McMinnville, Or. - Dec. 9, 1886

After the Patents.

The Prussian government has commenced a vigorous crusade against patent medicines by appointing eminent experts to carefully analyze all such medicaments, and to publish their ingredients and the effect of them on the human system. One of their reports made public through the police department of Berlin says: "An official analysis of the tooth renovator, prepared by Richard Mohrmann, Berlin, proves that the same is composed of peppermint oil and soda. This preparation does not preserve the teeth. On the contrary, it destroys them. As a warning to the public this result is published." Another preparation called the Swagatin toothache paste, contained nothing but water and borax, which material cost the manufacturer only one-eighth of a cent per box. To the credit of the experts it must be said that whenever they find a remedy of sufficient merit to warrant commendation, they publish it as frankly as they fearlessly expose the frauds. What a shivering there would be among the bottles and boxes in this country should such a system of expert analysis be adopted by our government as it should be.

A Salmon Flag.

Mr. Bancroft, the Pacific coast historian, in his narrative of the immigration to Oregon in 1843, relates a little incident that aptly illustrates how groundless our fears are sometimes, and how suddenly a mountain of trouble may vanish from our pathway. The company of emigrants, led by Captain Peter H. Burnett and J. W. Nesmith as orderly sargeant, on arriving at Fort hall was disorganized. A few of the least encumbered set out on horseback, M. M. McCarver who was in the van with a small party as it approached American falls on Snake river, became greatly alarmed at what he mistook for a red flag. Thinking there might be hostile Indians in the vicinity he hastily drew his men into line for battle, and marching up to the red signal, discovered it to be a large salmon, split open and hoisted on a pole to notify travelers that there were fish for sale.

Another war like outlook is reported from Bulgaria. "Professions" of "information" that Austria is to take the field against Russia causes a flutter, but it will not fill the complete sails of a matured conflict.

Give a man the necessaries of life and he wants the conveniences. Give him the conveniences and he craves for the luxuries. Grant him the luxuries and he sighs for the elegancies. Let him have the elegancies and he yearns for the follies. Give him altogether and he complains that he has been cheated, both in the price and the quality of the articles.

Henry Bergh says when he first began the society for the prevention-of-cruelty-to-animals movement the only donations he received came in $1 and $5 lots. Later on $100 checks began to take away his breath, but now immense fortunes float around his way and he guides them into the society's exchequer without any excitement. Speaking of the contest of Miss Welton's will, just decided in his favor, he said: It has already cost the contestants $20,000, and I think they will not appeal."

I affirm, says Judge Waldo Brown, in the Boston Traveler, that the system of indorsing is all wrong, and should be utterly abolished. I believe that it has been the financial ruin of more men than, perhaps, all causes. I think that our young men especially should study the matter carefully in all bearings, and adopt some settled policy to govern their conduct, so as to be ready to answer the man who asks them to sign his note. What responsibility does one assume when he indorses a note? Simply this: He is held for the payment of the amount in full, principal and interest, if the maker of the note, through misfortune, mismanagement, or rascality, fails to pay it. Notice, the indorser assumes all this responsibility with no voice in the management of the business, and no share in the profits of the transaction, if it prove profitable; but with a certainty of loss if for any of the reasons stated, the principal fails to pay the note.

Mother and Son.

About two years ago a cancerous sore made its appearance on my face, and as my ancestors on both sides had been afflicted with cancers. I was filed with gravest apprehensions. The future was overcast with dark shadows, and in groping about in search of relief my attention was called to Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I concluded at once to test it, and did so with the happiest results. The sore disappeared, and my face is well.

My mother had a cancer on the nose, and it was eating away that organ with alarming rapidity. I sent her one dozen bottles of Swift's Specific, which she used according to directions. The sore soon ceased to eat, and all inflammation disappeared, and the hole made by the cancer closed up and healed over completely. My mother is now well, and has been for over a year.—T. S. Maben, Dublin, Texas, Oct. 2, 1886.

How Regarded by a Prominent Physician.

"No other remedy within my knowledge can fill its place. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the liver to action and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive powers of the system."—L. M. Hinton, M. D., Washington, Ark.

Notice To My Patrons.

In consequence of declining health, which prevents me from making personal application to parties indebted, I am compelled to announce publicly that all bills due and unsettled January 1st 1887 will be placed in other hands for collection.
