THANKSGIVING EDITION.

In order that we may introduce THE DAILY REPORTER to readers outside of this city in Yamhill county, we have perfected arrangements for publishing an extra large edition of 500 copies, double the present size, Thanksgiving morning. We do this not wholly for ourselves, but shall also let in regular patrons at a nominal cost, and thus make it the representative of McMinnville interests. Copy for extra matter intended for this special edition should be handed in for the printers not later than noon of Monday next. After you have seen the paper, comments will be in order. We intend to serve the public well and faithfully, and be deserving of all support extended to us.

OREGON STATE TAXES.

On Monday last the board of commissioners appointed to compute and levy the state taxes, completed their labors to-day. The levy for current expenses is one mill and nineteen-twentieths of a mill. They abolished the half-mill levy for the Oregon war debt; the debt having been paid in full. The entire levy for all state purposes, including the one-tenth of a mill for the support of a state university, is two mills and one-twentieth of a mill, a decrease of one mill and thirteen-twentieth of a mill as compared with the levy of 1885. The estimate has been based upon the actual expenses of the state government for the last two years, allowing such increase as the natural growth of the state institutions would demand. The taxable property of Yamhill county is $4,038,697. An increase of $14,074 over that of 1885.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Texans are preparing for a border raid upon Mexico.

The Chicago strikers have nearly all applied for work at their old places, upon the order of Powderly.

Dwyer Bros., the somewhat noted Brooklyn turf men, have won $208,549.16 this year. The largest winning by any one stable in America. Their expenses nearly equal winnings.

The contractors of the switchback, over the Cascade mountains, are cutting a ditch six hundred feet long, seventy-five feet wide and eight feet deep, so as to drain Green river channel in order to obviate the necessity of building a bridge. Work on the switchback is progressing favorably. It is now thought that trains will be running over the mountains by the first of the year.

In spite of all that has been said, work has not been commenced at Newport upon the government jetty.

It is certainly inexcusable. It was contemplated that the work should commence immediately after the appropriation was granted. The funds were made available for that purpose. The work is urgent to save that already done from destruction. Commerce is suffering from the delay. The weather has been uniformly mild and pleasant, and yet nothing has been done. There has been no satisfactory reason given why the work has been delayed, and when congress meets our delegation will probably make some inquiry concerning the matter.

There is no room for a serious doubt that friendship and hospitality were outraged and confidence grossly abused by Julian Hawthorne in publishing the so-called interview with Mr. Lowell. The young man's conduct is utterly indefensible. It is not creditable to either Mr. Lowell or Hawthorne. It might be all true enough that Queen Victoria is likely to live for a long time, but when the late minister to St. James's describes her majesty as being "very tough" he raises a laugh, to be sure, but he violates the courtesies of society and the unwritten code of diplomacy. With regard to what he has to say of the Prince of Wales, with whom he is supposed to have been on friendly terms, we are reminded that a Texas cowboy would despise himself for "goin' back on a pard." The house of lords, Mr. Gladstone, Lord Hartington, Prince Leopold, home rule, English art literature, and Thorndike Rice are all treated with scant ceremony, and, according to the reported interview, with a contemptuous indifference which some of the subjects scarcely deserve. It is plain that either Mr. Lowell is growing very old or that he has been grievously misrepresented.

The usual cry of the destitution of a large number of Indians comes to hand, the only difference being that the wail sets in earlier this year than usual. The plaint comes from a barren stretch of country in Arizona, and possibly is from this reason attended with excuse that would not exist if the grounds allotted to the Indians were arable. The cry exposes none the less, however, the total inadequacy, not to say imbecility, of the policy that neither gives the Indians a chance to themselves, nor provides with certainty for them. Starving one month, lying around like gorged anacondas the next, the athletic buck, the surpine squaw the helpless pappoose treated as alike irresponsible for daily food and adequate clothing. Surely there is not much in such treatment to develop the latent virtues that are supposed to dwell in the Indian breast. A policy that contents a stalwart, able bodied human being with his government dole of three pounds of beef and half a pound of flour per day, and teaches him not to look beyond the visible supply, is discountenanced by the sturdy common sense that declares the best help to be self-help, and that charity that destroys individual responsibility is a bane to the beneficiary.
