Columbus School Notes.
How would you like to be vaccinated again? Speaking from experience it is not a very desirable undertaking.

If one goes to touch another on the left arm you will very soon hear "Look out that is my sore arm."

The high school boys played two fine games of base ball with a town pick-up team last Saturday and Sunday. They won the first game by a score of 20 to 6 and the second by a score of 22 to 3. Good.

The roth grade are practicing a good deal on their orations. They are going to be good and you will miss a treat if you fail to hear them.

Secure Your Wood.
For the next two weeks I will furnish wood, sawed and delivered, at $3 per cord, in order to reduce the stock.
ELSIA WRIGHT.

Beware of a Cough.
A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's cough remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by Howorth & Co.

Leg Broken Four Times.
Wednesday's Oregonian gives an account of J. N. Blakeney, a Wasco county horse raiser, who is recovering from a broken leg and says he has become used to fracturing the member, as this is the fourth time he has suffered a similar accident. The first time, several years ago, he was caught in the loop of a steamboat hawser and the leg was broken just above the ankle. He was next caught under a horse, which stumbled and crushed the limb. The third time he was jammed between two horses in a stable, and the same leg was broken just below the knee. This fracture was badly set by the attending surgeon and after it had knit he was placed under the influence of chloroform and the bone was broken to suit the second surgeon, who took charge of the case. Mr. Blakeney is now around on crutches and congratulates himself that he will soon have two feet to stand on again, as he had to argue very hard against amputation, the doctor having prophesied that blood poisoning would set in, but it didn't.

One would think that the injured man would seek a less dangerous occupation than handling unbroken horses, as four times is much oftener than even professional cowboys suffer from fractured limbs, but Mr. Blakeney is still an enthusiastic horseman, and declares horse-raising is the only occupation he is fitted for. Even now, while scarcely able to hobble around on crutches, he spends most of his time among the city stables, where he enjoys the sight and companionship of horses and admires their good points.

Recommend Osteopathy.
PORTLAND, OR., APRIL 30, 1901.
To Whom it May Concern:
The writer, Mr. Wadhams, has had much to do with osteopathy since the advent of Dr. L. B. Smith to this place two years ago last October. I went to Seattle about the 1st of September, '98, and was treated by Dr. L. B. Smith for my trouble—having had a second stroke of paralysis—and was so much impressed by the beauties of osteopathy and its wonderful success that I did all in my power, and finally succeeded, in inducing Dr. Smith to come to Portland and establish himself as an osteopath in this city. I am very proud of his record and his success here, and am personally acquainted with a goodly number of people who have been fully recovered from their ailments; and also with a goodly number who like myself, have been greatly, and very greatly, benefited by the treatment.
I know very well personally young Dr. C. T. Smith, son of Dr. L. B. Smith, who has lately gone to McMinnville to establish himself there. I have no hesitancy whatever in recommending the good people of McMinnville to the kind care of Dr. Smith. He is a very successful young operator and will satisfy anybody of the value of osteopathy if they will give him an opportunity.
With best wishes for the continued success of Dr. Smith and the wonderful science of osteopathy, I am,
Respectfully, WM. WADHAMS.

No one Buys Drugs for Fun
No one sells them for amusement. It's a serious, important business on both sides. A drug store should have two missions: One, to furnish drugs that can be relied on; the other, to furnish them for what they are worth. Drug stores exist for the public good. Knowledge, experience and progressive methods should mark their management. We endeavor to keep step with the progress of the age, to meet every requirement of the community, to conduct a store that shall stand for all that a drug store should. We wish to serve those who want accurate service, high grade drugs, and uniformly fair and courteous treatment.
