Miss Lillian Ackerman has returned from a three weeks' visit at Hood River.
During her stay in Wasco county she made one of a party of mountain climbers that ascended Mount Hood. She enjoyed the trip very much, in spite of the hard work incident to the ascent of the hoary-headed old giant—Statesman.
Even the horses of the Willamette valley will laugh at Game Warden Quin-by's discovery that sportsmen obey the game laws but farmers do not. What are game laws for, the horses would like to know, if not to keep city folks out of the woods so the farmer can get all the game?—Oregonian.
Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castleman of Portland visited with the Patty family in this city last week. They were on the return from a bicycle trip to Sheridan, having made the trip from Portland to Sheridan in one day. Becoming tired of riding in the dust, they took the train from this point home.
Next Sunday will be a specially interesting day at the M. E. church in view of the fact that President H. L. Boardman of McMinnville College has kindly consented to preach, both morning and evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all members and friends of the church to be present.
Forty cents per box promises to be the prevailing price for hop pickers when the season opens the last of this month.
Some growers are already offering this price, and others will have to come to it.
The fine weather is favorable for the crop, which is said to be free from pests and of a high quality.
There is a persistent rumor circulating that, as soon as the fall season sets in and present orders are filled, the woolen mills at Dallas will be dismantled and the machinery shipped elsewhere, probably to Portland. It is said that no arrangements have been made to keep up the wool supply and that the expense of shipping in raw material is too great to make the business profitable.—Independence West Side.
Capt. H. L. Heath and J. C. Cooper were down to Portland the last of the week for the purpose, as the Oregonian expresses it, of patching together a double harness by means of which the fusion executive committee can pull the Bryan band-wagon through Oregon this summer and fall. It was decided to bring no speakers out from the east to stump the state, the general opinion being that local speakers can do more effective work than the imported article, owing to their acquaintance with the men whom they address. A meeting was called in Portland for September 7, when plans for an active campaign will be formed. Some of the members of the committee are a little dubious about the chances of the boy orator to carry the state, but all believe that they should keep up the fight till the last armed foe expires.
Hon. H. B. Miller, now in China, writes back to Mr. Markham, of the Southern Pacific, as follows concerning the great opportunity awaiting Oregon and Washington in the dairy industry:
"Since leaving America I have been to Honolulu, Manila, Japan and China, and everywhere I found people using imported butter. The steamers on the Pacific use it in great quantities, and all the foreigners in all the places mentioned, and many natives use it. In Japan, butter from Sweden in one-pound cans retails for 45 cents, gold, per pound. This great butter market by all the rules of economy should be supplied from Western Oregon and Washington. You are making no mistake in your good work to make Oregon a great dairy state, and I write you of my observations as a word of encouragement. If Oregon is thoroughly aroused to its opportunity in this line, it will leap to the front as one of the greatest dairy states in America."

Ex-Judge W. C. Hale of Eugene, and Mr. Kratz says McMinnville is importing wheat. He bought 2000 bushels of the 1898 crop from Perrydale this week for milling purposes, at 50 cts per bushel.

The endeavors of the C. P. church held a most enjoyable social Thursday evening, August 9th. The attendance was large, and the program, which was literary and musical, and included games and contests, with lemonade and cake as refreshments, was most thoroughly enjoyed.

blow through his whiskers for ten days.

wise Frank would bear watching.—Independence West Side.
County Recorder Hoskins daughter was married at Newberg last week in a wedding gown made from the one which her mother used on a like occasion about 25 years ago. This is regarded as a very rare and favored opportunity for a daughter, but rather risky for the parents, according to the old adage, "You will never get rich until your wedding clothes are worn out."
"The poorest general crop for 40 years, or that Oregon has ever seen," is the pronouncement of Wash Laughlin of Carlton. He has been here since 1850, and knows whereof he speaks. His wheat, both fall and spring, yielded 14 bushels to the acre. Lawyer Douglas of North Yamhill had 19, and Joe Matvey's is reported at 25. Mr. Laughlin says oats runs from 15 to 32 bushels in his neighborhood.
J. R. Shepherd, the well known Polk county prune grower, says that he is satisfied that good prices await the Oregon prune crop, and that he is confirmed in this opinion by the methods of a California buyer, who recently visited this section. The buyer in question went around quietly to the various growers and told them that he needed a few carloads of prunes to fill an order and that in order to get the fruit he would pay an advance of 1/4 cent per pound on the market price. He made the provision, however, that all who wanted to get this advanced price must make contracts within a limited time; when he will stop buying. Mr. Shepherd believes that Californians cannot supply orders and will have to buy from Oregon.
A thresher was burned on the Major Bruce place near Corvallis last week. A bundle wagon, after unloading, had driven away from the table. A workman began with his fork to pitch to the table a pile of chaff and straw that had accumulated against the side of the separator. As he removed a forkful from under the machine, a mass of flames burst forth and spread rapidly. The twenty men in the crew began a desperate struggle to beat back the fire, but in spite of everything that could be done, the flames spread to the interior of the separator and within an incredibly brief time were issuing from the straw carrier.
A man who helped to fight the fire says it was scarcely a minute from the time the fire was discovered until the separator was nothing but a roaring mass of fire. An illustration of the rapidity with which the fire did its work is learned from the fact that the only pair saved were the big belt connecting with the engine, the small belts, and the spirit level on the separator. So quickly did the whole thing happen that it was only with the greatest difficulty that the sacks of wheat that had been threshed were saved. The fire started from a spark from the engine.

E. J. Wood and sons, accompanied by

he mountain to the head waters of the Judge Boise has decided that wheat consigned to a warehouseman and by him sold to flouring mills, is still the property of the consigners, unless they had specifically ordered its sale, and must be paid for by the purchasers, although they had already paid the warehouseman for the same wheat; supposing it was his, or that he had authority to sell it.

This decision, if sustained by the supreme court, will make the position of warehouseman a very important one in the business community, since purchasers of grain must in many cases rely upon his representations as to the ownership of the grain they purchase, or his authority to sell the particular grain they buy.
The decision of the supreme court in this case will be awaited with unusual interest.
Arthur Cooper, who is again in South America, writes to his parents of one of the greatest experiences of his life. He saw the recent battle at Panama which terminated the revolution on the isthmus and was within 700 yards of the fight.
Bullets flew plentifully about him, and two persons wounded in an adjoining building. The attack lasted ten hours without a two-second break in the firing.
Arthur went out to assist the Red Cross, and says he had to get hardened to the sight by degrees. He says if you add to your best imagination of bodies torn by shot and shell, the condition of decomposing bodies swelling even to bursting the few clothes covering them, and chickens, hogs and buzzards feeding in the wounds, you can get an idea of the sight that met his view on the first and only battlefield he ever saw or desires to see.
After the opposing generals had signed a truce and with white and red-cross flags flying, both armies pitched into each other for a 14 hour fight, and what followed is a repetition of what preceded.
The government flatly refused to have anything to do with the dead bodies on the field (this is within the city mind you) and the few foreign merchants are carrying on the work.

In last week's paper I notice a statement of one Fairchiles who deeded me a piece of hill land to care for him had been assailed by my wife and knocked down with a broom for feeding a cat some bread. Now, facts are stubborn things. "Uncle Frank," as we call him, interferes with the affairs of our house, and has twice threatened to kill the would-be assailant, and at this time came at her with fists doubled and struck at and kicked Mrs. Pound. To defend herself she used a broom, and he jerked the broom from her hands. Then she pushed him over.
