Not even the earthquake shocks, the Texas tidal wave, the Bulgarian revolutions, the Maine campaign, cholera in Europe, the president shooting a big antlered buck, the escape of Victoria Schilling or the bursting of the Iowa artesian well, is anything to compare to the "joy" of Frank Pixley of the Argonaut, who is in ecstasy over the California republican state ticket, because there is not a man on it who was not born on American soil, with one exception, Wm. H. H. Hart, and he was born in England of protestant parents, and came to this country when an infant. Even he would not have been nominated but for the Bohemian silver tongued orator, Col. Tom Fitch, who made a very flowery speech placing him in nomination as a candidate for attorney-general. The name was raised on a silvery crest of eloquence, dwelling upon the fact that he was a brave and loyal soldier, and took up arms and fought and bled for his country in the hour of her darkest peril. There was no issue of race prejudice in this convention, and Pixley claims that the result is merely the outgrowth of a healthy public sentiment, which he claims the honor of helping to create.

The more one reads the less he knows about the Bulgarian dispute, and so we have about decided to let them settle things among themselves. The Prince of Wales, Beatrice's husband, and Prince Alexander, are having a sort of domestic scene in the family in consequence of the strong partizanship shown by the queen for Alexander and her favorite daughter. The outlook is more peaceful, but it still has a sort of tempest in a tea-pot air.

Hon. Geo. H. Durham, master in chancery, United States Circuit court for the district of Oregon, was in the city last evening. He paid a call this morning to the family of Hon. D. O. Durham, near this city, the first in fifteen years, and proceeded to Lafayette to sell the Myers farm, upon suit of the Dundee mortgage and trust investment company.

Jerry sighs, "Summer vacations, rambles and flirtations are over. Oysters are good, and the serious business of the fall and winter has begun."

Bismarck is quoted as saying, "I believe in peace." This is a misunderstanding. He believes in pieces. Ask France.

James, son of Secretary Manning is credited with making the statement that he doesn't think that his father will return to the treasury department. We think he will, at least until after the next election.

As much space in these columns as can be given consistently to such special purpose, will, in future, be devoted to the interests of religious and secular societies and associations, according as they in substantial ways reciprocate the interest taken in them by the Reporter.

Hon. O. N. Denny has his hands full as vice president to the king of Corea. As director of foreign affairs he has two inspectors and a secretary and keeps them all busy. Corea is rich in agricultural resources as well as mineral wealth, but is poverty stricken through an utter lack of industry among the people. If the farmer can be turned to account it may, and doubtless will, induce a certain degree of thriftiness and enterprise among the people.
