"Those who laugh last, laugh best." This old proverb apparently came true a few nights ago. A certain young man of this city thought he would have a little fun with one of his boy friends who had been out in the country rather late visiting his young lady. He concealed himself in a fence corner and when his friend came along he jumped out and pointed a home-made revolver in his face and told him "hands up." Of course the way the fellow hollered wasn't slow; but wait about ten days and see what happened. Friday evening four young men prepared to return the compliment. One was stationed in the graveyard with a bicycle lamp and a six-shooter, another was hid under the big bridge west of town armed with a great big revolver filled with blank cartridges. The fellow who had at first been so badly scared was now the principal actor. He got his friend to take a walk with him, and after talking over all the recent hold-ups throughout the country, he, starting his friend on the right road, bid him a friendly good-night and started in the direction of home. Down the road went the unsuspecting victim. He had just got around the corner to the graveyard when a very bright light was thrown on him and the report of a six-shooter broke the stillness of the air. About four seconds brought him to the bridge, when he received a fresh start from the fellow stationed there. The boys say if he had kept up that pace 15 minutes he would have been in Sheridan, and in a half hour more nothing but the ocean would have checked his wild career.

The name of Hon. Jesse Edwards is being favorably mentioned by his friends for the office of state senator from this county. We always think and speak of Jesse Edwards as "the father of Newberg," and no one in that thriving town will gainsay the title. It properly belongs to him.

Another thing we know of him: He has never been sparing of his time, labor and money to establish enterprises that would foster the growth of his home city, or that would promote the welfare of the county and state. It is men of this class that deserve recognition in a public way, rather than the loafers and the bums and the pap-suckers. The Reporter is interested in seeing the very best men in the ranks placed in office. The party that does this will win.

We have received word that our machine and outfit was shipped on the 13th. The delay was caused by rush of business with manufacturers. The O. R. & N. and S. P. R. R. people have promised to make a rush job in bringing stuff out. There are two cars including boiler, engine, machine, casing, etc. The total cost, including freight, is about $4,850 F. O. B. Newberg. Up in Whatcom, Wash., a week ago they struck oil. From Whatcom south through Washington and Oregon to the California line at least twelve companies are preparing to drill, and you can trace these companies from Whatcom south in a direct line. There is no connection whatever between these companies. Each has been promoted and work has been inaugurated independent of the other, but the prospect, the incentive for action, and the probability of success is in each case laid on the same foundation based on theory if you like, but a theory that has the support of the best geological knowledge. Geologists have always contended that the oil belt was continuous through California, Oregon and Washington. Until this strike at Whatcom no oil was ever found north of California. This find at Whatcom makes our work a practical enterprise. Theory is knocked into a cocked hat, as it were. It is certainly practical and not theoretical at Whatcom. While we have had perfect confidence that development work would prove the existence of oil, we think and believe that the discovery of oil at Whatcom clinches the matter. It endorses our claims, it proves that oil exists in the northwest, it wipes out that old question of distance. We now have oil north as well as south of us. We are betwixt and between, and if the court knows herself, and we think she does, we will strike oil. Every dollar you put into this stock will go to direct work of development. There is no liability beyond the amount you purchase and pay for. We need your help now and respectfully solicit same.

Death of Prof. Taylor.

After a week's illness from pneumonia, Prof. Thos. G. Taylor expired at his residence two miles east of this city on Saturday, January 18, 1902, in his 53d year.

Prof. Taylor was born in Shropshire, Wellington county, England, May 28th, 1849. At the age of 12 he was sent to Stonyhurst, a Jesuit institution, and after seven years graduated. He then entered London University and took the full course. He was 14 years in France, eaching in the universities, and remained in one institution nine years, taking one class clear through the course of study. He was in the vicinity of the engagement of Worth, during the Franco-Prussian war, and was picked up by the German cavalry and held three months as a prisoner until he could be identified. He came to New Orleans in 1872, and wrote for European magazines and newspapers, and taught in some of the colleges. He is said to have been able to speak and write with grammatical precision Latin, Greek, Italian, French, Welsh, German and English. Mrs. Taylor survives her husband. The funeral occurred at the Catholic church on Monday.

It is said to have been decided that congress will not send a delegation to attend the coronation of King Edward. There are lots of members of the two houses who would enjoy the junket, but none of them has a court dress, and what is more, none of them would dare face his constituents at the next election after having worn one.

Miss Nannie Ungerman was a member of Diancia Temple of Rathbone Sisters of this city, holding the position of Most Excellent Chief in the local Temple.

A. C. Churchill, Mr. Cooper and Mr. Follett have all been in the city this week in the interest of the oil prospect.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed that the sale on Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, and you are sure to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford.
