Excellent displays of fancy work were displayed by Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Conner and Mrs. M. E. Hendrick. There were 13 young ladies on horseback, and though this is said to be an unlucky number, no one was hurt.

R. Jacobson's "box-calf shoe" float needed to be seen to be appreciated. It was a good advertisement and well planned. Another manifestation of H. C. Burns' efforts to keep up to date, is the purchase of a new funeral car, of which he is justly proud.

B. G. Emerson, formerly with O. O. Hodson, has accepted a position at Independence. His family will probably remain in the city for the winter. U. S. Booth, who has been conducting a branch house in this city for the Mitchell, Lewis & Staver Co., has closed out the business for the present.

Drs. Calbreath & Goucher and Wright are very busy drying prunes. The recent rains damaged them to the extent of about five or six hundred bushels, but they have an abundance left. The county court has appointed Harrison Z. Foster of this city to the vacancy in the county treasurer's office.

Mr. Foster is a man well qualified by nature and education to fill this important post, which is one worthy of better pay than $50 a month. He will take charge at once. On Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock Rev. M. J. Hickey will commence a series of lectures at the Catholic church on the "Pagan and Christian Monuments at Rome." These lectures are free and will form part of the Sunday vesper services.

They will be given only once a month—on the evening of the first Sunday of each month. The reverend gentleman resided a long time in Rome and is thoroughly familiar with Italian life, social and ecclesiastical, and his lectures must prove a great treat to those who wish to learn something of the greatest of ancient empires. Seats will be reserved for non-Catholics.

About the middle of the afternoon on Wednesday the E. C. Miles fruit evaporator which was situated in his orchard at the foot of Wynoski street, was entirely consumed by fire. S. S. Terrell, who was operating the plant, made an ineffectual attempt to put the fire out when it was first discovered, but as the flames spread with great rapidity everything had to be abandoned to the fate of the fire fiend. Beside the loss of the plant about eight tons of dried fruit, beside a large number of new fruit boxes, went with the rest.

Jim Everest lost in his land contest case which had been in the balance for more than a year. Mr. Everest bought a homestead claim in Tillamook county of L. S. Heacock after the latter was divorced from his wife. The divorced woman, soon after the sale was made, entered suit before the land office at Oregon City, and as Mr. Galloway and Mr. Moores, receiver and register respectively of the land office, could not agree, the case was forwarded to the department at Washington for final decision, with the result as given above. As the Graphic understands the case, Mr. Everest loses all he put into the deal, which will probably amount to six or eight hundred dollars, and the former Mrs. Heacock, who is now the wife of a man named Baker, is privileged to file on the land if she wishes to do so.—Newberg Graphic.

The Carnival Is Now On!

Coronation of Queen Bess Enacted In Good Form.

EXHIBITS NUMEROUS, ATTENDANCE GOOD.

MISS BESSIE L. HOUCK, QUEEN OF THE CARNIVAL.

The clouds of yesterday morning were dissipated about noon, and the weather continued cool and pleasant throughout the day. The parade yesterday was formed in the following order:

- 1st, Marshals. 2d, Brass band. 3d, Floats. 4th, Fischer-VanCleve's Challenge Band. 5th, Decorated carriages. 6th, Guard of honor—cadets. 7th, Queen and escort. 8th, Queen's Maids. 9th, King's Carriage. 10th, Leondor Bros.' Band. 11th, Ladies on horseback. The parade on Friday will form on E street with the right resting on Third street, at 1 p. m., in the following order: 1st, grand marshal and aides. 2d, brass band. 3d, Buffaloes. 4th, Brass Band. 5th, Wild men of Borneo. 6th, all livestock on exhibition. 7th, Brass Band. Saturday night at 8 p. m. grand masked parade. Same formation and line of march as grand parade.

OUTSIDE ACTS.

FRIDAY. Juggler act at 10 a. m. Contortion acts, 2:30 p. m. SATURDAY. Three ladder act, 10 a. m. Leondor Bros., acrobats, 2:30 p. m.

The following assignments were taken in the coronation of the queen: High Priest, Prof. H. L. Boardman; king, W. T. Macy; chamberlain, C. C. Jacobs; herald, T. J. Warren; queen's maids, Misses Mollie Patty, Osa Roberts, Mand Hembree and Arlie Keen; guards, Glen Henderson, Bert Pilkington, Walter Woodward and Hervey Hoskins; pages, Max Fleming and Ray Maloney; flower girls, Bessie and Essie Baker; driver of queen's carriage, C. C. Jacobs; driver of maids' carriage, Lair Thompson; driver of king's carriage, E. L. Wing.

Booths line the streets on both sides from B to E streets, after the manner diagramed in last week's Reporter. The big tent was put up on Monday.

Some valuable relics, the property of Fred Crawford of Dayton, are on exhibition in A. M. Peery's drug store window, combined with some from Capt. Harris.

C. K. Spaulding Logging Co. have an exhibit of fine specimens of lumber, and a lot of pictures of big timbered tracts.

The old phonograph man, Monroe, has the same location as last year, and is talkative as ever.

There are about 25 coops of blooded poultry on display that make a fine showing, considering that this is the moulting season. Rennie Mulkey is judge of the American birds, and Mr. Downs of Portland will pass on the Asiatic fowls.

Leondor Bros.' circus is playing in the city this week, as an accompaniment to the other carnival attractions.

The queen's dress is cream silk and brocaded cashmere, trimmed in silver, and the robe is blue velvet lined with yellow with silver lace trimming. The wardrobe was made by Mrs. A. M. Caddy, and represents about a week's work.

A window well supplied with old relics may be seen at the Racket store. There are many articles from West Africa, among them a coarse woven fabric about one by three feet in size, which was once the whole suit of a native. The old spinning wheel is there, the property of Mrs. Carlson. Dr. Johnson's old saddlebags, which crossed the plains in the '40's and a little work box made in 1820 are found in the exhibit.

Messrs. Steadman and Weeks of the Yamhill coal mine, were pleasant callers on Wednesday. They have a creditable exhibit of the products of their mine.

The Yamhill Coal and Oil Co. have an exhibit at the carnival this week. They have the indications favorable to finding something of great value and need your financial assistance in demonstrating a fact worth millions to Oregon and Yamhill county.

The floral display is superb. Calhoun's man in the ground is a wonder. Don't fail to see it.

The coronation was enacted superbly. The queen and her retinue looked lovely beyond all expectation. Flower girls and pages presented a most handsome appearance. Misses Hembree and Keen appeared in pink, the other maids in white, and their costume was transcendently beautiful.

The log cabin of the Woodmen in front of Hodson's is a unique feature. The coonskin is stretched on the outside and water filters are exhibited on the inside.

Mrs. Hamilton and Miss Josie Gortner will get the prize for best decorated carriage. It was the only one, but it was all right—as good as two or three poorly decorated.

OPERA HOUSE Three Nights and Three Matinees. Commencing THURSDAY, OCT. 3. Fischer & VanCleve's Madison Square Theater Co. 20 Artists 20 New Specialties New Plays New Prices THURSDAY—The Lunatics. FRIDAY—Jerry, The Tramp. SATURDAY—Ten Nights in a Bar Room. Matinees every afternoon at 2 p. m. Band Concert at 1:30 and 7:30 daily. Seats now on sale at Rogers Bros.

A Dramatic Treat. The Fischer-VanCleve Madison Square Theater Co. have been secured for the carnival days and nights and will present a new repertoire of sterling comedies and dramas. The company is composed of 22 competent players who can play, besides carrying renowned specialty performers who hold the stage between acts, doing away with all waits. The plays and specialties are changed at each performance. In the opening bill they have a vehicle of attraction that is fast bringing them to the greatest prominence. It has a large percentage of humor and enough seriousness to throw in a contrast between smiles and uproarious laughter. The leading lady role is in the hands of Miss Eva VanCleve, who portrays the character in a remarkably clever manner. Babe Fischer, a 14-year-old miss, in the soubrette role is without doubt the cleverest little lady on the stage, and in her dancing specialties she is the poetry of motion personified. Bert VanCleve, the clever comedian, is too well known to need introducing. When he can't make you laugh then you need a physician. Their support is the best and the carnival committee are to be congratulated upon securing such a meritorious company. The repertoire will be announced by couriers daily. J. B. McCowell in his quaint songs and sayings is a host in himself. The Gainsborough Four, four young ladies in songs and dances, have been especially engaged. Hear our Challenge band and orchestra. Prices only 10, 20 and 30 cents—no higher. Seats now selling at Rogers Bros. Performances at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. daily, Oct. 3d, 4th and 5th. You'll have to hurry.

New 'Phones. The Columbus Telephone Co. has recently added the following new patrons to its list: Offices and stores—Dielschneider Bros., Aetna saloon, Wiesner's cigar store, Logan Bros., Triplett & Henderson, Wm. Scott, postoffice, R. L. Conner, St. Charles store, Chas. Taff, Ferguson & Fletcher, C. C. Murton, H. C. Burns, Dr. C. T. Smith. Residences—J. W. Henry, J. G. Wiesner, A. M. Peery, E. Underwood, E. Wright, Harvey Neal, R. L. Conner, W. F. Dielschneider, F. G. Adams, R. H. Grover, E. Northup, A. C. Chandler, J. B. Gardner, A. Dielschneider.
