THE COMING MAN.

A pair of very chubby legs Incased in scarlet hose;
A pair of little stubby boots

With rather doubtful toes; A little kilt, a little coat, Cut as a mother can-And lo! before us strides in state

The future's "coming man. His eyes, perchance, will read the stars, And search their unknown ways; Perchance the human heart and soul

Will open to their gaze; Perchance their keen and flashing glance Will be a nation's light-Those eyes that now are wistful bent On some "big fellow's" kite.

That brow where mighty thought will dwell

In selemn, secret state; Where herce ambition's restless strength Shall war with future fate;

Where science from now hidden caves New treasures shall outpour "Tis knit now with a troubled doubt, Are two, or three cents, more?

Those lips that in the coming years Will plead, or pray, or teach; Where whispered worlds on lightning

From world to world may reach; That, sternly grave, may speak command, Or, smiling win control-Are coaxing now for gingerbread

With all a baby's soul!

Those hands-those little busy hands-So sticky, small and brown;

Those hands whose only mission seems To pull all order down—

Who knows what hidden strength may lie Within their future grasp. Though now 'tis but a taffy stick in sturdy hold they clasp?

Ab. blessings on those little hands Whose work is yet undone! And blessings on those little feet Whose race is yet unrun!

And blesings on the little brain That has not learned to plan! Whate'er the future holds in store, God bless the "coming man." -Elmira Telegram.

PERCY.

was at work. We had been furnishing-my wife and I. We thought we had done it cheaply, but a few charming things in the bric-a-brac line, added at the last moment, had so overbalanced our account that I felt it imperative to make up a better check than usual that week on the dally paper upon which I earned my dally bread.

So I was hard at work. But my wife had been hard at work, too. She had been to Paul Jones' saleit was "remnant day" - and she had got a few little things which dear baby absolutely had to have, besides a few more quite indispensable trifles for herself-all of them "dirt cheap." She had been forced to confess, however, that the week's housekeeping money had been severely encroached upon, and I the Jones sale. In fact I took some credit to myself for my silence both over the interruption and over the advisability of the purchases; I did not even endeavor to stop her when she had quickly gathered up all her little soft parcels and had deprived me of her presence.

am afraid I was not enthusiastic over instead of chasing the passing cloud as the door slammed after her. But. there, the bills were hanging over my · head, and I had written one para-on the stairs, shouting, "I know my under my breath before the door open- leaves, ed and one Percy Falmouth stood before me.

He was a college friend-one of those who always prevent one from working. of a few years ago. Many are so close but to whom one is never able to say and pushed the eigarettes toward him, are real leaves, and not constructed out but even as I did so I forgot his offense in sudden alarm at his appearance.

His face, that was wont to be fresh, was sallow and gray, and his eye, that was always merry, was dull and down-

"What's the matter, old man?" said I. "You're down on your luck."

It took him some time to bring the trouble out, even to me. But at last he managed it. He was in love. "Is that all?" cried I cheerily, "Well, you have got over the beginning it isn't bad at all."

"It isn't that." said my friend gloomily, after a pause. "Isn't what?" I asked.

"It isn't that I mind being in love." he explained, "but how am I to keep

My chair spun around again of itself. "You!" I cried, almost flercely, "Why, haven't you got $2,500 a year of your own?" and a vision of the weekly books and the monthly bills swam before my eyes and made me run my fingers wildly through my hair. "You're a nice one to talk!"

Percy smiled sarcastically. "Two thousand five hundred dollars!" echoed he. "Why, it wouldn't keep her in frilled underwear and short silk petticoats! I looked grave instantly, "O." I murmured. "And it wouldn't keep any of them." sald my friend, rising and throwing his eigarette away as he warmed to his subject. "And one wouldn't wish that it should. What man cares to see his wife looking a frump, and dowdier than other women? And it isn't only the clothes; it's the house, and the furniture, and the servants, and every thing. Dinginess is out of date. People don't cover up their carpets with washing drugget now, or let their their friends herring and mutton chops for dinner. Ca ne se fati plus, and you know it." I sighed. Yes, I did know it-more or

"If I were to marry on $2,500 a year," continued Percy emphatically,"I should be in debt two months, and my wife and I would have quarreled forever."

Why didn't I smile? I had been married more than two months, and, though I had certainly been in debt most of the time, my wife and I had not quarreled-yet.

But a vision of pouting mouth and tear-dimmed blue eyes rose uncomfortably before me; instead of smiling it was I now who sighed.

Perhaps my wife had not brought home small, soft parcels enough from Jones' sale instead of-as I had meanly supposed that morning-too many.

"But a man can work," said I, as bravely as I could, drawing my papers toward me.

"Work!" echoed Percy, bitterly. "That's all very well if you've got brains. I have no qualifications for earning money, and love in a cottage isn't good enough nowadays."

Somehow this speech restored me to

He smoked another cigaret, and then took up his hat, and I breathed a sigb "It's a devil of a mess for a fellow to be in," he said, gloomily. "Yes," said I, I'm afraid you'll have to find a wife who can work on her own account. There are a good many of them about nowadays." He looked at me doubtfully. "O. I hate that sort," he said. "A girl with money's better, but that won't help me just now."

"So I supposed," said I. And I let him out. I had sworn at his entrance, but he had brought me luck.

The words literally flew from my pen when I sat down again; there was something spurring me on-there was a goal in sight that I knew of. And when I had put my name to the last sheet and was free I sought it. Upstairs in the nursery my wife sat beside the cradle; she had our child in her arms and was fulling him to sleep. Her eyes shone as she looked up at me, her face was fresh, and she was as dainty as any man could wish in a plain, white frock-ready to welcome me to dinner after my work. As I bent made up a splendid week, darling; so you needn't worry about the pur-

And she laughed, saying: "There veren't so many after all, you know. Only a few dollars' worth. But I shouldn't have interrupted you while you were making them!"

And then we went together to the dainty meal of her frugal ordering, and I was sorry that I had not been able to explain to Percy what it was that made it "good enough."-Exchange.

ARTIFICIAL TREE INDUSTRY.

Factory Made Palms of Life-Like Formation Are Now Numerous.

This is the age of things artificial, A palm manufactory has recently opened a salesroom on Upper Broadway, and a huge sign lower down on the same thoroughfare notifies the mob that another store of the same sort will soon The artificial from her sweet eyes-as I knew how to | tree industry is comparatively new and do-I had even heaved a sigh of relief it must be profitable. All over town one sees counterfeits. Many of the large stores, and most of the more prominent hotels of this city, including some of those that are most taste-So I was hard at work, and within ful in their decorations, now have huge sight of the end at last, when a voice palms in their halls or entrances, and even in private houses it is not uncomway," made me swear a gentle oath mon to find plants with removable

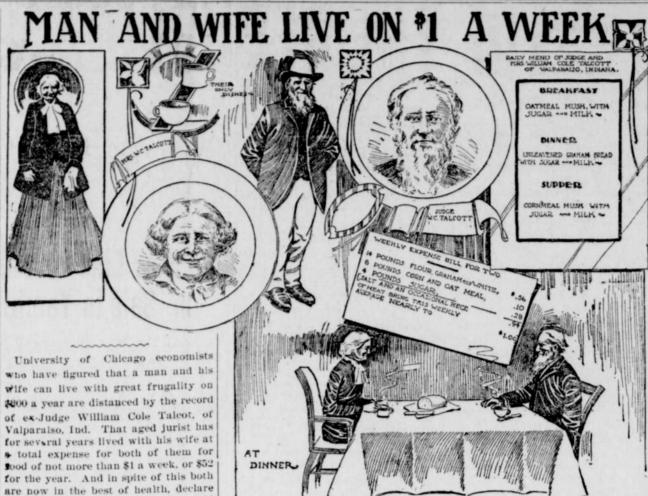

The prepared palms, such as are used to-day, are infinitely more real in appearance than the old artificial plants in their resemblance to the live plant that it is hard to detect them as imita-I smiled a sickly smile of welcome tions without close scrutiny. The leaves of enameled tin, like the old kind, and the fiber on the trunk is real fiber. It is only on approaching them and examining them that the leaves are seen to be painted and the stalks inserted into, but not growing out of, the stem. The price of the manufactured article varies from 50 cents to $25 for the ordinary specimens, but some of the larger and finer ones amount to $50. or even $100. A small fern palm sprig of some fifteen inches high is sold at don't be alarmed. I assure you, when half a dollar; a tree, such as those that are seen in the halls of hotels, measuring, say, nine feet high, and with about eighteen removable leaves, will cost $17. The sago palm is a more expensive variety, a tree of five feet selling for as much as $20. We may rail against humbug to our hearts' content. but, somehow or other, the laugh is seldom on the fellow who fools us .- Pittsburg Dispatch.

Work's Great Work.

The movement in G. A. R. circles to erect a monument over the grave of Henry Clay Work, at Hartford, Conn., revives the fact that his father was once confined in the Missourl penitentlary on the charge of aiding slaves to escape from the State of Missouri to Illinois. When the elder Work was released, one of the conditions of his pardon being that he should return to the State of Connecticut, whence he came originally, and remain there for the rest of his natural life. This obligaion he faithfully kept. The son, Heny C. Work, was born at Middletown, Conn., and saw the end of American slavery while thousands of soldiers and citizens sang "Nicodemus," "Ring the Bell, Watchman," and "Marching mand, and tact had gained the day .-

Through Georgia." The Czar's Scepter.

The Russian scepter is of solid gold, three feet long, and contains among its wives go about in linsey-wolsey gowns ornaments 268 diamonds, 300 rubies and dust the knick-knacks, or give and fifteen emeralds.

that they never felt better nor could work better in their lives, and believe that they have solved the problem of happiness and health in resorting to the plainest of plain living. Though nearly 85 years old Judge Talcot works daily in a garden near his house or about the house itself, is never ill, and is apparently as strong as most men who are not within a score of years of his age. And Mrs. Talcot, not quite ten years his junior, though snowy white of hair, has as fresh a color in her cheeks as a girl of 15, and does Valparaiso. every day all the housework about

Though the diet on which this is accomplished will appear to many people barren of everything that makes the table attractive, yet the two who have long made it their own declared that down to kiss her I said gayly: "I've desire for other things quickly disappeared when they resorted to it, and that they neither want nor need additions to it. The rule of their table provides in general that their meals shall consist chiefly of cereal products with milk and sugar. They eat generally for breakfast oatmeal mush and milk and sugar. For dinner bread and milk and sugar, and for supper cornmeat mush and sugar. They vary this slightly from time to time with other cereal foods, and when they feel a taste for it add a bit of meat, for neither is a strict vegetarian.

For two-thirds of a century William Cole Talcot has been known as a leader in social reforms in Northern Indiana. He came from the East in 1835 on an excursion trip around the great lakes on one of the earliest steamers. The vessel ran up to the Sault Ste. Marie, then in the midst of the great two different parties, who were at we have milk sent to us by Mr. Talcot's Northwestern wilderness. From there swords' points, and the troubles be- son, but even if we had these things to It is unfortunate that many manuit went into Green Bay, and its pas- tween these two soon destroyed any no- pay for we would not need to spend facturers of alum baking powders state beautiful water the virgin forest, in phic community. A big common house but we follow a wise creed by living alum. It is only right that consumers which lived Indians almost unacquaint- had been built for a starter, having a plainly when we are at home or when should have correct information as to ed with white men, save as they met separate entrance and room for each on the railroad."

Instances in Which Courteons Men

Have Found Politeness Profitable.

Many years ago the late Dr. Snippen, of Philadelphia, left his house in early morning and was hurrying down the street when he noticed a singular and ferocious-looking man, whose gaze was fastened upon him. With instinctive politeness and bonhommie he smiled.

raised his hat and passed on, when sud-dealy he heard a shot. Turning he his home with the insane intention of vated courtesy had put the man off his foundly. In the morning he awoke with a start, with that indescribable feeling that some one was looking at him, and, glancing up, he saw that he and feathers, was bending over him in

He took in the situation at a glance knew his immediate danger, and had no means of averting it; neither did he understand a word of their language.

But he was self-possessed, knew the universal language of nature, and belleved that even under the war paint and feathers "a man's a man for a'

that." He fixed his clear, bold eye upon the Indian, and-smiled! Gradually the fierceness passed away from the eye abore him, and at last an answer ing smile came over the face. Both were men-both were brothers-and be was saved! The savage took him and r his protection, brought him to his wigwam, and after a few days restored

him to his friends. Courage, self-com-

Instinct of Cats.

The instinct of animals in the mat-

Lippincott's Magazine.

no amiable mood.

found that the stranger had just left they came, and up the lake to Chicago, | colony finally disbanded. and from this straggling hamlet across the lake to Michigan City. There Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Congress Is Acting to Suppress Their where a great city was expected to with jurisdiction over six counties. He grow Judge Talcot left the boat and held this office fifteen years. He had soon after settled in St. Joseph County. He has lived in that vicinity nearly the local paper-the Valparaiso Vidette food adulterations and food frauds has ever since, and most of the time at

Even in his youth he was a thinker along original lines. Having when a boy been given a scholarship in college by a church educational society, he be came convinced during his freshman year that the creed of the church which was supporting him was narrow and was founded on myths and traditions. He therefore resigned the scholarship and proceeded to study by himself. After he came to Indiana the Brook Farm communistic experiment was made and co-operation and socialistic colonies became much talked about. The young Talcot took the lead in ter was for many years a teacher of Northern Indiana—in which there were penmanship in the "Collegiate Instiscattered farming settlements and tute" of Valparaiso, and was a close small towns-and in 1844 started the Philadelphia Industrial Association, Land was secured near South Bend, site, on the river, and a house and other buildings put up. There were nine families of seventy persons in the community, numbering cobblers, carpenters, farmers and men of other trades, and the plan was strictly a Commonwealth. All went well for a time. The land, however, had been secured from

URBANITY A PAYING QUALITY. eral dozen cats found refuge during yound measure. I have known men to

that they will only eat what is good

This may or may not be a fallacy.

but the instinct of self-preservation,

which is common to all animals, except, perhaps, horses (who, being very

Was Just Com ion Lying.

ternal taxes. I discovered by accident but for chance we would have been inferior grade.

for them.

killing the first man he met. He was bags of nerves, will during a fire be-guard, and the next passer-by had desert the ship which is no longer sea-derness, and night overtook him in a earn them a debt of gratitude and per-he lay down under a tree and slept pro- shop windows.

lives, there is a popular superstition closed."

pioneers or the few Americans who had the center, and there were outbuildings for a century by a Chinese wail they penetrated thus far into the wilderness and plans for larger houses, but after could not have been more destitute or for furs. Out through Death's Door two and a half years of existence the ignorant of the modern conveniences.

After that Mr. Talcot was elected been before this owner and editor of on manufactures upon the subject of -and after resigning from the bench created a sensation in congress and again took charge of the paper and con- awakened great interest throughout ducted it for thirty years. In the early the country. years he found it necessary often to people of Porter County. He has kept public. to his free thought, and is now leader earlier life, and in them he has the un- ists have found to contain alum: qualified support of his wife. The latfriend of Judge Talcot and his first wife. "There are two things for people to about two miles from the original town do to be happy and be healthy," says Mrs. Talcot. "They must live plainly and they must sleep at night instead of WHITE LILY half the daytime. Early to bed and living is another. In our opinion an expenditure of $300 a year for two people would be great extravagance. To be sure, we have no rent to pay and sengers beheld along the shores of that tion of "brotherly love" in the philadel- $300 a year. We do not stint ourselves. that their powders do not contain > catch fire and remained intact. Cats comment and began to talk about have a peculiar gift in this direction, something else. He had told a lie, was An Odorless Onion. The latest product of scientific propagation is the odorless onion. Just how an onion can be odorless and still remain an onion is not explained. To most people the odor is all there is of an onion and that is enough. The elimthe first man; but his absolute fearless have with suicidal obstinacy), has ness and constitutional as well as culti- been proved time and again. The rats ination of the characteristic feature of a vegetable of such long and strong which, in practice as well as in theory, standing in natural history ought to be reckoned among the proudest achievecaught the bullet intended for him, worthy, are a notable example of it: That smile and bow had saved his life. and there are many animal lovers who ments of man. But an enion deprived When the country was a century would not consider it any way extrav- of that delicious tang and the peneyounger and the Indian was yet in the agant to suggest that the quacking of trating scent which goes with it, can land, a gentleman upon the then fron- the geese in the capitol was due to a hardly be an onion. The palate which tier was hunting with friends, got sep- knowledge on their part of the facts loves onlons will not recognize it; callarated from them, and completely lost that the entry of the enemy would ing a whitened, innocuous, insipid, his way. Every effort to retrieve his mean the cutting of their throats, plated bulb an onion will not make it steps led him still further into the wil- | while the rousing of the Romans would | one. No true lover of onions will hall this dense forest. Overcome with fatigue, sonal immunity from the poulterer's new invasion of science. He eats his onion at dead of night, in silence and solitude. He rejoices in it and sleeps upon it. The incense of his praise fills "The cunning of the Chinese has the room and soothes him to delicious been very much exaggerated," said a sleep. He rises in the morning after was surrounded by hostile Indians, and former sea captain in conversation the his sacrifice to pass the day in purificathat the leader of the band, in war paint other day. "I will never forget my tion, to see no one till the sun hath own experience. We had arranged sunk with indigestible substances, its with a prominent Chinese merchant of rudiment vegetable can command such Hong-Kong for a quantity of tea, but devotion from its votaries. It is a luxat the last minute there was a hitch ury and a worship. Shall be yield all about the delivery of the consignment. this delight for an odorless bulb? Let He told me it had been temporarily others do as they will, he will not. An tied up by the officials on account of onion without its odor would be ashamsome misunderstanding about the in- ed of itself.-Milwaukee Journal.

A Chinese Typewriter.

later on that the lot had been sold The Rev. Sheffield, a Presbyterian over my head to a chance customer and the tax story was a mere pretext minister at Tung Chow, has invented a to gain time for the substitution of an typewriter for the Chinese language. This machine is capable of writing "The tea merchant was a sedate, 4,000 characters, which are carried courtly old gentleman and he had told around the circumference of numerme the outrageous lie with perfect ous type-wheels. It requires the decalmness, looking me squarely in the pression of two keys in order to print face, without a quiver. It never oc- a simple character. curred to me to doubt his word and

A Northern Lighthouse.

heavy losers. When I exposed bim The most northern lighthouse in indignantly before all his employes and Great Britain, the northwest tower on several foreign residents I supposed the coast of Shetland, is built on a rock ter of self-preservation is curiously il- he would be ashamed and disconcert- 200 feet high, the summit of which Times Democrat, by the fact that sev- have been humiliated and crushed be- buildings

Japan's Attitude Toward China. The racial differences that exist between Japan and China have probably led some observers to believe that the two peoples are naturally antipathetic. The war of 1894 has been cited as proof of this, and in the present crisis in the Far East it appears to be taken for granted by many that the Japanese people will regard China's misfortune as their opportunity. That there is no valid reason for thinking that this is Japan's attitude, and that those who are most prominent in guiding Japan's public policy sincerely desire to establish and foster 'riendly feelings with China, is ably shown by Durham White Stevens, Esq., counsellor of the Japanese legation, in his article, "Japan's Attitude Toward China," which appears in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Rare Philippine Jewels.

The rarest corals in the world are to be found in the Philippines. As precious as this jewel is, there is still a rarer one, and that is health. It may be possessed by any one who will use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for indigestion, dyspepsia, belching, heartburn or sleeplessness. Try it.

Southern Moonshiners.

The great majority of moonshiners are to be found in the mountain fastness of Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, and here they live in conditions of civilization as crude as their ancestors, most of whom were English fugitives from justice who reached this country more than a century ago. Indeed, in many respects these descendants have retorgraded rather than adthe descendants of the early French family and a common dining-room in vanced. Had they been surrounded

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

The report of the senate committee If there could be published a list of set and print as well as write the paper. the names of all articles of food found Having been thus in the public eye by the committee to be adulterated or for three score years, Judge Talcot has made from injurious ingredients, it come to have great influence among the would be of inestimable value to the The recommendations of the commit-in the Dr. Thomas branch of the Peo tee that the sale of alum baking powple's Church in that city. Judge Talcot ders be prohibited by law, will make is as keen in putting forth his reform of special interest the following list of ideas to-day as at any time in his names of baking powders which chem-

Baking Powders Containing Alum:

CALUMET Contains Alum Manf by Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago. HOME Contains Alum Contains Alum WASHINGTON Contains Alum CRESCENT. Contains Alum

Contains Alum .Contains Alum

PORTLAND. .Contains Alum 6 Manf. by Beno & Ballis, Portland the character of every article of food Superstition in Yucatan.

offered to them.

the Ottawa fire in a wooden house commit suicide for less disgrace, but "Apropos of the wonderful ancient ruins in Yucatan," said a New Orleans which, although the buildings on each he never so much as blinked. He side were burning down, refused to heard me through blandly, made no college professor, "there is one very fortunate circumstance which has protected them almost entirely from spoilsince, in addition to their reputed nine caught and regarded the episode as ation by the Indians. It is currently believed by the natives all through that part of the country that the ruins are haunted and that devils will carry away anybody who attempts to molest them. This superstition has been enconraged by explorers, and is a better safeguard than a picket of soldiers."

Do Your Feet Ache and Burn? Shake into your shoes Allen's Foot Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing mails, sweating, smarting, hot, aching feet. We have over 30,000 testimonials. It cures while you walk. All druggists and shoe stores sell it. 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

It is a hard matter to discern rightly whether a good or an evil spirit does provoke thee to covet this or that.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deamess (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c Hall's Family Pills are the best,

Deliberate much before doing or saying anything, for you have not the power of recalling what has been said

All farmers are not good judges of butter and lose the advantage of high prices thereby. They keep cream too long or fail to use a thermometer when churning, making mistakes that might be avoided by taking precautions against selling an inferior article.

Better make of every sorrow a stepping stone to higher, nobler thought and deed than to hang it against your Instrated, says the New Orleans ed. An American of his standing would barely affords room for the necessary heart to weigh you down into the slough of despondency.