It was supposed that every man in Yambill county would give a few dollars to know what a drill would find, so the lands containing true indications were secured to the extent of some 2500 acres, a company organized and stock offered at 50 cents a share, with the idea that land owners in particular would respond by investing $10, $20 or $50 each, and by a co-operative move develop this industry. By this method there would be no individual burden. It was supposed that any number of men would give at least something to know what might be the conditions existing underneath. There are undoubtedly a great number of men who would give outright much larger sums than would be expected under this plan to know that these lands were covering a true oil find. Why should not such people subscribe for a few shares of our stock and make it possible for the equip itself for a full development and go ahead with the work as they are doing and have done in other sections.

This is a legitimate proposition; there is no fake about it. There is no other way of making a development; no one person will tackle it. By a united effort only can the work be carried on. This is not a stock scheme. You are as much interested as any one, and the method adopted by this company to secure funds is the only one known that is at all practical to handle a large number of small sums that in the aggregate will be sufficient to complete the work. Why not make up your minds, send whatever you feel able or willing, to the Secretary or the Bank of Newberg, and secure stock par value of $1 per share, fully paid and non-assessable, for 50c each.

We now have about one hundred stockholders, but we should have a thousand. Just think of it; only one hundred men in Yambill county to date subscribing to and purchasing stock in a company formed for the purpose of making a practical demonstration as to the existence of coal or oil-its ridculous. We have told you all about the company's plans, the discovery of indications, the development to a depth of 90 feet, the examination by geologists and experts, the positive find of coal and the sure indications of oil. All our indications are positive; the same formations and conditions that suggested development work in Pennsylvania, Texas and California.
