OCTOBER.

October comes across the hill
Like some light ghost, she is so still;
Though her sweet cheeks are rosy,
And through the floating thistle-down
Her trailing, brier-tangled gown
Gleams like a crimson posy.

The crickets in the stubble chime;
Lanterns flash out at milking time;
The daisy's lost her ruffles;
The wasps the honeyed pippins try;
A film is over the blue sky,
A spell the river muffles.

The golden rod fades in the sun;
The spiders' gauzy veil is spun
Athwart the drooping sedges;
The nuts drop softly from their burrs;
No song bird the dim silence stirs,
A blight is on the hedges.

But filled with fair content is she,
As if no frost could ever be,
To dim her brown eyes' luster;
And much she knows of fairy folk
That dance beneath the spreading oak
With tinkling mirth and bluster.

She listens when the dusky eyes
Step softly on the fallen leaves,
As if for message cheering;
And it must be that she can hear,
Beyond November grim and drear,
The feet of Christmas nearing.
—Susan Hartly, in St. Nicholas.

CORRESPONDENCE.

AMITY.

Our village is quiet and trade lively. From the way the stores were thronged last Saturday one would think the farmers have money.

The body of Wm. Cooper arrived here yesterday from San Francisco, where he went but a few days since for health. The bereaved family have our sympathy.

Mrs. L. attended another quilting. It was at Wm. H. Harrison's, and she speaks in the highest praise of the gathering, and especially of the dinner. The work was somewhat frustrated by a severe accident which happened to a son of Hon. J. R. Sanders. The little boy was thrown from a horse and so badly cut and bruised about the head and face that it was feared he could not live. His physician thinks he will recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Bunting treated us to a nice ride last Sunday evening. We went to Bellevue, where we learned a church was to be dedicated at 3 p. m., but we found the services had been at 11 a. m. We next drove to Ballston, passing some fine farms on our way, hence by Broadmeads farm, the finest country home we have seen in the west. Mrs. L. was delighted with the trip and all we saw, while I—well I wonder if any one in this valley would trade for land in Texas. E. S. L.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Pepper will be pepper this year. A storm in Jamaica blew the peppers all off the trees.

Noah Webster, inventor of the English language, has a daughter in Bridgeport, Connecticut, aged 82 years.

Parson Downs, of Boston, has manifestly missed his calling. His eminent advertising talents point to the show business as his proper field of labor.

Chicago papers lament that that city has done but little for the Charleston fund. Chicago should remember that charity covers a multitude of sins.

Prof. Shaler has an article in the last Atlantic in which he attempts to trace the antipathy which exists among men toward races different from theirs to an inheritance from their animal ancestors. It is an interesting speculation, and to almost every thoughtful observer the same idea has occurred.

Ben Harrison says that the republicans will carry Indiana. Illinois will certainly go republican. With Vermont under the leadership of Edmunds, Maine under Blaine's leadership, Indiana under that of Harrison, and Illinois with Logan as a leader, all giving bouncing republican majorities, everybody will be vindicated and we may be happy together.

Isn't it rather rubbing it in to include in the design for oleomargarine stamps, intended for packages, "a nice device in black ink, representing a farmer and a mechanic on either side a shield bearing the Stars and Stripes." As the farmer is the injured rival, and the mechanic too often the deluded victim of the bogus butter makers, it is not exactly a happy conceit to unite them in holding the national emblem over the stuff.

W. E. Gould, a bank cashier, Portland, Me., defaulted to the extent of $87,000. Much is made of the fact that the criminal is a son-in-law of Neal Dow, and also that he has long been a man of apparent eminent piety. Possibly when the truth is all out, it may be discovered that neither the incident of his relation to the aged reformer nor his religion had anything to do with making him a thief.

All the judges of the supreme court of the United States will be in attendance at the commencement of the term, October 12th. Chief Justice Waite spent his summer vacation in a trip to the Yellowstone national park, and to Alaska, and is much improved in health and strength. Justice Field and Justice Matthews spent most of the summer in Europe.
