

Bankrupt Stock Sale.

The steady stream of customers in and out of my store during the past week means that I am selling goods just as I advertised them. My sale still continues and many other lines from my stock have been added to this sale. A lot of ladies' dress skirts will be sacrificed, manufacturer's samples of ladies' summer vests, ladies' wrappers at 1/2 off regular price, calicoes 4c per yard, 10c toilet soaps for 5c, about 50 pairs of men's pants a little anxious to walk at cost price. Gold dust, 2 pkgs. 35c; tomatoes, 3 cans 25c; Preferred Stock raisins, 10c pkgs; wash boards, 15c; brooms 15c; yeast, 4c pkgs; 10c spices for 7c; 4 gal keg pickles, 75c, and many other rare bargains as long as they last.

Mrs. Mary Rogers parts with regret from the daughter whom she has cared for since a two-year-old. The love she bears for her does not cease with the separation, and only for the health of little Mary could she spare her. She goes to Weiser, Idaho, to her uncle, William Beardsley, where, if she benefits by the change of climate, she will remain a few years.

Miss Florence Newman, who has been a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism, says Chamberlain's pain balm is the only medicine that affords her relief. Miss Newman is a much respected resident of the village of Gray, N. Y., and makes this statement for the benefit of others similarly afflicted. This liniment is for sale by Howorth & Co.

The majority of hop yards in this section have been worked over well and are in good condition. The vines look healthy and are growing rapidly. At this time indications are favorable for a large yield. We have heard complaint that some yards in Marion county were not doing well. Goodrich Bros., Wm. Paxon and others are working at times on the bicycle paths from Dayton to the Prairie and McMinnville, getting the paths in good shape for wheeling. They hope before a great while to get the paths graveled. Everybody should feel an interest in having this accomplished as it would not alone be a benefit to wheelmen, but also to footmen. If paths were properly graveled those having wheels could ride them at any time of year, footmen could travel over them the same. Look out gentlemen, don't let the fair sex get ahead of you in enterprise! We have lately heard it hinted by several prominent ladies of Dayton and vicinity that if the men do not get a move on them and start a creamery, the women will organize and see that a creamery is established here. We believe that the ladies are in earnest and intend to have a creamery here. We were informed last week by one of our citizens that he would give $25 toward having a creamery in Dayton. He said he had no money to throw away.—Dayton Herald.

McMinnville's Creamery.

Mr. R. W. Sweet, the creamery man, has perfected the necessary arrangements whereby McMinnville will secure a skimming station and possibly a small churning station. Mr. Sweet has leased the Elsie Wright building adjoining the Wing stables, and will have it fitted up for occupancy by his machinery. He has leased the vinegar and jelly factory at Whiteson and will operate his main churning station at that point, owing to its central location. Skimming stations will be located at convenient points along the four railroad branches radiating from Whiteson, and the cream will be carried to the central station where it will be made into a uniform grade of butter. This enterprise of Mr. Sweet is going to prove a good thing for the farmers, whose duty it now is to turn their attention to securing the grades of cattle best adapted to butter producing. They will be able to sell their butter fat and receive cash for it every month. And in the degree the farmer prospers, even so will the business man prosper, for the cash which the faithful cow turns in his direction will enable the farmer to indulge in a great many luxuries that successive years devoted exclusively to wheat growing have denied to him. And in his changed condition in the noble art of husbandry it is to be hoped he will find a high degree of truth in the modern adage, "It is not rank, nor wealth, nor state, but get up and milk that makes men great."

Diversified Farming.

At the Farmers' Institute, held at Monroe on Friday of last week, Dr. Withycombe discussed "Diversified Farming in part as follows:

"This is a progressive age, and the past two decades have seen astounding revolutions in mercantile pursuits and manufacturing enterprises, in fact, this holds good in every department of human energy, with the possible exception of farming. Among our farmers the same old system of exclusive grain growing seems to prevail, and but slight deviations from the well-beaten path of our ancestors are noted.

"This is not in keeping with the spirit of the age. The farmer should study more closely the effects of these changes upon the markets. It then becomes apparent to him that a mixed system of farming will give better results than the single crop. Even with much higher prices than the present market offers, the inevitable shrinkage in yield will make exclusive grain farming unprofitable. There is a splendid future for the Oregon farmer who will intelligently pursue a system of diversified husbandry.

With our ever expanding markets comes a demand for the various products of the farm. The present price of beef, mutton and pork leaves a good margin to the producer. Stock-growing and dairying will be the corner-stone of successful farming. Dairying, if intelligently pursued, even with the present low price of butter, gives larger net returns than grain growing. The conditions here are exceptionally favorable for dairying, and the time will come when western Oregon will be one of the greatest dairying sections of the nation.

"Dairying should constitute, whenever practicable, a part of the diversified system of farming, as it takes practically nothing from the soil. The by-products of the dairy, when properly utilized, afford valuable sustenance to calves, swine and poultry, hence materially increase the revenues of the farm. Diversified farming means better farming, accompanied with larger crops, representing a greater value, thus materially improving the financial condition of the farmer."

Biliousness is a condition characterized by a disturbance of the digestive organs. The stomach is debilitated, the liver torpid, the bowels constipated. There is a loathing of food, pains in the bowels, dizziness, coated tongue and vomiting, first of the undigested or partly digested food and then of bile. Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets allay the disturbances of the stomach and create a healthy appetite. They also tone up the liver to a healthy action and regulate the bowels. Try them and you are certain to be much pleased with the result. For sale by Howorth & Co.

MAY SOLVE THE MAINE MYSTERY.

Harry McCann, a seaman, and the mother of Corporal of Marines Burns have filed claims that may lead to a judicial determination of the manner in which the Maine was destroyed. McCann asks compensation for injuries received in the explosion, and Mrs. Burns asks an indemnity for the loss of her son's life.

In article 7 of the treaty of Paris the United States and Spain mutually relinquished "all claims for indemnity, national and individual, of every kind, of either government, or of its citizens or subjects, against the other government," arising between the outbreak of the Cuban revolt and the ratification of the treaty. The United States further agreed to "adjudicate and settle the claims of its citizens against Spain," so relinquished.

In accordance with this provision a commission has been created to pass upon such claims. This is virtually a judicial body, and to its such claims as those of McCann and Mrs. Burns must be presented for determination. The claimants contend that Spain was responsible, either directly or through negligence, for the destruction of the Maine. The United States having assumed the duty of settling claims against Spain arising during the period in question, the claimants ask from their own government the compensation that they would otherwise ask it to obtain from Spain.

While there is no doubt whatever of the general responsibility, moral and legal, of Spain for the blowing up of the Maine, it has not been possible to determine just how that responsibility was incurred. While the crime was certain, the identity of the actual criminal, and his method of operation have remained unknown. There is now a prospect that the natural public curiosity on these points may be gratified. A Chicago contractor has undertaken to raise the Maine wreck bodily from the mud of Havana harbor. When the harbor bottom and the wreck are disclosed it will be possible to form some accurate judgment as to the manner in which the crime was committed. And the claims commission will not, of course, render judgments against the treasury until it has ample legal proofs that some man for whose acts Spain was responsible fired the fatal mine.
