McMinnville, Or. - - Mch. 7, 1887

In Memoriam.

Over the bridge, across the river,
The footsteps come and go;
Their ceaseless tread goes on forever,
While the waters ebb and flow.
Across the beautiful bridge of life
We all must sometime go;
To join that band of spirits bright
While the waters ebb and flow.

As we stood upon the side walk yesterday afternoon and watched the throng of sympathizing friends who had gathered from far and near to pay their last respects to Uncle John G. Baker, we instinctively recalled our last social visit at his house. How often, when an hour of silent thought falls upon the soul, remembrance winds the silken tendrils of the heart and lets a strain of tender memories flow back upon the past. In such moments how sweetly sad we dwell upon the last words of some dear one whom we are destined to meet no more upon earth. Our last visit with him at his home was in the evening hour; a holy hush seemed hovering like a spirit of light and love around the scene, softly fell the twilight dew, and sweetly came the breath of blooming flowers, as we sat with the old pioneer and his amiable wife, and talked of the days that tried men's souls in Oregon. We would not lift the veil of sanctified domestic life nor peer within the portals of that home now shrouded in sorrow; but it was the home of joy, of confidence and affection, as beautiful and pure as earth possessed. To the Father of all we commend this deeply stricken household. Loving words and tender acts of human sympathy are too feeble to reach the deep and painful grief caused by the removal of one so loved, so honored in the home which he cherished with such tender affection. To sum up the character of our friend would be to say that in him we find the wise counsellor and advocate, the high minded, intelligent, fearless, independent, incorruptible and patriotic citizen. In the immediate family connection we behold the loving wife, tender daughter and three devoted sons. His death is a great loss to scores of friends, but he leaves behind him the heritage of a good name, the legacy of a life well spent.

Following is a set of resolutions adopted at the school meeting this p. m.

WHEREAS, The Almighty, in his wisdom has seen fit to consign Hon. John G. Baker, director in this school district, to that sleep that knows no waking, thereby reminding us once more of the uncertainty of life; therefore, be it Resolved:

1. That we publicly record upon the minutes of this meeting our heartfelt sorrow for the loss of our fellow citizen, who was always manly and courteous, and we take this means of commemorating his memory.

2. That in the death of Hon. John G. Baker, the bereaved family have lost a kind husband and father, and the community one of its most valued and esteemed citizens.

3. That we present our condolences to the bereaved family and friends, and assure them that if their grief could be lessened by being shared with others we should most assuredly be foremost to assuage it.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the widow of our deceased fellow citizen, and also to the city papers for publication.
