A Novel Institution.

A novel and salubrious institution has been established in New York City. It is known as "The New York Labor Exchange and Lodge." Its manager is Mr. D. M. Davidson. We may gather its purpose from the following "bill of fare:"

Absolutely clean "square" meals.....10c.
 Clothes cleaned by fumigation..... 5c.
 Hot soda or sulphur bath..... 5c.
 Shave or hair cut..... 5c.
 Absolutely clean beds.....15c.
 Fumigation and bath compulsory the first night and every week to insure cleanliness.

It is intended to "assist" honest men who have had luck in finding employment. It is said people come there in a horrible condition of filth, but the compulsory bath for their persons and the summer fumigation of their clothing is a purifying process that restores a sense of self-respect and they start out in the morning in search of work with a renewed spirit of manhood.

Although not a self-supporting enterprise yet, Mr. Davidson thinks it soon will be, but its beneficent effects are such that it has the sympathy and support of the best people in the city. Davidson claims that it has already saved hundreds of men from ruin.—San Francisco Commercial-Gazette.

We will take your order for a Victor fire proof family safe. See advertisement in Weekly Reporter.

THE FLOOD MANSION.

Description of One of California's Bonanza King's New Palaces.

After many months of study, planning and elaboration, the plans for the Flood mansion, to be erected on the brow of Nob Hill, have been perfected, and another proud palace will be erected. But unlike most of the railroad magnates' "huts," their new neighbor is not to be a compendium of all the styles of architecture already discovered or yet to be invented. It will not flaunt to the world planing-mill bric-a-brac of all known or unknown orders. It is to be built of stone, and like Solomon's temple, the stone is to be obtained and cut abroad, and like Solomon's temple once more, every stone when cut will be numbered and sent to our city, there to be placed in position on Nob Hill as part and parcel of a mining magnate's domestic monument. Connecticut is the land which will furnish the material, the brown stone which New Yorkers love to see in the fronts of their dwellings, and Connecticut will shape and cut it. But although the Connecticut brown stone may be a reflection upon California's mineral resources, and while the manner of its preparation may give offense to California workmen, the bonanza king does not intend to inflict upon the public an idiosyncratic pile of stone. On the contrary, the style of the building is to be as severely pure and undiluted as is conformable to modern notions of elegance and architectural beauty.

THE EXTERIOR.

The front of the building is to be but two stories in height, the lower Doric and the upper Ionic, both modified by Roman suggestions of ornamentation. The building will form a parallelogram 107x127 feet in size, the only break in the even lines of the four walls being a portico and a square central tower, containing the vestibule in its base at the front and a similar portico extended into a port cochere in the rear. The front and rear portico will be alike. Both will be supported by fourteen columns, purely Doric, carved out of single stones, and supporting a balcony of corresponding design. Everything about the portico is to be of brown stone, with the exception of the floor, which will be laid in marble. From the ground to the top of the tower the distance will be seventy-five feet. A stone wall, fitted with an elegant iron railing, between the massive piers, will surround the building.

The interior of the house is to be divided by a series of halls, separated by architraves supported by two columns on each side, one of which is to be square and engaged, the second to be round and stand free. These will be in the Ionic order, as are to be all the columns, pilasters, wainscoting, banisters and balustrades in the interior. What the cost of this establishment will be cannot be ascertained. But when it is considered that all the stone has to be shipped from the east, that it will require from two to three years to construct the building and perhaps another year to fresco its extensive walls, it may be safely assumed that it will require the expenditure of a considerable portion of J. C. Flood's accumulated millions.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The following is said to be the set form of instructions that Missouri husbands give to new wives: "My dear, I'm a bad man from away back, when aroused, but, gently treated, I'm as docile as a lamb. You just induce me to do always as I please, and there'll never be any trouble in the family."
