into the building or not. He has a lease on his present location until the first of August. Ike Daugherty has completed his work as census enumerator at Grand Ronde, and reports about 450 Indians on the reservation, including half-breeds. He says the Indians were very willing to give all the information they could, and he probably had less trouble in getting the required statistics than the census takers of the white folks had. Some very old Indians reside on the reservation. He found quite a few as old as 90 years, and a good many who were in their eighties.

Mr. Price has transferred his lease on the farm land in Gopher valley to Mr. G. W. Severns, of Phelps county, Neb. Mr. Severns, accompanied by his family, has been on the way from Nebraska for a year, traveling by wagon, and visited the national park, several states east of us, and for the last few months in southern Oregon. He says he is tired of camping, and having heard of great Yamhill, has decided to settle down long enough to look around for a permanent location where he can go into fruit and stock raising.—Sheridan Sun.
