NEWS AND NOTES.

Norman Hendryx, the defaulting county treasurer at Pendleton, has had "not a true bill" returned by the grand jury. His bondsmen put up.

Rev. Jas. N. Beard, of the Central Methodist church, San Francisco, has received a communication from Sam Jones, the Georgia evangelist, announcing that he will soon come to San Francisco as an evangelist, and will afterward make a trip to every large city on the Pacific coast. Methodist ministers are taking steps to accord him a hearty welcome.

The monthly eruption of Mount Hood for September comes from the Dalles Times-Mountaineer. All the people of the Dalles were out with spy-glasses looking at the snowy summit, and expecting a deluge of lava every minute, but it did not come. The East Oregonian will try to attend to the report next month. The newspapers must make an active volcano out of Mount Hood if possible.

The National Republican rejoices that Maine's splendid delegation in congress remains intact in spite of Democracy, Dow, and the Devil. The Maine republicans have certainly justified the confidence of their brethren in other parts of the union. The return of Mr. Reed to the house is a benefaction to the nation, which possesses few men equal to him in capacity and inclination for usefulness.

We get no salary for examining the trackless void, night after night, when we ought to be asleep, to prognosticate and predict weather futures. We've kept it up since the week before the P. of H. picnic. Now that the last fair is over, except the one at Portland which does not concern us; we propose to let the weather prophets shift for themselves. We're going to have our regular sleep from this time on. The man who comes hunting around here in the future, to get us out of bed to dig up a star of about the fifteenth magnitude, thirteen hands high, with light mane and tail, and trot out a weather item, will get left.

The Oregonian propounds this conundrum: "If, as the prohibitionists claim, neither the democratic nor the republican party can be depended on to enforce prohibition, and since therefore the necessity for a new party to do that work, even in the prohibition states, is apparent, how is the material for such a party to be obtained, since nineteen twentieths of the voters are members of these old parties and will not enforce prohibition? Is it the idea that material for the new party, that will enforce prohibition over the heads of the voters of the old political organizations, can be had from some member of a distant planetary system?
