President Sets Aside a Day for Thanksgiving.

It has pleased Almighty God to bring our nation in safety and honor through another year. The works of religion and charity have everywhere been manifest. Our country, through all its extent, has been blessed with abundant harvests. Labor and the great industries of the people have prospered beyond all precedent. Our commerce has spread over the world. Our power and influence in the cause of freedom and enlightenment have extended over distant seas and lands. The lives of our official representatives and many of our people in China have been generally exempt from pestilence and other great calamities, and even the tragic visitation which overwhelmed the city of Galveston made evident the sentiments of sympathy and christian charity by virtue of which we are one united people.

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 29th of November next, to be observed by all the people of the United States, at home or abroad, as a day of thanksgiving and praise to him who holds the nations in the hollow of his hand. I recommend that they gather in their several places of worship and devoutly give Him thanks for the prosperity wherewith He has endowed us, for seedtime and harvest, for the valor, devotion and humanity of our armies and navies, and for all His benefits to us as individuals and as a nation; and that they humbly pray for the continuance of His divine favor, for concord and amity with other nations, and for righteousness and peace in all our ways.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

WM. MCKINLEY.

JOHNNIE'S WISH.

They had only a small farm out in the hills,
A clearing in the forest of oak and pines,
Where the ferns grow tall on the mountain side;
But down in the garden on the trailing vines
The big yellow pumpkins are the farmer's pride.

They have cattle and sheep and goats out there,
And little fat pigs and big ones too;
And chickens that scratch around everywhere,
And wobbling fat geese and ducks in the pond,
And turkeys that strut like a boy with a drum,
There's plenty to do on the little farm;
And the children are glad when the holidays come.

But when frosts set in and begin to coat
The vines of the pumpkins like sugar cake,
And the maple trees down by the mountain brook
Look ghostly at night, like an upturned rake,
Then said the farmer to his boy one day:
"We will catch the fattest of turks, and
Of geese and of ducks a load beside,
For tomorrow we'll hitch up and drive to town,
Where we will for your winter's clothing provide."

And when Thanksgiving came around at last,
The mother had a turkey fat and plump,
And of yellow and juicy pumpkin pies
"A plenty for ourselves," said mother, and some
For the good old parson and neighbor's folks.

The parson said grace, and with head inclined,
Did offer up thanks to the Lord on high:
"O give us this day our daily bread—
Then Johnnie looked over at sister and smiled—
'Cause he thought he'd rather have pumpkin pie!"

J. W. Briedwell, our enterprising merchant, has laid a plank floor around the hitching racks adjoining his store. This is for the accommodation of his many patrons.

The following pupils of the seventh grade of our public schools were last week advanced to the 8th grade: Leota Holmes, Lephaw Hawley, Laura McDowell, Nellie Mahood and Willie Brown.

The Degree of Honor lodge of this place will give a social Thanksgiving evening. Baskets containing supper will be sold, and it is expected that a general good time will take place, as the ladies of that order are famous for their entertainments and suppers.

It should be the duty of every citizen to never "let up" until a creamery or cheese factory is secured for this place. This would be the very best industry we could have, for it is a continual source of revenue to every farmer who sells a pound of milk. More institutions of this kind throughout this valley would cause a general revival of business, and a trial would soon relegate the mortgage breeding wheat field to the rear. Such is the case where it has been tried.

I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it.
