WHAT FARMERS CAN DO.

Ten things farmers can do if they will, are thus enumerated: 1. They can cast ten votes to seven of all other occupations; 2. they can carry any election they have a mind to carry; 3. they can effectually put an end to the extortions of railroads; 4. They can put ten farmers in congress or in state legislatures for every one they now have; 6. They can make their own laws in all the states; 6. They can secure the same payment per hour for hard work that is demanded for brainwork; 7. They can have all the luxuries now enjoyed by those classes which prey upon them; 8. They can combine themselves in a compact body if they stand as a unit; 9. They can co-operate, can stand by one another, and if they do so can run the world; 10. They can continue to be the dull drudges they have been, the prey of every cunning speculator and politician in the land.

Men and women go safely through Niagara rapids, jump from the Brooklyn bridge and take other risks, without fatal consequences. But some slight accident kills their neighbor. This fact is illustrated by the sudden death of a prominent and most useful Episcopal clergyman in Maine recently, Rev. George S. Hill. An apparently unimportant injury in the hayfield ended in lockjaw and carries him off.
