SALARIES OF CONGRESSMEN.

The salary of a member ceases on the day of his death. The salary of the successor commences the day after the decease of the former member, though the election may not occur for several months. The new member in other words, draws pay for the time he never served. A member is allowed twenty cents mileage each way, or forty cents a mile one way, and he can check for the full amount of both trips when he takes his seat. He is allowed one hundred and twenty-five dollars a year for stationery. The members draw their money in different ways. Some always overdraw, or, rather, borrow from the head of the bank. They borrow, or get in advance, sums ranging from ten to three hundred dollars, and at the end of the month they have nothing. The great majority of the members draw all that is coming to them at the end of each month, particularly those who have their families with them. Some of them never see an outside bank, but let their salary remain and draw it out in small sums. Others take out their salaries and place them in other banks. But this is not done as much as formerly. Most of the members do all their business over the counter of congressional bank, and some of them pile up checks as high as sixty thousand dollars in a single season.

NO REVOLUTION ALLOWED.

Henry George finds it necessary to get down lower and lower every day, says the New York Post, to meet the demands of the socialists, anarchists, and the revolutionists of every sort who are his most enthusiastic supporters. "Just wait until we elect Henry George," said Justice Schwab on Tuesday evening, "and you will see some things in this city that were never dreamed of." One of those things, it appears from a speech by Mr. George, is an American edition of the French revolution. In addressing a gathering of Frenchmen, he said: "I am pleased to meet you, Frenchmen of this city, here to-night. Wherever the struggle for liberty begins, there the sons of France ought to be represented. With all its drawbacks, and horrors, and shortcomings, the great epoch of the French revolution, now but a century gone, is about to repeat itself here. Liberty, equality and fraternity embodies the aspiration of every workingman in the world to-day. It remains for the workingmen to re-establish the republic; not the republic of the millionaire and the tramp. What was done in 1776 in this country, in France in 1789, must be done over again. Our forefathers won us our political rights. It remains that we should assert them." The "drawbacks, horrors, and shortcomings" of the French revolution lasted about twenty years, and cost France about 1,000,000 lives and the loss of all freedom. So Mr. George must not start a similar one here, if he does, remarks the Post, he will be arrested and fined.

"UP TO TIME," IN A HORN.

Some time ago Uncle Sam thought he might have a muss with Mexico, incident to the actions of a tramp-printer from this side, Old Cutting. While this thought was uppermost in the minds of the red tape manipulators, the navy department was instructed to formally proceed, and send out a private letter to railroad lines along the coast to secure speedy transportation to the sea-board for torpedo boats etc. That was at last two months ago; Old Cutting has saved his neck; Sedgwick has been to Mexico and got on a rip-tearing drunk with the officials, settled the differences satisfactorily; and Bayard is blissfully reposing upon the laurels won by his diplomacy. In fact the whole business has been forgotten; but with wonderful facility the red tape of the circumlocution office unfurls, and last Saturday the mysterious "private" letter to the railways was sent out. This letter calls attention to the fact that in case of war with a foreign nation it is important to have the seacoast secure from depredations of the enemy, and in considering this subject, the question of transportation of torpedo boats by rail is of great moment. On account of the rapidity of such transportation, in case of sudden emergency, it is preferable to sending boats by water. The writer of the letter, which emanates from the naval intelligence (?) office of the bureau of navigation, then makes inquiry to know what facilities the railway addressed may have for transporting these boats, the cost, route, etc. In view of the fact that the Mexican-affair had been forgotten quite entirely, these letters cause much surprise, and do not seem to be understood. It shows one of two things: That either such dilatory system would enable Mexico to eat us up, before we could launch a torpedo boat; or that there is another menace to call for action. We are rather inclined to accept the first proposition, inasmuch as the dispatches say this private letter was prepared about the time of the excitement over the Cutting affair. And it is not very creditable to the heads of department at Washington interested.

Mr. Villard reached New York on Sunday. People out west will be glad to hear of his renewed success. As an investor and builder of fortunes for those who take hold honestly with him, Mr. Villard has not an equal on either continent, but he cannot hold a house together that is divided against itself.

Rembrandt stirred up a hornets nest in his truthful items about bogus mineral waters, and Northrup and Sturgis "plead guilty" apparently, by ordering their ad out of the Welcome. Perhaps the machinery of their shop is used to inflate bogus stuff. Our advice to the public is to touch not, taste not, handle not, unless it comes from Wilhoit springs.

A Business Proposition to Everybody.

Having the most complete and best selected stock of goods on the west side, outside of Portland, as conceded by all commercial men, and my facilities for buying being equal to or better than any house here, I am prepared to furnish you with Dry Goods, Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Boots and Shoes, Groceries, Glassware and Crockery, at prices as low or lower than any house outside of Portland, and if you buy upon same terms as you do when you go to Portland, buy in quantities paying cash, I engage to compete with the retail houses of Portland on the same class of goods, save and except Sugar, Salt and such goods as freight figures up on so that it cannot be done. This does not apply to some cheney houses who would bait you by selling some special article at a sacrifice, and making it up on some other articles. IT SHALL BE STRAIGHT BUSINESS. I especially invite purchasers, to call and make an inspection of the goods and price, before buying elsewhere. All goods marked down during clearance sale will be sold at clearance sale prices. Prices of all goods will be plainly marked on them, and no clerk is authorized to make any cut or deviation on them, and will be discharged for doing so before he has authority. SMALL PROFITS AND QUICK RETURNS IS THE MOTTO. CASH IN HAND OR SHORT CREDITS MUST BE THE RULE. A. J. APPERSON.
