Be it understood that we send the Reporter weekly for a bit a month. Six months and no less for six bits.

Gov. Hill, as a presidential possibility, seems to be capturing even the Butler men, who have become tired of roaming around in outer darkness.

Unless a poultry raiser is willing to put the same amount of intelligence brains and attention into that business that he would into any other business he or she had better abandon the same.

It seems to be the general opinion that the peach buds have been killed by the late cold weather. There is some slight hope for late varieties. Our reporter examined a large number of buds last Sunday, and failed to find a single live one.

We are greatly pleased to hear that Nellie Boyd is coming with a brilliant company. Nellie Boyd needs no introductions. She played a most successful season in Portland a year or two ago, and is known as a star of the first magnitude in theatrical circles.

Sunlight is essential to the growth and health of children, and they should be sent out of doors for several hours every day the sun shines. Above all, let the sun shine into the house; the preservation of the children is of more importance than to prevent the fading of the carpet.

Mr. Ladd's artesian well has developed much valuable information for Oregon. Last week the drill brought up some petrified specimens of tropical timber, among shells of perfect form, and wood and bark of the same species. Considering the great depth from which these specimens were brought, this is a very remarkable geological discovery.

Vestry meeting this evening at 7:30, at Dr. Johnson's office.

County court is now in session. Present bills to-morrow.

Henry Ward Beecher is lying at the point of death this afternoon.

J. J. Vanatta has been committed to the asylum from Marion county.

We hear of one person who will put up $2,000 for water works in this city. Next, gentleman.

Uncle Andy Baker lost another valuable horse last week. T. Bynum also hauled one away from his stable yesterday.

Rev. J. W. B. Smith, late of Kansas, will preach at the Christian church in this city at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, March 9th.

The floral offerings at the funeral yesterday were profuse. A beautiful piece was sent up from Portland by Mrs. Dr Saylor.

The Reporter was honored today by a call from Miss Clara Siebolt and Frankie Page, of the Emma Heath Dramatic Company.

Mrs. Wilson, on College side, has been very much troubled by disease of the heart, but her friends will be glad to hear that she is now recovering.

The remarks at the funeral yesterday by Rev. Mr. Henderson were well timed and beautiful, expressive of theme, and touching to all who heard them.

The wife of Theodore Herron, living near Hopewell church, on the Salem road, died yesterday. The body will be interred at Salem. Mr. Fellows of this city, furnished the casket and hearse.

The pall-bearers at the funeral yesterday were all of the immigration of 1843 but one. They were Messrs. Sitton, Garrison, Holman, Hembree, Cozine and A. J. Baker.

Frank Hauswirth of North Yamhill, is the kind of a citizen we like. He got ashamed of the old school house over there and built a nicer one, at his own expense, then hired teachers to teach in it.

Mrs. Loughary started her kindergarten school to-day. One little tot is credited with saying that she went to this school to learn some tricks; and promised to teach them to her best friend across the way.

The school meeting was very largely attended this p. m. Eighty-two votes were cast. Hon. Wm. Galloway was elected director, and John Wortman clerk. There is a surplus of $1,100 in the treasury. Directors were employed to secure additional room for the school.

The elegant new hearse of Capt. E. B. Fellows was used at the funeral yesterday. We are proud of the enterprise and public spirit of our fellow townsman who enables the public to thus honor the dead. The casket was one as elegant as could have been produced from Portland.

The current number of The West Shore is a superb one, and fulfills the publisher's promise to improve upon even the splendid issue of last month. In a poem, "In Memory of the Pioneers," O. C. Applegate pays a tribute to the sterling qualities of those who laid the foundation of society in the West. The text is illustrated with a number of striking engravings.

The Register started in last week to give us a history of the Lafayette town site. It refers to Jacob Reed, who took up the section in '44; then to his successor, Joel Perkins. But from whom, as you understand it, Bro. Westerfield, did the people finally secure their titles? Is there not a material omission just at this point, which would be desirable to the public?

This is a beautiful day; it makes all feel so fresh and green.
